

ELEMENTS OF SUCCESS.

A striking illustration of how some men get rich was related the other day at Jacksonville. Mr. Central, a young man 28 years of age, worked hard up to three years ago, and by close economy had saved $1,000. He purchased a cattle ranch for $10,000, paying $1,000 in cash and the balance on easy terms. He worked hard and managed well. Last week he sold out for $17,000 cash, besides having saved out of the sale of the cattle $5,000, leaving a net profit for the past three years' labor the snug sum of $12,000.—Roseburg Review.

"He worked hard and managed well." Here is the secret of success in every life. That man who is born with a capacity for hard work and the willingness to perform it, will succeed if he combines with this talent the ability to manage well. The recent populistic howls of the Review, that the poor man no longer had an opportunity to rise in this country, and Mr. Bryan's "the young man Abolam," were intended to tickle the ears of those who are too indolent to work hard and who lack the ability to manage well. This class of individuals will never attain success, no matter what opportunities may be offered them. Work hard and manage well and you will succeed. Opportunity is before you.

The following short editorial from the Oregonian may be a rude shock to those who believe that the abolishment of athletic sports in our higher institutions of learning is necessary if we would have the student excel as a student, but those who believe that youth must find a way to expend its surplus energy, and that it is better that this youthful vigor find vent in healthful exercise rather than in college pranks or dissipation, will subscribe heartily to the sentiment that a healthy mind is found only where there is a healthy body, and vigorous outdoor exercise is essential to perfect bodily health: "Sons of Oregon showed California how to play football. The victory means more than athletic supremacy, because the best athletes are the best students."

A football team composed of players from the O. A. C. is to play an Albany militia eleven at that city Thanksgiving day. Oh! O. A. C., vanquisher of U. of W., U. of O.; one-time champion of the Northwest; worthy rival of Multnomah, Berkeley, Stanford for athletic honors, has all thy glories, honors, greatness shrunk to this little measure? Oh! mighty Burnough, Burnett, Stimpson, Elgin, Buxton, et al, hast thou then fallen so low?

Used Knives. There seems to have been quite a lively time at a dance recently given at the Siletz. The News gives the following account of the affair: Last Friday night while a dance was in progress at Bob Metoalf's near the Siletz Agency, two Indians Larkey Logan and Jaok Spear became involved in a quarrel during which Logan drew a knife and proceeded to carve his opponent after the most approved fashion, slashing him across the neck and two or three times in the breast. The cuts, though quite serious, will not prove fatal, it is thought. The one in the neck narrowly missed the jugular vein. Larkey was immediately arrested and placed in the Siletz jail, to await the arrival of a U. S. marshal from Portland.

Considered Tax Collections.

The fourth annual convention of county judges, county commissioners and county assessors opened Tuesday morning in Portland. The greater part of Tuesday was taken up with organization. The reports of two committees were adopted in the afternoon.

The first by the committee on assessment of personal property recommended that "the taxes upon personal property be due and collected on or before 30 days after the same have been listed by the assessor, the last preceding levy to be applied in determining the amount of taxes due."

The committee on manner of collecting taxes reported recommending: "That the treasurer shall be the collector of taxes up to the time they shall become delinquent; that the sheriff shall collect the delinquent taxes."

"If the present law on the subject is not adequate, it should be made so that a levy on real property or sale of same for delinquent taxes should not be made necessary.

"That all property when assessed shall be a lien against all property of the taxpayer.

"That the assessor shall be the collector of all taxes on personal property, not secured by lien on real estate.

"That all taxes shall become due and payable January 1, annually and become delinquent on March 1 following, and that a penalty of 10 per cent be then added, with legal interest on same after becoming delinquent.

"That some better method be devised of disposing of real property sold for delinquent taxes than the present one of authorizing the county judges to bid it in for the county."

Regarding the scalp bounty law, J. W. Hobart reported that the state treasurer was already engaged in sending out notices to the county treasurers where the bounty tax had not been paid, asking them if they were going to pay, and the reasons for the delinquency.

In the remaining two days' session the most important report yet to be received will be considered, which is that of the committee of assessors appointed in February to draw up a bill for presentation to the legislature on assessments and taxation.

Report on Eastern Oregon. In his last annual report, Dr. James Withycombe, vice director of the O. A. C. Experiment Station, under the head of "Plant Husbandry," makes special mention of the arid, or semi-arid, region of Oregon lying east of the Cascades. In this connection he makes reference to a matter of interest that is not generally known. It is that there are four experimental plots in Eastern Oregon. The following is an extract from the report:

Four experimental plots of one-fourth of an acre each were established at Moro, Sherman county, in 1899. Upon these plots leguminous plants, consisting of the Canadian field pea, two varieties of vetch, vicia villosa and vicia sativa have been grown as rotation crops for grain the past two seasons. The pea has given very satisfactory results, but the vetch so far has been a failure there. The object of the experiments is to ascertain whether or not humus-forming and nitrogen-gathering forage plants valuable for stock food can be successfully grown there as rotation crops with grain. Dr. Withycombe believes that an experimental farm should be established in that portion of the state for the purpose of testing various grasses and forage plants, so that their value under semi-arid conditions may be determined.
