YANKS ARE RECEIVED IN SILENCE BY HUNS

Attitude of Indifference Is Maintained by Germans in Occupied Territory.

GENERAL BROWN IN CHARGE

Military Governor Takes Up Position in Treves While Dickman's Army Marches Into Germany.

By The Associated Press.

AMERICAN ARMY OF OCCUPATION, Sunday, Dec. 1.—No demonstrations, either friendly or hostile, marked the entry of Major General Dickman's army into Germany today. The frontier was crossed early in the day and by nightfall the Americans had moved forward 12 miles, reaching Padgen on the left and Saarholzbach on the right. The line extended along the Saar river and through Saarburg and Treves.

The reception given the Americans differed from that encountered in Luxemburg and parts of Belgium and France. There, they were welcomed as deliverers by almost all of the population. The attitude of the population of Rhenish Prussia was different. Not a single act of open antagonism was reported, but it was evident that even the children had been schooled carefully in the role they must play.

Officers and men were not surprised by the lack of display of flags and the absence of the cheering crowds to which they had been accustomed, but they did not expect the calm silence with which the advance patrols and the columns of marchers were received.

On the Luxemburg side of the Moselle river the streets of the village were filled with those out to say goodbye to the departing troops or by those who paused to or from church.

Streets Deserted.

Across the Moselle the streets of the villages were almost deserted. Perhaps 85 per cent of the population remained within their homes and in a majority of cases, the blinds were drawn. Here and there a German stood in the doorway but there were no signs of either pleasure or disapproval.

Large crowds were encountered in Treves, the largest place occupied later in the day, but even there most of the people kept moving, maintaining always a studied air of indifference.

So far as possible the man in khaki were ignored.

Once in a while the youngsters, under 6 years old, were carried away by the excitement and displayed enthusiasm over the marching troops, but their forgetfulness was corrected promptly by some older person.

Brig. Gen. Preston Brown, the military governor for occupied territory, has established his headquarters at Treves, which also has been made advance general headquarters.

General Pershing will spend part of his time at Treves. Civil affairs will be directed by Maj. Gen. Harry Smith.

Silence Is Maintained.

The troops marched into the headquarter's town with bands playing but even the music and the presence of dozens of high ranking American officers failed to jar the population from its attitude of calm silence.

A curious feature of the situation was the presence along the line of march of large numbers of discharged German soldiers, both officers and men, still in full uniform. Along the roads and in Treves these gray-clad men moved in and out of groups of men in khaki or stood on the sidewalks watching the marching columns. At several places in the city and in the country districts Germans armed with rifles were seen acting acting as civilian guards. They had been placed there by the German authorities to maintain order.

A number of released allied soldiers appeared with the American line as it advanced. Some of them had been set free by the retreating Germans, while others had been permitted "to escape."

The allied commission, which have been in communication with the Germans, have notified the local authorities in Treves and in other places that where the civilian authorities are not troublesome, and where they co-operate with the forces of occupation, they will be permitted to remain at their posts and will not be disturbed except in so far as it is necessary for the carrying out of military measures.

OPERATING FORCE DANCES AT MECHANICS' EXPENSE

The mechanical men in the Cosden employ paid up last night.

They paid with one of the biggest dances ever staged in convention hall and the victorious operating men, their wives and sweethearts with one voice proclaimed their receipt in full.

It was the first affair of its kind in the history of the Cosden companies. After the field meet of last Saturday, of which the dance was "the stake," the mechanical men began preparations for making amends for their defeat for it had been agreed that the loser should give the dance. The mechanical men lost; the operating men won.

More than 200 couples were on the floor last night when the 30-piece orchestra struck up the music that started the grand march. This was led by Walter Miller, manufacturing manager, and his daughter, and Fred Koontz, processing superintendent, and Mrs. Koontz. From that time on, there were no recollections of the defeat.

Injunction Against Garage.

People who live on Eighth street between Lansing and Madison avenues, object to having a garage in their neighborhood. C. Johnson operates one there and he has recently made plans to enlarge it. To this plan the residents of the neighborhood most strenuously objected. Finally, Lorenzo Grier went into the district court and sought an injunction to restrain Johnson from enlarging and maintaining his garage there. Judge Conn Linn issued a temporary restraining order yesterday.

TORTURED TEXAS WOMAN WRITES

Standing on Her Feet Torture to This Lady. Had to Ride Everywhere She Went, Until Cardui Brought Relief.

McKinley, Texas.—Mrs. A. B. Stovall of this place, writes: "Sometime ago I was in a critical condition. We only lived two squares from town, yt I wasn't able to walk the two squares.

from town, yet I wasn't able to walk and suffered at that, but not so much as when I tried to walk. Standing on my feet was torture.

My greatest suffering was in my right side. It was so sore and I felt if I stepped down or jarred myself the least bit I could not stand it—so just walked mostly tiptoe. This kept up until I was just about discouraged and decided I had best try something else.

Someone told me of Cardui, and where it had benefited cases similar to mine. I felt at least it would not hurt to give it a trial.

After my first bottle I felt better—there was less pain and soreness in my side.

After my third bottle of Cardui I was well and have been ever since."

Row Between Majors and Minors Looms When Magnates Should Be Co-Operating

Because of the fact that the war is over it is very probable that professional baseball can be resumed next season.

Critics all over the country are agreed that if baseball is to succeed in the future it must undergo a complete house-cleaning. It was believed that the magnates, minor and major league, would realize this and co-operate in putting the game on a new basis—and purge it of all the present evils.

But instead the moguls are well warmed up for battle.

The minor league heads, at a recent meeting in Peoria, Ill., passed a resolution signifying their intention of breaking off all relations with the major leagues unless the big leagues abolish the draft and the optional agreement. They want the right to sell their star players to whom they choose.

The draft and the optional agreement have long been consedered two of the fundamentals of the baseball scheme. The idea of the draft is to prevent any one major league club from obtaining the cream of the young talent each fall.

Ban Johnson, as spokesman for the major leagues, has said that the majors will seek to abolish the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues as one change. This organization is composed of the minor leagues representatives and has handled the bulk of the minor leagues' business. But all important squabbles of the minors are turned over to the national commission.

Of the association Ban says it has been incapable for years of managing its own business.

To the minors this looks like a direct attempt to obtain complete control of the minor game, although Ban says a reorganization that will provide "a better government" for the minors is planned.

RESTRICTIONS ON COTTON SHIPMENT TO BE LIFTED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Restrictions on the shipment of cotton from interior points for export will be removed by an order to be issued tomorrow by the railroad administration, Senator McKellar of Tennessee, announced tonight, after a conference with Director Chambers of the railroad administration's division of traffic.

Removal of the restrictions, Senator McKellar said, will permit direct shipment from interior points in the south of cotton to all allied and neutral countries except the neutrals contiguous to Germany and Austria. Heretofore, bills of lading for shipments were limited to the seaboard.

TULSAN BURIED IN FRENCH VILLAGE WHERE HE FELL

Details of the death in action of Shelton Beaty were received yesterday by Mrs. Rebecca Beaty, 917 South Jackson street, in a letter from the commanding officer of the 2nd engineers, with whom the Tulsa boy was serving in France. The bullet which proved fatal first pierced Private Beaty's watch. The watch, showing the bullet hole, is now on display in the window of the Liberal Loan company on East Third street.

The letter from his commander said Beaty was killed instantly on June 4, 1918, just north of the town of Lucy en Bocage, France, and now is buried in that town. The shell that killed him also killed another man and wounded five others. "Private Beaty since joining the company had an excellent record and the entire company joins me in extending sympathy to his family and friends," wrote the lieutenant in closing.

CONGRESS TO STUDY RAILROAD SITUATION

Joint Committee Is Expected to Be Created to Inquire Into Plans for Disposing of Them.

MODIFIED PLANS ADVOCATED

Senators Express Favor for Plans to Retain Large Measure of Direction Under Private Ownership.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Creation of a joint congressional committee, consisting of members of both houses, to inquire into the railroad situation, soon will be sought, it was said today, after President Wilson had advocated this plan in his address before congress. This committee would call railway executives, labor leaders, financial representatives, officials of the railroad administration, and members of the interstate commerce commission to give their views as to the best policies for future management of the rail lines. The committee then would attempt to formulate a plan for some sort of unified control and common management which most students of railroad matters are said to advocate, regardless of whether the government retains or relinquishes its political control.

The need for haste in this program was explained today by the president and emphasized later by railroad administration officials who admitted they anticipate difficulty in carrying out plans for acquiring new equipment, distributing it among roads and making extensive improvements contemplated for next year, without stretching the government's war powers beyond the point where railroad companies are willing to co-operate.

Many members said it was doubtful if so important and debatable a question could be decisively settled during the congestion of the short session.

Prominence of the railroad question in the minds of congressmen was evidenced by many statements on the subject issued after the president's address. Chairman Smith of the senate interstate commerce committee predicted that "a modified and perhaps radically modified plan of private control would result." He gave no details of his views.

Senator Kellogg of Minnesota, republican, urged immediate congressional study of the question and "strong government control regulating issues of securities and control over service." He opposed releasing of the roads and return to old conditions without further legislation.

Senator Watson of Indiana, republican, said he believed the railroads should be "nationalized" under government control with private ownership, but operated by pooling as a unit under a common equipment zone plan.

Immediate action by congress in dealing with the situation also was urged by Senator Cummins of Iowa, republican, who agreed with the president that the railroads should not be returned under the old system.

Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania, republican, said the voice of congress and the people would be heard "in unmistakable terms after the railroad committee has had full power to investigate the orders and methods under which the railroad system of the country has been nearly ruined and certainly demoralized."

Government control "so as to protect the public" but with retention of private ownership was predicted by Senator Sherman of Illinois, republican.

MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT TO BE TAUGHT IN SCHOOL

Oklahoma City has endorsed a plan to teach municipal government and city management in its public schools. Earl Sneed, city attorney found out when down there last week attending the state municipal league. He likes the idea.

"How many young people in Tulsa know the important details of city government?" said Sneed. "Yet here is where the bulk of the taxpayers' money goes. The idea of educating the youth in the important details not only means a better citizen, but I can see where the future office holders in Oklahoma City will be better qualified when they take their place at the head of government."

Mr. Sneed says Mayor Overholzer has a plan to put young men in office as deputies under the city commissioners, so that when the old men's term of office expires, qualified successors can be found right on the job, already trained and ready to take up where the old commissioners left off. The Oklahoma City mayor feels there is a future in such a policy that will make the capital city a log of money, because of trained men being already familiar with the civic affairs.

AMES CANNOT COME; FOOD SAVING MEET POSTPONED

The program for food conservation week was given a setback last night when C. J. Hindman, county food administrator, received a telegram from C. R. Ames, the state administrator advising him that he will be unable to come to Tulsa today to deliver the principal address before a mass meeting of citizens which was to have been held in the high school auditorium tonight.

The meeting, Mr. Hindman said last night, will be called off on account of Judge Ames' inability to attend.

Zachary Taylor Makes Merry.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 2.—A round of jollification, including dances, dinners and theater parties for companies and even regiments of the 50,000 men stationed at Camp Zachary Taylor, have followed the conclusion of hostilities. Much of the unusual gaiety apparently springs from the desire to expend the profits from canteens and post exchanges. One regiment alone is said to have had $40,000 derived from that source and lived on turkey for a week in an endeavor to enjoy the fruits of their thrift before being mustered out of service. Any regulations, it is said, provide that such surplus profits may be used for the benefit of the men, but that any unexpended balance must be returned to the government.

Asks Irish Support.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 2.—Archbishop John J. Glennon tonight addressed a personal appeal to President Wilson to suport at the peace conference the claim of Ireland for home rule.

In the Oil Fields

That's the Way to Get the Oil Men—Treat 'em Right.

Unlike the famous slogan of the tank corps, Fort Worth, Texas, is winning her campaign for popularity with the oil fraternity by "treating the bunch right." An elaborate banquet which will be attended by hundreds of oil men from all sections of the United States will be given by the Fort Worth chamber of commerce Saturday evening, December 7.

Billy Sunday, the world famous evangelist, will preside at the banquet as official speaker, and also glad-hander of the reception committee. Senator Thomas P. Gore of Oklahoma and Governor William Hobby of Texas are also among the principal speech makers.

Fort Worth's coming banquet will be one of the most elaborate ever staged in any city in the southwest, and will be Fort Worth's formal welcome to the oil men, who have recently established headquarters in that city, and a most cordial invitation to all others to come and do likewise.

Invitations have been sent out to more than 2,000 oil men in every section of the country, and an attendance of at least 1,000 is expected at the banquet.

Fort Worth is coming to the front as one of Tulsa's keenest rivals. Practically the same in population, averaging around 100,000, their greatest ambition is first to increase that to 250,000 within two years, and second to make Fort Worth the oil center of the mid-continent field.

The only criticism that one hears of Fort Worth, is that there is too much hot air and too many hot air companies doing business, but there is one thing certain, and that is that oil men appreciate the "glad hand." It was what made Tulsa famous, and Fort Worth is to be congratulated on her ability to appreciate what oil men do for a town. Tulsa has many investments in the Texas field and will continue to play the game down there but will see to it that everything is done to make this town a good town to live in and that the oil men are appreciated to the limit.

Last night's meeting of the members of the chamber of commerce in Hotel Tulsa proved this and there were present the same old bunch that in the beginning extended the glad hand to the oil fraternity and made Tulsa the best town that has ever grown up anywhere by reason of the oil business. It will continue to grow and will develop rapidly now that the Osage is being drilled. It extends greetings to Fort Worth but hopes that the latter town will not steal any of its glory.

Elbing Pool, Kansas.

The National Oil company well No. 1 on the Eyestone farm in 8-23-4 is reported shut down for fuel.

Kellar Oil company well on the August Hinz farm is also shut down indefinitely.

Prairie Oil & Gas Co. well on the C. A. Hinz farm in 18-23-4 has suspended operations at a depth of 1,225 feet.

Elbing Oil company well No. 3 in 18-23-4 is now one foot in the sand, and are pulling the big pipe. The well is reported to be filled up about 150 feet.

Carter Oil company has shut down the test on the Moslander farm 14-23-3, at a depth of 2,150 feet. The Tidal Oil company on the Moslander farm, same section, is drilling at 2,290 feet and has just finished setting their 6-inch.

The Ramsey Petroleum company well on the Hinz farm in 18-23-4 is pumping 180 barrels.

The Texas company on the Paris farm in 19-23-4 has a bad hole at a depth of 2,495 feet, which it is now trying to straighten and run the 5-inch.

Elbing Oil company No. 2 and No. 3 wells on the Leydig farm in 18-24-4 are reported to have pumped 450 barrels the last 24 hours.

Kentucky Litigation.

The question whether mineral rights in undeveloped oil leases are subject to taxation was raised in a suit between W. S. Raydure and the board of supervisors of Estill county, Kentucky, recently argued for the commonwealth by Chairman M. M. Logan, of the state taxation commission, and Judge E. C. O'Rear before the court of appeals. Under the act of 1917 oil is taxed one per cent the barrel for state purposes and a half cent for county in lieu of all other taxes. The assesor of Estill county omitted taxes on leases of 1,272 acres held by Raydure and the supervisor assesed the acreage at $250,000. Raydure paid the tax under protest and brought suit, claiming that the only tax is on oil production and mineral rights in undeveloped oil property are not subject to assessment.—Oil City Derrick.

Started On a Long Journey.

Miss Margaret Murphy, who has been assistant oil editor for the last year, started on her long jolurney yesterday which will wind up in the Rumanian oil fields where she will go as the bride of L. R. MacCollum whom she will meet in Boston where the wedding will take place at at the home of her sister. She carries with her the best wishes of a large circle of friends, all of whom hope to hear from her often. Her place has been taken by Miss Sofia Suppes who has a large circle of friends and admirers to begin with and who will keep up the reputation of the position as perhaps no one else could. She will appreciate greatly any favors in the way of news and assistance generally that can be extended by the oil men.

COWETA—The New York Oil company and Robinson are dry at 1,646 feet in 26-17-15 but are considering going deeper.

The Ma-Lou Oil company well on the Charlie Bird farm in section 26-17-15 reported as a ten-barrel well, is good for 20 barrels which makes things look better in this section. B. G. Gobel is moving in tools a location north in 23 for an offset.

Shuler, George, Mortimer and Sargeant are rigging up for a test on the Billy Atkins farm in the southeast of 23-17-15 just north of their good well located on the Margaret Bird farm in 26, which is still producing 50 barrels. The same company No. 1 of the Billy Atkins farm is making 25 barrels in the Stonebluff sand at 1,032 feet after a 100 quart shot Sunday evening.

The Livingston Brothers are drilling at 500 feet in the southwest of the northwest of 24-17-15 Lovett farm.

J. C. Neely has located just south of his No. 1 on the Charlie Bird farm in 25-17-15 and will drill. No. 1 is reported good for 25 barrels.

BIXBY—The Gladys Oil company No. 12 on the Mary Posey farm in 16-17-13 is drilling at 1,300 feet.

Shuler, George, Mortimer and Sargeant No. 4 Berryhill in 18-17-13 is showing 50 barrels in the 2,200-foot sand.

The Goodyear Oil company No. 9 is a location on the Mahala Wilson farm in 9-17-13.

Shuler & George are down 900 feet on their No. 3 well, on the Austin farm in 19-17-13.

TILLMAN COUNTY—The Moss, Webb & Hill test in section 15-1s-15w, which has recently been taken over by Cosden & Co., has been abandoned but the rig will be moved a few feet and another well started. There was a showing at 700 feet, and the well was stopped at 980.

GERMANS MINE BODIES OF DEAD COMRADES ON FIELD

WITH THE BRITISH-AMERICAN ARMIES, Nov. 30.—German deviltry seemed to know no bounds in the last days of the fighting on the British front after the Hindenburg line has been shattered. They attached grenades to the bodies of dead Huns left behind in the German retreat, so that when the bodies were lifted the grenades exploded, killing or wounding the bearers.

Near the town of La Cateau, a number of Australian stretcher-bearers were killed by these grenades in attempting to remove some German dead from the field in front of an American machine-gun position. Thereafter no Australians would put hand on a dead German. In some cases the bodies were dragged to their burial places by means of a long rope which allowed the stretcher-bearer to keep out of range of any exploding hand-grenades.

The Americans, on the other hand, hit upon the plan of making the German prisoners bury their own dead. In one instance a Boche prisoner was summarily shot because he refused to remove the body of one of his dead companions. An examination of the body later led to the discovery that it was mined. The German was aware of this fact and refused to touch it.

In one smil town evacuated by the Germans, many of the beds were found to be mined. An American officer, tired and worn by a long and hard fighting, sought rest on a lounge in a room previously occupied by a German officer. The lounge blew up and he was instantly killed.

Another officer picked up a pair of field glasses left by the Germans and was adjusting the focus when the glasses exploded in his hands and blew away a part of his face.

The Huns had become adept in the nefarious business of making infernal machines, mines and time fuses, and there was scarcely an area where the electrical and engineering experts of the allies did not find some new form of their fiendish ingenuity.

TED WHITE IS REPORTED WOUNDED DURING BATTLE

Theodore White, one of the original Tulsa ambulancers, has been wounded in action, but the seriousness of his wound has not yet been determined, according to a telegram received by the boy's mother, Mrs. A. D. White, 416 South Detroit avenue, yesterday. The telegram was from the war department and said the Tulsa boy was wounded during the fighting of September 4.

White left Tulsa with the ambulance company in the fall of 1917, but was transferred to the medical department of the 117th engineers regiment just before embarkation. He was gassed last spring but recovered and two letters received by his mother since then indicated that he was in the best of spirits and health.

While the official notice said the seriousness of the wound had not been determined, Mrs. White declared letters from some of the Tulsa boys in the same unit with her son said an arm had been shot off.

Bolshevists Take Documents.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—Bolshevists have entered the Norwegian legation at Petrograd and removed documents belonging to Switzerland, whose interests are under the protection of Norway, according to a Copenhagen dispatch to the Mail. The Norwegian minister has protested in vain and the newspapers of that country are demanding that Norway break relations with the soviet government.
