The White Flag on Its Way From Germany to the Military Forces Waiting Them on the Border of France

headed by General Foch, was the welcome vision in every eye in the United States yesterday.

Lost in the mists of the early centuries is the origin of the custom of the White Flag, but its use is a matter of history.

The entire world, from the first time it was seen, universally recognized it as a symbol of surrender and of peaceful intentions and adjustments.

Its speech is that pride has been satisfied and is yielding hot, hasty or impossible ambitions, and that amity is desired and peace at any and every cost.

The tumult of joy and gladness that the qualified cable messages as they were posted awakened and expressed in this and other cities yesterday witnesses the deep feeling of approval that fills the hearts of hundreds of millions of people on both sides of the seas.

What a wonderful sight the streets were, thronged with happy people—how they forgot everything of their sacrifices as they grasped each other's hands and hugged each other, saying:

"Now our dear boys will be coming home soon!"

In the beautiful service of Evening Prayer in the Episcopal Church is the supplication which all the world at this moment fervently makes its prayer:

"Give peace in our time, O Lord."

Hundreds of the Prettiest Winter Hats We Could Find for $10—and they certainly are attractive!—are just out of their boxes for girls and women who are in search of new winter hats. Quite a few are under $10—none expensive.

What could more becomingly frame a youthful face than a silk velvet hat, faced with lighter velvet and edged with fluffy ostrich feathers?

Or a smart little duvetyne hat in deep, dark brown, with one of the new and saucy feather ornaments?

Or a broad-brimmed velvet hat, with gay colored flowers on its new draped crown?

There are hats for young women and older women—small hats and large hats, hats trimmed with fur, with feathers and flowers and ribbons; hats in new shapes and new styles, and hats in all the colors needed to accompany suits, frocks and coats.

Come in and see how attractive our moderate-price hats really are!

Victory Sale No. 43 250 Women's Dresses at $18.75

Dresses taken out of our own stocks and reduced so that there is a saving of $5 to $7.50 on every one. There are scores of styles—Georgette crepes, crepes de chine, satins and serges and taffetas and various combinations; navy and black and brown and taupe. There are tunic dresses and paneled dresses and heavily braided dresses—far more styles, in a word, than we can go into details about.

All sizes in the lot.

(First Floor, Central)

The New, Quaint Locketts—

worn on large linked chains, are quite the fashion just now. They are of imitation shell or in pretty colored effects, and the lockets are in square, oval or round effects and most attractive indeed.

Some have pretty gold tracery in delicate designs, some have carved metal ornaments. All have a space for a picture inside, and usually there is a mirror, too.

The chains are in the fashionable lengths and there are many new and unusual designs.

$2 to $17.

"I Wish I Was a Girl

and could have one of those muffs!" said a six-year-old boy who passed through the little Annex of Children's Furs. And, indeed, the little round muffs of white coney and mole and opossum are enough to take a small boy's fancy, and to make a small girl burst with pride.

(Second Floor, Chestnut)

Kabo Corsets

We pick out some favorite models:

A coutil model with embroidery, low bust, slightly high in the back, medium length skirt, $2.50.

A batiste topless model, with elastic band at top, medium skirt, $2.50.

Maternity corset, low bust, laced each side of the front steel, $4.50.

A pink striped broche, topless, with elastic band at waist, $3.

A model for dancing and sports, topless and made of pink broche, $3.50.

A dainty design for slender figures, made of pink striped broche, with elastic band, $4.50.

A heavily boned style for heavier figures. Price $5.

A pink broche, girdle top with elastic insert at diaphragm, $5.50.

A flesh-colored Kabo with low bust and long skirt, $8.

(Third Floor, Chestnut)

Crepe de Chine Nightgowns

of the simple, untrimmed kind are among the best to choose, for all the expense shows in the quality and workmanship. Square-necked and hemstitched, $5.

Here's Rousing Good News of Specially Priced Winter Clothes for Young Women

Fine Sample Suits, $39.75

Lovely suits they are—of fashionable cut and equally fashionable fabrics, duotones, silvertones and velours in blue, taupe, burgundy, brown, green and beaver shades and delightful new styles. They are quite new as to style, are lined and interlined and in 14 to 20 year sizes. And, of course, being samples, they are especially good for the prices.

500 New and Attractive Winter Coats, $25 to $39.75

Coats of velour, pompoms, silvertones and other good wool fabrics; many with large fur collars.

New styles, all of them, and well made, all lined throughout and many interlined, which means additional warmth.

Myrtle green, beaver, brown, taupe, black, blue and burgundy—the most popular colors are all included.

Attractive One-Piece Dresses, $20

These are of wool serge, of wool jersey or of satin or crepe de chine; new and smart winter models.

There are dark colors and models suitable for street or business wear, as well as light colors for afternoon wear. These are from $5 to $7.50 below the usual prices for such dresses.

All are in 14 to 20 year sizes.
