CLUBS MUSIC WOMENS WORK

Spring is Here. Again awake the throats cry. Sweet 'mid the earth's returning strength. Where willow-fringed the brook runs by. And meads the soft, uncertain dust. Makes glad the highway's dusty length.

Lapped by shadows from the trees. The dandelions and the grass. And blossoms scattered by the breeze. Shatter the pink's clear looking glass. Where silver minnows dart and dash.

These are the young year's halcyon hours. In orchards fair and green and fields. Bright with capricious sun and flowers. When all the promise springtime yields. Finds utterance sweet in songs and flowers.
