

WOMEN WHO MARRY ROYAL MEN OFTEN FIND IT NOT A DIFFICULT ONE

Wife of Ferdinand of Saxe-Coburg Suffered Indignities at Hands of Members of Court.

The marriage of Prince Oscar, son of the Kaiser, to a lady in waiting, set many talking about morganatic marriages—an expression which is often used loosely in England and in America because the institution is unknown to English law, remarks a correspondent of the Kansas City Star.

Persons have sometimes supposed that the Duke of Cambridge was morganatically married to Miss Fitzbrough, but in strict fact he was not married to her at all. His and her status were determined by the English royal marriage act of 1772, whereby it is provided that no member of the royal family, "within the meaning of the act," shall be capable of contracting marriage "without the previous consent of His Majesty, his heirs or successors, signified under the great seal and declared in council."

That consent was not given in their case, and their union was, therefore, in the words of the act, "null and void to all intents and purposes whatever." So far as the law of the land went, it was open to the Duke at any moment to dismiss his wife and with the royal consent marry another woman. Morganatic marriage is something quite different from that.

Broadly speaking, it may be put in this way: In England the sovereign can forbid or prevent a royal marriage, but if he permits it the wife becomes a wife, whatever her original social status, in the fullest sense of the word. King Cophtus marries the beggar maid, the beggar maid becomes his queen, and if he is not prepared to make her his queen he cannot marry her. Similarly, if King Cophtus's heir apparent or heir presumptive marries her, she forfeits and can be deprived of no privilege on the ground that she is not of "equal birth."

"EQUALITY" IN GERMANY. In Germany, on the other hand, and, indeed, in most Continental countries, those fateful words, "of equal birth," control the situation. The woman not of "royal birth" whom a royal Prince or an Imperial Archduke marries does indeed become his wife in the sense that only death or divorce can dissolve the union, but most of the other privileges of a wife are denied her. She is a member of the royal family without acquiring any status in another. She does not become a princess or an archduchess, but has to be content with the rank of a lady-in-waiting. The sovereign may choose in his good nature to bestow upon her.

Her children, though technically legitimate, not only do not but cannot inherit titles or dignities which their mother's, not their father's name. These in outline are the disabilities which await Prince Oscar's bride.

In which there was not only scandal, but a shocking scene, was that of Ferdinand of Saxe-Coburg, cousin of the Prince Consort, King consort of Maria Theresa of Austria, and grandfather of the late Dom Carlos. He was once occupied by the T. C. Price school.

The Leas school, although not quite completed, now has 24 rooms ready for occupation. Eight of these are now occupied. More will be tenanted in the near future. The third floor of the building will be finished in one month and the entire school then ready for occupancy. It is expected that children will be installed before Christmas.

Upon completion of the building, next Monday, dedicatory exercises will be held. Charles A. Coulomb is principal of the school.

Personal property of the estate of William S. Vest has been appraised at $735.50. Richard H. Vest is administrator, and Elizabeth W. Moore, $278.47.

CHILDREN'S CORNER

BEFORE THE SANDMAN COMES

THIS is the week for witches. For goblins. For ghosts—and for all the queer happenings of magic.

Maybe you think that the days of magic are passed. That goblins don't speak to you, that you know a lot better than to believe such rot, do you?

"You mustn't be too sure you know it all! For do you know, in your very back, right over where you could see her—if you knew where to look—there lives a wicked old witch. Yes! A wicked old witch with a great white caked; and her eyes flash fire as you look at her!

"Would you like to hear her story? Very well then—listen!

Once upon a time, in the long, long ago, when witches lived in trees and in rocks, there lived one old witch who was greater than all. A witch who was mightier than any other witch, or goblin, or fairy in the whole world.

So great was she that, whenever she appeared, all the other witches tried their best to please her. For you see this great old witch had a very wicked temper, a very, very wicked temper. And when she could get her own way, she waved her arms and scattered blue fire about her. So that every one who was frightened into giving her what she wanted.

Now as you very well know, it's a very unfortunate time to have your way all the time—very! For the more you have your way the harder it is to hunt up things you want. And if you can't decide on any more things you want, there's no fun in being—none at all!

EMRESS EUGENIE STILL LOVES LA BELLE FRANCE

Napoleon's Aged Consort Watches War's Progress With Great Anxiety.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—There is not one man among all the tens of thousands of soldiers eagerly training at Aldershot for the great task of freeing Europe from the German menace who is following the course of a very aged lady who lives by the side of the great camp.

The Empress Eugenie's picturesque house within its beautiful grounds upon Farnborough Hill overlooks a wide stretch of the Hampshire plain that from dawn till dark is filled with military activity, aeroplans belonging to the Royal Army Flying Corps at Farnborough nearby circling continuously through the air with their wings beating.

Daily in a large, light saloon at her house, large-scale maps are spread out before her, and with minute care, "just as if she were a general," she traces out the course of the fighting in France. The Empress reads the English and French newspapers, and also personal narrative reports furnished by her own friends in France.

She is full of grateful affection for the people among whom she has lived for so many years. The memorial chapel in which are the tombs of Napoleon III and the Empress Eugenie, in English and French newspapers, and also personal narrative reports furnished by her own friends in France.

ERROR NEARLY COSTS VOTE

Name Stricken Off Through Police Stupidity Goes on List Again.

Joseph Carney, 3129 Aramingo avenue, nearly lost his vote through the police wrongly reporting the result of their registration canvass after calling at his home. Today Carney appeared at the Registration Commission hearing and declared he was entitled to a place on the registry list.

A week ago two policemen went to Carney's home and saw his mother. They asked, "Is Joseph Carney home?" "Mrs. Carney replied that he was not and signed a police report to this effect. She failed to say Joseph would be home that night from Chester, where he is employed, and the police neglected to inquire further.

Carney's name was taken off the registry lists without opposition from the ward leader who watched for the 24th Division of the 25th Ward, in which Carney lives.

When Carney learned he would lose his vote, and this morning was waiting outside the Registration Commissioners' room in City Hall before the door opened.

Henry C. Lea School opens 350 Children Enter Part Now Ready for Occupancy.

The Henry C. Lea public school, 4th and Locust streets, was opened today. About 350 children of the primary grade entered the classroom. The new building is a fine structure, once occupied by the T. C. Price school.

KAISER'S STRING OF NAMES

The Kaiser, with his love of publicity, has 72 names of the States of Germany included in the list of the Prussian King, and have been ever since the Union of Prussia and the Kingdom of Hanover.

King George has a very modest outfit in comparison. It merely reads "George V, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain, Ireland and of the British Dominions Beyond the Seas, King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India." Some of the lesser nobles in Britain boast of long titles.

The Duke of Argyll leading, with 27 titles.

"It really isn't safe to live any longer," said one, "she throws fire around so carelessly."

"Indeed it isn't," said another old witch; "she throws fire from her fingertips, from her eyes and she spits it out of her cruel mouth."

"Let's all get together," said a third, "and throw her off the earth."

"And so they did. The wicked old witch landed in the storm clouds up in the sky. There she lived sputtering and scolding and fighting with darts of fire—for years and years.

Till a wise man caught her with a copper wire, and brought her to earth, put her in harness and bade her work for him.

HOME OF G. A. HUNN MAY BE MADE BUSINESS HOUSE

Report Structure at 16th and Walnut Wanted for Development.

Real estate transactions which will further the encroachments of the business district upon the residential section are pending on Walnut street west of Broad. It is said the residence of George A. Hunn, at the northwest corner of 16th and Walnut streets, is to be sold and replaced by a business establishment. It is rumored that Mr. Hunn has been urged to buy the new Bellevue Court Building, which stands in the rear of the Bellevue-Stratford, and to make his residence a part of the consideration.

The Hunn residence, which is known as one of the most magnificent on Walnut street, was built 13 years ago, when the neighborhood was strictly residential and before there were any indications that the business districts would extend on Walnut street west of Broad. About ten years ago the first business houses began to appear in that section and Hunn began to appear in that section and Hunn began to appear in that section.

At present the Hunn residence and that of William W. Fisher on the opposite corner of the street are the only large residences remaining in the immediate vicinity.

TITLES GALORE ADD ECLAT TO NAMES OF EUROPEAN ROYALTY

Monarchs Have Many Obsolete Distinctions as Trailers to Official Dignity. Sultan Outdoes His Fellow Potentates.

When Theodore Roosevelt and the King of Spain recently met, a striking contrast was afforded those who happened to think of the titles which the two men bore.

Nothing is more common than to see the opposition of democracy and monarchy and dependent upon the great claims which royalty levies upon a grandeur-loving people.

The American, who had been the Chief Executive of a land beside which Spain was a fraction, was known as plain "Colonel." Perhaps some of the more dignified nobles presented him as the "ex-President of the United States," but usually he went by the title of Colonel. King Alfonso, on the other hand, is the proud possessor of 42 independent and separate titles. His list of suffixes would form the major part of almost any letter which he might write.

Whatever his predecessors might have been, whatever claims they made in their dignities, he has preserved them as trailers to his individual name of Alfonso.

ALFONSO'S HIGH SOUNDING TITLES. Incongruous is his list of territories which have long since passed from under the Spanish domination. For instance, he is, along toward the last of his titles, "King of the East Indies," "King of the Indies," "King of Gibraltar," "King of India," "King of Océania," "King of the Pacific," "King of the Atlantic," "King of the North Pole," "King of the South Pole," "King of the Arctic," "King of the Antarctic," "King of the Equator," "King of the Tropics," "King of the Poles," "King of the World."

The Sultan has by far the most laughable list of names. He starts out by being High Prince and Lord of Lords. Then he specifies in great detail practically all of the States and cities and even districts of the Orient, and explains after each of the various names that he is ruler of "all the forts, citadels, castles and neighborhood thereof. Nothing is more common than to see the opposition of democracy and monarchy and dependent upon the great claims which royalty levies upon a grandeur-loving people.

Seven brothers of the newly elected pastor of Blockley Church entered the ministry. Five of them are living. Other brothers, besides the pastors of Belmont Avenue Church, this city, and Calvary Church, Norristown, now in the active ministry, are the Rev. William H. Hainer, of Irvington, N. J., and the Rev. Fred L. Hainer, of East Providence, R. I.

MR. HAINER'S TRAINING. The Rev. John Albert Hainer received his theological education in the Christian Biblical Institute, now affiliated with DePaul College. Before going to Providence, he was pastor of churches in Portsmouth, N. H., and Albany, N. Y. For five years before he went to Providence, he devoted his time to evangelistic work, and he has traveled extensively in Palestine, Egypt and Europe.

For 12 years he was a member of the board of managers of the Rhode Island Baptist State Convention and of the permanent council of that organization, as well as being active in other religious organizations. He has also been secretary of the Rhode Island Anti-Saloon League. He has also been secretary of the Union Rescue Mission in Providence.

Blockley Baptist Church is one of the oldest churches of the Baptist denomination in Philadelphia, having been organized in 1804. During the pastorate of Doctor Hall it was one of the most active congregations in the East. Dr. John Gordon of Temple University, has been supplying the pulpit for several months.

PAUPERISM BECOMING LESS

Census Report Shows Decrease in Number of Alms House Inmates. WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Pauperism is decreasing in the United States, according to a census statement today.

"The ratio of almshouse paupers to population has steadily declined at every census since 1850," the census bulletin declares.

FOUR BOYS HELD AS BAND OF CAMDEN STORE ROBBERS

Tried to Force Open Safe With Stolen Tools, Charge. Four youths, each under 16 years of age, were arrested for breaking into three stores in Camden and stealing articles of little value, were arraigned before Recorder Stoeckhaus in the Camden Police Court today and held to await trial in the Juvenile Court.

The boys are said to be the youngest band of thieves ever caught by the Camden police. Each of them wore short trousers and it was necessary for the Recorder to stand up and look over his desk to get a glimpse of the prisoners.

They gave their names as Frank Kates, 14 years old, 8th and Syracuse streets; Earl McCabe, 15 years old, South 4th street; Joseph Powell, 13 years old, Mount Vernon street, and Owen Malley, 15 years old, Chestnut street. They are charged with breaking and entering, larceny and malicious mischief.

The robberies for which the lads were held were committed yesterday afternoon. It was testified, the boys, who were visited the hardware store of Howard Lee, 1124 Broadway, and after breaking into the place, carried off hatchets and other tools. They attempted to force open a safe with tools they had stolen. Their search for loot, the police say, took them to the stores of Ruben Finley, 1123 Broadway, and Abraham Chabrow, 1115 Broadway.

After being treated he was removed to the Philadelphia Hospital. He will recover.

BLOCKLEY BAPTIST CHURCH CALLS THE REV. JOHN A. HAINER

Well-known Clergyman Has Held Pastorate of Providence Church for Last Fifteen Years.

The Rev. John Albert Hainer, pastor of the Pearl Street Baptist Church, Providence, R. I., for 15 years, yesterday was voted a unanimous call to the pastorate of the Blockley Baptist Church, 53d street and Wyalusing avenue, to fill the vacancy caused several months ago by the resignation of the Rev. Dr. Clarence A. Hall. Mr. Hainer will accept the call, and it is probable he will assume charge of the work here the first Sunday in December.

ROOSEVELT'S DAUGHTER CHEERS WAR VICTIMS

Mrs. Richard Derby Aids Stricken Women in Paris. PARIS, Oct. 25.—Dr. Richard Derby, of New York, and Mrs. Derby, formerly Rachel Roosevelt, visited the refugee reception organization at the Gare du Nord on Saturday. They were received by Paul Graf, the sculptor, who is the director of the organization.

Doctor Derby walked among the refugees and furnished the men with cigars and cigarettes. Mrs. Derby comforted the women who had been driven from their homes and assured them of the sympathy of Americans. Mrs. Derby also slipped money into the hands of the women.

DOG'S BARKS ROUT BURGLARS

Men Flee Without Booty After Prying Open a Window. A fox terrier, left to guard the residence of Frederick Ferber, 353 West Coulter street, while the family was away last evening, allowed thieves to pry open a rear window but it remembered its mission. When the animal's sense of duty returned its wild barks put the men to flight before they obtained any booty.

The men previously visited the residence of Frederick Ferber, 353 West Coulter street, and forced an entrance while the family was visiting. Six dollars were taken.

BLOOD POISON HAS CLAIMED MANY ON FIELDS OF BATTLE

Plenty of Doctors, but Inability of Wounded to Get Immediate Attention Adds to Death List. SENLIS, France, Oct. 24. A horror of war is the life that is wasted for lack of medical attention.

There are plenty of ambulances and doctors, but those who are lying on the ground, so suffering men must wait as best they can without water or attention until the battle has passed on. In the meantime blood poison sets in and the slightest wounds become fatal.

One young English lieutenant who had lain on the battlefield for two days with a slight wound in his leg was found with the limb distended with gas. He was taken to a hospital and the leg was cut off, but he died within two days from the poison which had entered his blood.

AMERICAN WOMAN TRIES TO BUY ARMS FOR NATION AT WAR

Miss Gladys Lewis, of Chicago, Negotiates With Delaware Firm for Entire Two Years' Output.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Miss Gladys A. Lewis, of Chicago, whose family is interested in the paper box business in that city, says she has been commissioned by a European Government to purchase machine guns for its army. She is the mysterious "G. A. Lewis" who it is alleged has been negotiating with the Standard Arms Company, of South Wilmington, Del., for the last two years that concern can make in the next two years, regardless of cost. She has declined to reveal the name of her client.

Together with her mother, Mrs. Selma Lewis; Miss Lewis and her sisters are at the Hotel Ansonia, of this city. Frederick C. Field, president of the company, was in Wilmington, Del., and received an inquiry from Miss Lewis, but that the offer was indefinite. He added, however, his firm would consider it.

When asked for whom she was acting, Miss Lewis declared it was her business and not the public's. She added she represented "myself and a number of other ladies." She said she would give any one $500 to tell where she or her associates could buy 10,000 rapid-fire guns for immediate delivery.
