

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

MR. AND MRS. JOHN GILBERT will entertain at an informal dinner and field day at Red Top, their home at Rydal, on Sunday, February 14, in honor of Miss Margaret Crozer Fox and Sidney Errington Martin, whose engagement was recently announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Frederick Houston entertained in a box party last night. Their guests were Miss Charlotte Harding Brown, Miss Virginia Roberts and A. Alexander Mercer Biddle, Jr.

At the invitation of Mrs. E. T. Stotebury, a number of students of the School of Design for Women yesterday visited her home to view the famous collection of pictures and other art work. The collection includes a number of pictures of the old English portrait schools, as well as the older masterpieces.

Mrs. Stotebury also showed the members of the class in design her beautiful specimens of embroidery and hand-drawn linens. Included in the party, in addition to the students, were several teachers, directors of the school and Miss Emily Sartain, the principal.

The Indoor Horse Show, the dates for which are April 22, 23 and 24, promises to eclipse exhibitions of previous years, for the committee in charge of the arrangements has not only added one day to the affair, but has announced that the ring in the Third Regiment Armory will be longer and wider than in former years. The dates were fixed early this year so that they would not conflict with the dates of the Brooklyn show, which will be held April 15, 16 and 17. The beneficiaries will be the Samaritan, Oncologica, Garrettsan, American and Babies' Hospitals, and in addition, the Polyclinic Hospital.

Mrs. Walter Hancock is chairman of the committee, which includes Mrs. Robert Kelo Caswell, Mrs. Percy M. Chandler, Dr. Laura Carnell, Mrs. Herbert L. Clark, Mrs. William J. Clougher, Mrs. Charles A. E. Codman, Mrs. I. W. Hollingshead, Mrs. Wilmer Krusen, Mrs. John P. Hollingsworth, Mrs. Thomas McKean, Mrs. William S. Newcomb, Mrs. John M. Patterson, George Peterson, Mrs. Henry P. Vaux, Miss M. K. Watmough, Mrs. Paul J. Snyder.

Miss Dorthea Miller, daughter of Mrs. J. Horace Miller, of Moore, is visiting the Misses McCullough at their home in New Bedford, Mass.

The dinner which had been planned for Monday night by Mr. and Mrs. Russell Duane in honor of Miss Cornelia Carter Leidy and Miss Anna Massey Heckacher has been postponed until after Easter, as Mrs. Duane is suffering from neuritis.

A meeting of the dancing class arranged by Mrs. Ralph Stewart, Mrs. J. Colton Deal, Mrs. Walter Hancock, Mrs. Rowland C. Evans and Mrs. Thomas Shallerow will be held next Friday at the Rittenhouse. The class will also meet on Friday, March 12.

Mrs. and Mrs. Langdon E. Mitchell, of 2320 De Lancey place, will entertain at dinner in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sturgis Ingersoll tonight.

The marriage is announced of George Taber Ashton, formerly of Swarthmore, and Miss Mary A. Misteleski, of Buffalo, N. Y. The ceremony was performed on the 16th of January in the North Presbyterian Church of Buffalo by the Rev. Dr. Dickinson. Owing to a very recent death in the family of the bride, the wedding occurred some time earlier than was originally planned, and only immediate relatives were present. Mr. Ashton is a graduate of Cornell University, class of 1912, and the bride is a musician of some distinction.

ALONG THE MAIN LINE
OVERLOOK—Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Percival Smith, of 691 Overlook avenue, celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary yesterday by giving a reception at their home. About 100 guests attended.

Mrs. Edwin G. Close has issued cards for a luncheon next Wednesday, February 10, in honor of Miss A. Helena Smith.

CYNWYD—A delightful musical, the first of a series of entertainments planned by a number of prominent Cynwyd and Bala women for the benefit of the Home Relief Fund of the Emergency Aid, was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Wilbur F. Hamilton, of Chestnut Hill, who generously placed her house at the disposal of the guests.

The program was a very pleasing one, and much interest was taken in the Scottish ballads and songs rendered by William R. Helney, of Scotland, who is a tenor of no little merit. Helney received various gold medals while connected with church music in the United Kingdom.

Others who took part in yesterday's musicale were Mrs. Clara Vocum Joyce, contralto, and Mrs. Frederick C. Newburg, Jr., soprano. James Robinson, Jr., rendered several violin solos, while Miss Rouellel was piano soloist and accompanist.

At the request of Mrs. Hamilton, many of the present brought or sent bundles of warm clothing to be distributed among the poor. This is a fine idea of encouraging the guests to bring something of some sort with them to the entertainments throughout the winter will be strongly urged up by the organizers of this good work in the future.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Vanderbeck, of 41st and Locust, will shortly leave for several weeks' visit to Pinehurst, N. C.

At the euchre and "600" to be given on February 12 in St. Monica's Hall, 17th and Ritten streets, the following well-known South Philadelphians will receive: Mrs. John Devlin, Mrs. J. Delane, Mrs. Joseph Halpin and Mrs. Charles Becker.

Mrs. William H. Wilson, with her little daughter, Dorothy, of 29th and Porter streets, in the Girard Estate, left this morning for a fortnight's stay at Atlantic City.

NORTH PHILADELPHIA

Miss Goldie Jones, of 233 North 17th street, entertained at "600" and dancing at her home last evening. The guests included Miss Irene Wright, Miss Elodie Kebers, Miss Elsie Jones, Miss Miriam Simons, Miss Helen A. Huff, Miss Frances Maguire, Miss Louise Mayer and Miss Adele Strouse.

The sewing circle, which furnishes layettes to poor women whose husbands are out of employment, will be entertained at a matinee musical and luncheon on Thursday, February 18, by its organizer, Mrs. Alice Randolph Purdy. The members meet Tuesday and Friday mornings, and are ladies prominent in Philadelphia society circles. The meetings will continue during Lent.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Friendly, of 1812 West Huntingdon street, will be at home to their friends from 3 to 7 o'clock on February 7, in celebration of their golden wedding anniversary.

Miss Margaret Clark entertained a number of the members of the graduating class of the William Penn High School, including Miss Jennie Kotkin, Miss Eleanor MacCardle, Miss Edythe Large, Miss Hilda Schoch, Miss Iteba Klein, Miss Lillie Holmstrand, Miss Gertrude Lauber, Miss Mary Loughlin and Miss Retta Deutch. The decorations were gray and black, the school colors, and red carnations, the class flower. The girls received miniature "girl graduates" as favors.

Mrs. Cornelia Carter Leidy, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Leidy, will again be guest of honor at a dinner-dance, to be given by her grandmother, Mrs. William T. Carter, of 216 Walnut street, at the Ritz-Carlton. Supper will be served at midnight at small tables, arranged with greens and spring flowers. There will be 400 guests present.

Many dinners have been planned before the dance, both in the hotels and at home, for "debs" and for matrons. Miss Isabel Wyrd Page, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Byrd Page, of Chestnut Hill, will be entertained by S. Davis Page, of 281 South 4th street. There will be 14 guests present.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Augustus Berwind, of 213 Walnut street, will entertain in honor of their daughter, Miss Margaret Berwind. Mr. and Mrs. Charlemagne Tower, of 125 Locust street, will give a dinner, in honor of Miss Frances Hoar, of Washington. Covers will be laid for 20.

MRS. GEORGE B. LANDENBERGER
Mrs. Landenberger and Lieutenant Commander Landenberger will entertain at supper on the U. S. S. Kearsarge tonight after the dance at the Navy Yard. Lieutenant Commander Landenberger has been ordered to sea on the Battleship Minnesota, having just been detached from the charge of the Hydrographic office in the Bourse Building, this city.

NAVY YARD DANCE
Another Dance Will Be Held Tonight in the Sail Loft at League Island.

This year has been the first in which the people in the service have been so frequently and so pleasantly gathered together, and the informal dances have been the cause. There have been six dances given so far and there is to be but one more before Lent. Each affair seems to have been more enjoyable than the previous one.

Tonight Lieutenant F. C. Starr, U. S. N., and Mrs. Menner, wife of Lieutenant Commander R. T. Menner, will receive the guests.

Dinners and suppers seem to be the most popular way of entertaining before the dance, and among those who will entertain will be Lieutenant Commander G. B. Landenberger, U. S. N., and Mrs. Landenberger, who will give a supper after the dance on board the United States ship Kearsarge, in honor of Mrs. William Percival Wise, of Baltimore. Their guests will include Captain William Sheppard Benson, U. S. N., Commandant of the Yard, and Mrs. Benson; Captain William Strouther Smith, U. S. N., and Mrs. Smith; Admiral Hall, U. S. N., and Mrs. Hall; Lieutenant Commander W. M. Hunt, U. S. N., and Mrs. Hunt; Captain C. B. Price, U. S. N., and Mrs. Price; Major Louis J. Magill, U. S. M. C., and Mrs. Magill; Lieutenant Commander William Lee Pryor, U. S. N., and Mrs. Pryor; Paymaster Manning H. Philbrick, U. S. N., and Mrs. Philbrick; Naval Constructor A. B. Court, U. S. N., and Mrs. Court; Dr. A. H. Allen, U. S. N., and Mrs. Allen; Captain Heath- ington, U. S. N., and Miss Heathington; Lieutenant H. E. Welte, U. S. N., and Mrs. Welte; Lieutenant Commander Raymond S. Keyes, U. S. N., and Mrs. Keyes; Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Beebe, Lieutenant W. F. Cochrane, U. S. N., and Mrs. Cochrane, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Berry, Mr. and Mrs. John Gustine, Mr. and Mrs. John Gustine, Jr.; William Baltz, Miss Elizabeth Baltz, Miss Elzabete Dobson Altemus, Captain H. I. Beares, U. S. M. C., and Mrs. Beares; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Barmlay, Harry Cressler, Jr.; Garfield Scott, C. Harratt Hickman, Doctor and Mrs. Frank Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Davis, Lieutenant Philip Seymour, U. S. N., and Mrs. Seymour; Mrs. Alexander Gray, Mr. and Mrs. George Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bushnell, Captain W. H. Bell, U. S. A., and Mrs. Bell; Miss Margaret Gray, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Landenberger and Mr. and Mrs. Tucker, Jr.

Lieutenant Commander R. T. Menner, U. S. N., and Mrs. Menner will also entertain at dinner in 10 covers before the dance, and an informal supper afterwards, in honor of some out-of-town guests.

Lieutenant W. C. McCrone, U. S. M. C., and Mrs. McCrone are entertaining Mrs. McCrone's mother, Mrs. George O. Ward, of Annapolis, at their home, 229 South Broad street.

Dr. A. H. Allen, U. S. N., and Mrs. Allen will have as their guest over the week-end Miss Annette Brady, of New York, at their home in the Girard Estate, 231 South Lambert street. Miss Brady will be their guest at the dance.

Lieutenant Decker, U. S. N., and Mrs. Decker will entertain informally at dinner before the dance at their home in the Girard Estate, in honor of Miss Barbara Rosasco, of Pensacola, Fla., a sister of Mrs. Decker, who is her guest at the present time. Those who will be present at dinner are Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Fenner, Paymaster Parsons, U. S. N., of the U. S. S. Mississippi; Lieutenant Louis Davis, U. S. N., of the U. S. S. Minnesota, and Ensign Walter Delany, U. S. N., of the U. S. S. Minnesota.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Davis, 212 South Garnet street will entertain at a buffet supper before the dance. Among those who will attend are Lieutenant Commander George H. Landenberger, U. S. N., and Mrs. Landenberger; Lieutenant Commander Raymond S. Keyes and Mrs. Keyes; Lieutenant Ralph Sheppard and

Pioneering in the Pulpit
The autobiography of Doctor Anna Howard Shaw, which has been running in the Metropolitan this winter, is a remarkably well told and thrilling "true story." She is best known as president of the National Woman's Suffrage Association, but she is also an ordained preacher, and this month's chapter of her story tells of some of her hardships as a divinity student, working against the antagonism of her 42 young men classmates, and the violent opposition of her family, who considered her a disgrace to the name of Shaw, (4):

I entered the theological school of Boston University in 1874. I went through some grim months in Boston. I hired a little attic room on Fremont street and established myself therein. In lieu of a window the room offered a pale skylight to the February storms, and there was neither heat in it nor running water. I at once sought opportunities to preach and lecture, but these were even rarer than freight and food. I lived there on milk and crackers, and for weeks at a time my hunger was never wholly satisfied.

The day dawned when I had not a cent, nor any prospect of earning one. My stock of provisions consisted of a box of biscuits, and my courage was flowing from the like blood from an opened vein. Late in the afternoon I was asked to do a week of revival work with a minister in a local church. My shoes had burst open on the sides. For lack of carfare I had to walk to and from my meetings, though I had barely strength for the effort.

We had a rousing revival—one of the

CURRENT PERSONALITIES

Dictionary definition: "Personality—application of remarks (usually offensive) to some individual." What a distasteful comment on life—"usually offensive"—otherwise nothing to say. It is reassuring to report that magazine personalities this month contradict this cynicism and are generally eulogistic, except for some editorial comments, such as a roast of ex-Governor Bleane, of South Carolina, in the Outlook, so well deserved as scarcely to be termed offensive.

Appropriately enough, of 15 biographical articles in as many magazines, five concern military men. Of the remaining ten articles, three are about women, and seven concern men artists and writers.

The attitude toward spies usually depends so entirely upon whether the individual spy be "for you or ag'in you," that it is interesting to read in "Sir Robert Baden-Powell's Adventures as a Spy," (1) told by himself, in Everybody's, a defense of spying in general, as well as an account of his own experiences.

Though the general view of the service is readily acknowledged, the spy himself is regarded as necessarily base and despicable. The scout is looked up to as a brave man, and his expedients for gaining information are thought wonderfully clever, so long as he remains in uniform. If he goes a bit further and finds that he can get information better by adopting a disguise, even at a greater risk to himself through the certainty of being shot if found out, then he is looked down upon as a "despicable spy." "I don't see the justice of it myself."

On one occasion I wanted to ascertain what value there was in the musketry training of the German infantry. Without any concealment, I went to stay in garrison towns, apparently just to look around, from the tourist point of view.

One day I sauntered carelessly down in the direction of the range at a point far away from the entrance gate, and here I lay on the grass as if to sleep, but really to listen and take the rate of the shooting from the sound, also the amount of success by the sound of hits on the iron target. Presently I went nearer in the hope of getting a rifle in which the secretary's back was turned I made a rush for the fence, and, though I could not get over, I found a loose plank, through which I was able to get good view.

While I was engaged at this, to my horror, the sentry suddenly turned on his tracks and came back toward me. But I was prepared, and jamming back the plank into its place I produced from my pocket a bottle of brandy, which I had brought for the purpose. Half of it had been already sprinkled over my clothes, so that when the man approached he found me in a state of drunkenness, smelling vilely of spirit and perfume in my offers to him to share the bottle.

He could make nothing of me, and therefore gently but firmly conducted me to the end of his beat, thrust me forth and advised me to go home, which I did in great content.

A name made familiar all over the world by the war, is that of the Commander-in-Chief of the French army who is described in the Review of Reviews, (2):

Tall, deep of chest, with a massive head, the broad forehead of which is underscored, as it were, by the sharp line of bushy eyebrows, a strong jaw and heavy moustache, all contributing to make a figure of great manliness and vigor—such is General Joffre, as described in the Correspondant, of Paris.

His clear, blue eyes, set wide apart, are bright and attentive. They attract instant attention. General Joffre is taciturn. He thinks, he listens, he decides. His orders are brief and sharp. His thoughts are condensed into terse sentences. There are no superfluous words, but no detail is forgotten.

The iron grill that bars the entrance to his modest dwelling in Autell, near Paris, is hung over with bouquets, placed there by unknown hands. They are the marks and spontaneous homage offered by France to her savior.

Although not the Commander-in-Chief of our army, our most prominent military man is undoubtedly Colonel George Goethals, builder of the Panama Canal, who is the subject of an article by J. E. Bishop in Scribner's, (3):

It might be said that many generations have united in fitting him for his great task. The history of his family dated back to 860, in which year one Honorius left Italy with the Duke of Burgundy for France, in a fight with Saracens Honorius was struck across the neck with what was capable of proving to be a deadly blow, but because of the fine quality of his armor and the physical strength of his person no injury was caused. His escape won for him the title of "Boni Coll." His nickname was translated into the native tongue as "Goet Hals," meaning, as it had in Italian, "good neck," or "stiff neck," and in course of time it was united in one word and became the family name. Colonel Goethals' parents migrated from Holland to the United States, and he was born in Brooklyn in 1818. The name has been Americanized and is pronounced Go-thals.

good, old-time affairs, when the mourners' benches were constantly filled. The excitement and our success, mildly aided by the box of biscuits, sustained me through the week. The last service over and the people departed, I sank weak and trembling into a chair, trying to pull myself together before hearing my fate in the good-night words of the minister I had assisted. When he began to compliment me on the work I had done I could not rise—it had been a pleasure and privilege to be associated with me. Beyond doubt, I would go far in my career. He heartily wished he could reward me adequately. I deserved $50. He could not give me $50. He could not give me anything at all. He thanked me warmly and wished me good-night. I managed to answer him and get to my feet, but the journey down the aisle to the church door was the longest journey I have ever made.

Most Popular Woman in the World
The best known and most popular woman in the world, averaging it up, aborigines and all, in of course, the moving-picture star, Mary Pickford. The Theatre, a magazine of "legit" drama, gave Mary its front cover last month and this is a tribute that can not be bought. In The Ladies' Home Journal, Miss Pickford, who was married a couple of weeks ago, and is now on her honeymoon, tells some interesting facts about herself, (5):

Every day the postman brings me an average of 500 letters from all over the world. The subject that seems to be of greatest interest is my age. Possibly some day I may not want to tell it, but at present I don't care. I am just 21 years old. The next question is one that has caused a good many arguments, which I am often asked to settle. The general impression seems to be that I draw a fabulous amount of money. The truth is that I receive $50,000 a year.

I am very fond of fruit, and there is always a wonderful variety to select from, for it is sent to me from all over the world—Africa, India, Australia, California. I receive hundreds of boxes of candy, and it often causes me a little pang, because my mother will not let me eat too much of it all given away. Flowers, too, come in profusion, and, while I love them, I know that sometimes they are sent by my little girl friends at great sacrifice, and I want to say that in those cases I wish they would just think of me and keep the money. Put it in the dime savings bank, then write me about it. I would like that much better.
