M. C. A. secretaries. During the past three years he has spent his time among the institutions of higher learning in the United States and Canada, and is able to speak from a wide acquaintance with American student life. Probably no other man in America has more to do with the religious life of students than Mr. Colton, who is devoting the best years to the great work of uplifting the coming college man. Special music will be provided, and the program will meet your highest favor in every particular. All are invited.

EDISON ON TRIAL.

John H. Raymond Gives Evidence Implicating the Great Inventor in a Conspiracy to take Life.

Thos. A. Edison, the great inventor, was on trial in Judge Woodward's court Tuesday afternoon. Dr. B. A. Cathey appeared as prosecuting attorney, with such success, he said, that Edison may thank his stars that he was no nearer than Orange, N. J. Sheriff Burnett assumed the role of Hawkshaw, with Chief Flett as understudy; Attorney E. R. Bryson very ably assisted the prosecution, acting in the capacity of physician as well as lawyer, while Edison was not permitted any representation, whatever. John Henry Raymond, a native of Michigan, aged 42 years, 5 feet, 4 inches in height, and weighing 135 pounds, was the prosecuting witness.

Mr. Raymond came to Corvallis some four months ago, and found employment in the Strogg sawmill. Aside from a disposition to impress his fellow laborers with the dangers of imperialism, he gave no evidence of mental or moral weakness. For a time he stayed at the home of Lee Henkle, but at the instigation of Mark Hanna, it is said, Mr. Henkle declined to longer share his home with the stranger.

Mr. Raymond indignantly refused to stay at Mr. Henkle's after that gentleman requested him to leave, and took up his abode at the Occidental hotel. Here the emissaries of his old enemy, Edison, began to harass him. He called upon Proprietor Brunk, of that hostelry, for protection, but according to the evidence, Brunk was in collusion with Edison, and he turned Mr. Raymond over to the authorities, and it was during the examination which followed that the facts in the case were brought out. According to Mr. Raymond's statements during direct examination by Dr. Cathey and later under cross-examination by Attorney Bryson, he had been stopping at an hotel in Florida. Thos. A. Edison and his daughter were also guests at this hotel. Miss Edison became enamored of Raymond, and while the latter gave her no encouragement, never going in her presence even, she influenced her suit, assisted by influential friends. But Edison objected to the match, all because Raymond was a poor man, and notwithstanding the latter's innocence in the matter, had persecuted him from that day to this. The inventor had in his employ two men who have followed Raymond all over the country, intent on destroying him with dynamite. Two weeks ago they appeared at the Occidental hotel and secured a room next to Raymond's. Here they kept their intended victim awake nights, whispering plots of his undoing, discussing explosives and attempting to force an entrance into his room. They wore cork-soled shoes and were so nimble that Mr. Raymond was unable to catch them, although he chased them through the halls and up and down the stairs of the hotel all Monday night. When he applied to Manager Brunk for protection that individual turned him over to the police, showing plainly that he was in league with the conspirators.

Under order from Judge Woodward, the sheriff placed Mr. Raymond in the city jail Tuesday night to protect him from his enemies, and Wednesday afternoon that officer took Mr. Raymond to Salem, where he will be protected by the state. Meantime, a sharp eye will be kept on Edison and his accomplices.

Benton Property Valuable.

Last week A. J. Johnson, one of Scio's most prominent citizens, completed a trade whereby he disposes of his entire interests in Scio, for a stock farm in Polk and Benton counties, comprising 4,250 acres. The deal has been on for some time past, and last week the owner of the farm, Mr. E. P. Cadwell, came over here and looked over our city and was so favorably impressed with it that he at once closed up the trade. He gets one-half interest in the Scio roller mills, a controlling interest in the Bank of Scio, and Mr. Johnson's residence property in this city including barn lot and garden. The exchange of property will be made inside of 30 days from date of trade, and Mr. Cadwell will then take Mr. Johnson's place in Scio business circles.—Scio News. This stock ranch comprises the L. Goldsmith and Chenoweth properties, purchased during the past year by Mr. Cadwell. Mention was made of these transfers at the time by the GAZETTE.

The Last Sad Rites.

The casket containing all that was mortal of Miss Lucie A. Pernot, who died in New York, November 12th, arrived in Corvallis Tuesday afternoon. The mother, who had accompanied the body from the East, was met in Portland by her sons, Dr. H. S. and Charles Pernot, and together they arrived on the Southern Pacific train at noon. Funeral services were conducted at the Congregational church, Wednesday at 2 p. m., by Rev. P. S. Knight. Many friends of the deceased attended these services and followed the remains to the Odd Fellows' cemetery to witness the last sad rites of committing all that was earthly of Lucie A. Pernot to the earth from whence it came. The surviving relatives are the mother, Dr. H. S. Pernot and family, Prof. E. F. Pernot and family, and Charles Pernot, of Corvallis, and Eugene Pernot and family, of Granger.

"Brown's in Town."

"Brown's in Town" and will entertain at the Opera House tonight. The sale of seats has been unusually large, indicating that "Brown's" will get a warm reception. No one can afford to miss this excellent comedy. There will be everything to please and nothing to offend the most fastidious. The action all takes place in one house, but unlike "What Happened to Jones" it does not take place in one room. Two sets will be used in the presentation of "Brown's" which are sure to receive a cordial welcome at the hands of the theatre-goers of this city. The cast is composed of well-known players and a few of them are Chas. Horn, Geo. T. Welch, Emmet Whitney, Jessie Mae Hall, Maude Knowlton, Edith Weil and others. Reserved seats 50 and 75c; general admission 35c.

A Tribute to Miss Pernot.

When the soldier is brought home on his shield, with reversed arms and muffled drum, his comrades follow him to his last resting place, and we eulogize his memory. When the statesman and man of affairs passes away, we hasten to pay our tribute of respect. These are time-honored customs we do well to observe. It is no less fitting that we honor the memory of those who have been a power for good in their community. For "no life can be pure in its purpose and strong in its strife, and all life not be stronger and purer thereby."

In the death of Lucie A. Pernot this community has sustained such a loss. When she came to Corvallis eleven years ago, her fine qualities of heart and brain, soon won for her a place in the hearts and homes of those who were quick to appreciate her worth, and the circle of her friends steadily increased. As a business woman she commanded the respect of all those with whom she came in contact. Gifted in the art of fine needlework, at the holiday time she made it possible for those who had not the time to devote to such work, to present to their friends some dainty gift of her creation, and her numerous patrons will long have a kindly remembrance of The Ladies' Bazaar, which she conducted for several years.

Shortly after her arrival she became identified with the W. C. T. U. On a vacancy occurring she was elected secretary, and has never had a successor. Only those who are acquainted with this work can appreciate her efforts along this line, and few of us realize that we have in our midst a free reading room, which is maintained by this organization and made possible by the efforts of a few determined women who recognized in Miss Pernot an efficient leader.

A member of the First Congregational church, she was ever a faithful attendant and a zealous worker. In the Sabbath school she was a most successful teacher, and to her "girls"—as she always spoke of her class—she gave her best thought, and inevitably the result must be far reaching.

But nowhere, perhaps, was Miss Pernot more appreciated than in the club work. At one time she was a valued member of The Shakespeare club, but to The Thirteen club she gave her best energy, and to her more than any one person is due its successful career. When it was organized November 13, 1892, she was one of the charter members and when a place for meeting was discussed she offered the freedom of her home, which was accepted, and until her absence this fall it has met with her every Monday evening, except during vacation. Upon the removal of the club's first president, Mrs. Washburn, to Eugene, she was elected to that office and has served continuously since, and in all affairs of the club displayed rare taste and sound discretion. Always a student, she possessed a most versatile mind. With a keen sense of humor and quick at repartee, she was a charming conversationalist, and her loss to the club is irreparable.

When the Paris exposition was announced she expressed her intention of going, and there were few persons who attended who were more able to enjoy a trip to Europe. Eagerly did her friends anticipate her return. She has come, but with sealed lips, for she has joined "The choir invisible, whose music is the gladness of the world."
