KLAMATH FALLS, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1908.

A petition in bankruptcy was filed in the United States Court in Boston Saturday against E. H. Gay & Co., of that city and New York. While the amount for which the firm is forced into court is nominal, it is said that its debts, secured and unsecured, total between $7,000,000 and $8,000,000. It was considered one of the largest private banking houses in Boston, and did a bond business exclusively.

A small girl, lost at Coney Island, was kindly cared for at the police station until her parents should be found. The matron, endeavoring to keep the child contented, had given her a candy cat, with which she played happily all day. At night the cat had disappeared, and the matron inquired if it had been lost. "No," said the little maid. "I kept it most all day. But it got so dirty I was 'shamed to look at it, so I let it."

Following the three shocks of an earthquake that occurred Monday at Maula, the phenomena was repeated at 12 o'clock Tuesday. The observatory reports that the focus or center of the first disturbance was within 200 kilometers of Manila. The seismographs recorded several light shocks that were otherwise imperceptible. The city has suffered no damage, and reports from the interior and neighboring islands indicate that there has been no loss elsewhere.

The damage done in the typhoon last week in China is much greater than was reported at first. In Chang Chow 3,000 houses were destroyed, and 1,100 persons killed. In Lam Cheng, fifteen miles west of Chang Chow, 600 houses were destroyed, and 1,200 persons killed. Five years ago Lam Cheng was flooded and 3,000 were drowned. Fifteen miles north of Chang Chow, three villages were entirely destroyed, and 200 persons were killed.

One of the worst storms in years is now raging over the Laramie plains between Cheyenne and Rawlins. The storm is accompanied with snow and a terrific wind. All trains due at Cheyenne are six hours late, and it is reported that several trains are blocked between Laramie and Rawlins, unable to proceed, owing to the intensity of the wind and drifting snow.

It is claimed by fishermen that the sewer from the Southern Pacific yards in Sparks, Nevada, is pouring hundreds of gallons of oil into the river daily at a point near Vista, and that as a result many fish are dying. According to all fishermen who have visited that part of the river, the fishing will be very poor above these sewers, unless the officials force the Southern Pacific to stop allowing the waste oil to escape into the river.

Charles F. Grundrey, clerk in the Winters drug store of Redding, broke his right leg Monday morning in a singular manner. Standing on the cement walk in front of the store, he saw a banana peeling lying on the pavement and decided to kick it out into the street where it would not be dangerous to pedestrians. Grundrey gave a vigorous kick, missed the peeling and fell off the pavement, dropping a foot or two into the gutter and breaking his leg.

At a certain age in the masculine education, cleanliness is the main thing to be inculcated. Vigorous soap and water practice is about the only way to succeed. After giving a boy a chance to better his own condition, harsher methods usually follow. Theodore had twice been sent to wash his hands, and was now returning for the second inspection. "My child," said his mother, comparing the two hands critically, "your right is just as dirty as your left. What have you been doing all this time?" "Why, mama," explained the youth, "last time you said my left hand was cleaner than my right, so I tried to make them even. I'll go again."

PAID $12,000 FOR LETTERS.

This week's issue of Collier's Weekly will contain the story of how William R. Hearst obtained the Archbold letters which he has read in recent political speeches and others which he is holding in reserve. They were stolen from John D. Archbold's office in the Standard Oil building in 1904 and 1905 by William W. Winfield and Charles Stump, who were employed there. Winfield, who is a negro, is a stepson of Archbold's colored butler. He has been working in the Standard Oil offices ten years, and served as file clerk, messenger and door tender for Archbold. Stump is a white man, and had been employed in the Standard Oil offices six years. Both were discharged in 1905 after they had abstracted many letters.

The two men played the races together and needed money. Stump acted as the go-between, carrying to Hearst's office such letters as Winfield gave him. They received over $12,000 in all. Hearst was approached because his Cosmopolitan magazine at that time was compiling articles on the "Treason of the Senate," dealing with the Senators referred to in Archbold's letters. Most of the letters Hearst put away in his safe for future use. Stump says Hearst has been holding back the most sensational letters.

"Wait till you hear him read the Senator Penrose and Senator Aldrich letters, Stump is quoted as saying. "Then there'll be a sensation. Hearst hasn't the originals, they were returned to the Standard Oil files. Photographic copies were made and those are what Hearst is using. He hasn't the originals, except a few Hanna letters. After the photographic copies were sold to the Hearst people, some of the letters were returned to Archbold by a friend of mine. Archbold offered us $1,000, but he didn't pay it after he got his hands on the letters."

Fleshy folks, attention! You have turned the earth upside down for a fat-reducer, now haven't you? You have said all manner of mean things about the tendency of members of your family toward robustness. You have taken remedies and you have grown steadily, certainly, persistently more fleshy. Only your naturally cheerful disposition has prevented you from trying the one cure that you are certain would end all your troubles. That, you are cherishing as a last resort. All this is true? Yes? Well, cheer up! The reign of undesired superfluous flesh is at an end! The remedy has been found by a Prussian, a prince of the royal blood. It is so very simple that we hesitate to suggest it. Perhaps we may break the news more gently by telling the prince's story. His excellency, Eitel Frederick, second son of the kaiser, found himself at innocent 28, growing into a "mountain of fat." He consulted physicians without avail, but he was determined to get rid of that superfluous flesh. So he left Ingenheim castle, near Charlottenburg, dressed himself as a day laborer, and entered upon a period of real toil. Of course, everybody was shocked, but the prince plugged along somehow. He spent from five to seven hours a day, digging, felling trees, sawing wood, building sheds and cutting hedges. He worked through the very hottest of the weather, made hotter yet by the indignant twilight protests of his very angry princess. "But in two weeks the prince began to see signs of improvement. In a month he was practically "cured." Now, we have not tried this remedy ourselves (whoever did try a remedy that he wanted others to use?) but it is so highly recommended that we pass it along, gratuitously. P. S.—If any one of our readers does try it and finds after an honest test that it is a failure, for goodness sake send us the information in a special delivery letter, so we can impart the news to the hundreds of other fellow-sufferers who may be driven to the extremity of actual toil.

Freaks vs. Novelties

IF WE OFFERED YOU A SUIT WITH A SHEET IRON VEST AND BRASS CUFFS ON THE COAT, YOU'D LAUGHT, AND SO WOULD WE—IF YOU HAD BOUGHT THAT KIND OF A SUIT. SOME MAKERS ARE FINDING A FEW SHORT-SIGHTED MERCHANTS WHO WILL OFFER THE PUBLIC THE HYSTERICAL CREATIONS WHICH THEY FOIST UPON THEM.

FRIEND MADE CLOTHES and ALMA MATER STUDENT STYLES are the most advanced styles made—they are the first to bring out the novelties of the looms and the dyers, while their own designing represents the newest ideas in tailoring. Every garment they make is intended for gentleman's wear—not for walking sign boards. If you want to be conspicuous, don't buy your clothes here—If you want your clothes neat, perfect fitting, stylish and in good taste we'd like to serve you. Our novelties are not freakish—and we show more of them than any store in the city.
