A JUNE SONG. BY ANONIMA MOORE.

Beautiful, beautiful Summer! O'ercome, o'ercome June! All the sweet flowers are in blossom, All the sweet birds are in tune.

So where the winds from the mountains Sweep over meadows so fair, The grass waves the waves of the ocean, Or clouds flying swift through the air.

Out to the heath and the mountain, Under the pine and the oak, Under the green of the forest, Under the blue of the sky, I wander, I wander, I wander, As the wind that I may see.

sol were allowed every opportunity to prevent the offering of illegal testimony. After the indictment had been presented, Chief Justice Marshall decided that Mr. Barr must be incarcerated, but every possible comfort and latitude were allowed him.

Very well, sir, just as you please, replied the juror, "I should have been glad had it been otherwise; but, as you please, sir."

Compare this with the shameful and brutal manner in which Mr. Davis has been treated. Placed in solitary confinement, denied all communication with any living person except his jailors, denied even books, papers, writing utensils, every thing that renders life to a person of his habit and temperament, endurable.

A small boy heard a parson preach a sermon from these words, "Ye must be born again," which was frequently repeated during the discourse.

After he returned, he became melancholy. His father observed it and inquired the cause. The boy told him that the preacher said he must be born again.

"Well, my son," replied the father, "why do you cry about it?" "Oh," said the boy, "I'm so afraid that next time I'll be a gal!"

From the Danville Intelligencer. WEST HEMLOCK TWP., June 14, 1865.

Mr. Editor: The recent discoveries of Petroleum or coal oil and coal in Columbia county, has caused considerable excitement among the people in our neighborhood.

I started on the morning of the 13th of June, and reached the first oil spring, which is located about one mile northeast of Iola, in Greenwood township, Columbia county, near a point known as "Shoemaker's Saw-mill."

Leaving these springs I proceeded up the creek towards Robertsburg, visiting several springs on the road similar to those above described.

Now that the evidence is all in and the arguments all submitted, the deliberations and finding of the military commission will be seen.

With regard to the guilt or innocence of these particular parties the question is, therefore, of no importance; and unless some end was sought to be attained apart from their conviction, there was no necessity for a military court.

After a visit of two days I became fully satisfied that oil exists in Columbia county, whether in quantities sufficient to pay a profit over working expenses is yet to be tested.

Most of the best oil territory is situated in the Fishing Creek Conduffery. During my stay in that region I became acquainted with several of the gentlemen, many of them venerable in years, who were so unjustly incarcerated in Fort Mifflin.

may surprise many to learn that the Robertsburg, in which the "schemes were concocted to overthrow the Government" and which struck mortal terror into the souls of the Abolition editors, lawyers, preachers, &c., of Bloomsburg, is nothing but a common frame building, in which hay and grain are stored, situated about one mile east of Benton.

In conclusion I will state that the wheat crop in the section of country I passed through presents a fine appearance. The farmers say no better prospect for a good crop of wheat has been presented for several years past.

End of the Conspiracy Trial—the Alleged Complicity of Davis. Now that the evidence is all in and the arguments all submitted, the deliberations and finding of the military commission will be seen.

ocratic or Republican, that would not applaud it as a conspicuous proof of the President's uprightiness, independence, and sacred respect for the Constitution. It would undo, at a stroke, the painful apprehensions that have grown up in so many minds, that the war has permanently impaired the respect of the government for constitutional restraints.

The question presented for decision in this case entirely different from one with which it might be confounded. It is not, as in the case of the rebel chiefs, whether the persons shall, or shall not, be punished; for on that point, we take it, there is no difference of opinion.

There is a short and easy way of testing the sincerity of this conviction, if anybody in authority should profess to share it. If Davis is as clearly proven guilty as Wilkes Booth he can be convicted of this particular crime.

With regard to the guilt or innocence of these particular parties the question is, therefore, of no importance; and unless some end was sought to be attained apart from their conviction, there was no necessity for a military court.
