BY EDWARD W. COCHRANE

With five bouts in which world or national championships are at stake on his boxing card, it is not surprising that the promoters of the following of things pugilistic, Mike O'Dowd, middleweight, Jack Britton, welterweight, and Johnny Kilbane, featherweight, are the three who are booked for feature attractions in the United States, while Ted Lewis will battle Johnny Basham for the welterweight title in England, and Johnny Coulon will fight Charles Ledoux for the highest honors in the bantamweight division in France. Of the three world's champions, possibly O'Dowd is meeting the most formidable foe in a 10-round contest in St. Paul St. Patrick's day, a day when boxing always has flourished in this country. Aggie Ratner is not so well known in the west, but in the east this middleweight has been making rapid strides toward the top of the division and his backers freely predict that he will eventually be one to lift the crown from the head of the fighting mink from Minneapolis. If he does not accomplish the feat in this engagement, which is not at all likely, only through a lucky punch can he win an undecisioned affair and it would be about as tough as any middleweight we have had since the days of those great warriors, Billy Papke and Stanley Ketcher.

WANTS NEW CITY CHARTER

Pawhuska Would Change Present Form of Municipal Government. PAWUHUSKA, Okla., March 14.—With the hope of better meeting the demands of a city of 20,000 population, a movement for a new city charter has been started in Pawhuska, which would almost completely change the present form of government. Under the proposed plan the election of five commissioners would be provided for, one from each ward and one at large, who would serve the city at one dollar a year. These commissioners would have advisory control of the city and one would be empowered to hire a business manager. The city clerk and the police and fire departments would be under the supervision of the commissioners. The offices of city attorney, police judge and city clerk to remain elective. The present city charter, the petition for which was signed in governing a village such as Pawhuska, was out a few years ago.
