

Sunday School Lesson

BY BEN TERBOUM

Lesson November 2, Job 25:1-8

There is a certain beauty in the things of God. The things of God are not only beautiful, but they are also useful. They are useful in that they give us a glimpse of the things that are to come. They are useful in that they give us a glimpse of the things that are to be done. They are useful in that they give us a glimpse of the things that are to be seen. They are useful in that they give us a glimpse of the things that are to be heard. They are useful in that they give us a glimpse of the things that are to be felt. They are useful in that they give us a glimpse of the things that are to be thought. They are useful in that they give us a glimpse of the things that are to be done. They are useful in that they give us a glimpse of the things that are to be seen. They are useful in that they give us a glimpse of the things that are to be heard. They are useful in that they give us a glimpse of the things that are to be felt. They are useful in that they give us a glimpse of the things that are to be thought.

A beautiful room (size 12x12x9) can be finished in Cornell-Wood-Board, tastefully decorated with flat wall paint, at an expense of $32 in round figures.

The use of Cornell-Wood-Board in new buildings means completion in half the time. When making alterations and repairs it eliminates noise. Remember Cornell-Wood-Board can be applied over old plaster, usually at less expense, and without the dirt-connected with replastering. It reduces further repairs and further expense.

Cornell-Wood-Board is a non-conductor of heat, cold or moisture. It keeps out the dampness.

Kitchen walls can be kept cleaner and more attractive. The room will be cool in the summer and warm in the winter.

Beautiful color effects otherwise not obtainable result from the use of Cornell-Wood-Board.

IMPOSSIBLE

Two men and a board might be all right as a start for damming a river; but they will never get beyond the starting point without help and more material.

The same is true of a business. A small boom and a few goods may start things going; but the start will come to a sudden halt without reinforcements.

In the same way, the telephone company could serve a few people, in a limited manner, and for a limited time, even if it could not pay expenses.

But the telephone company has to do business on a business-like basis, just as you. It has a payroll to meet and supplies to buy; and these require money.

As the telephone serves its money from the service it renders it must look to its subscribers for support. If these subscribers pay it enough money to insure proper service they have a right to demand good service.
