North Deadman

Fine weather we are having. (Once in awhile.)

Oh, those poor brakes. They are surely misused lately.

John Percy and wife spent last Thursday afternoon with Will Hazen and Grace Smunk.

John Carman has been moving some shacks for Lavin's the past week.

Mr. and Miss Lavin gave a small dance Monday night.

Ed. Knutson, who has been working near Elk Point, has returned to his claim, but—alone.

Mrs. Thompson was a Climax visitor last Friday.

A friend of the writer, wished to announce to Mr. S., that he must be mistaken about what that young lady told him about Mr. P's window in the house. He is sorry to say it, as Mr. S. is not very often (?) mistaken. Now, forget it, please C. S.

John Ruesink called on Will Hazen, Friday.

Mrs. Peterson, who has been spending a few days at the Thompson home, has returned to her home near Ashereek.

Florence Follett called on Sadie Scharff one day last week.

Everette Scharff and Orin Bacon made a trip to the brakes, Thursday.

Comet A 1910

Comet A 1910 has come within 7,000,000 miles of the earth and if at that time its tail was as long as it was last Thursday it would have reached from the earth to the sun.

The exact nature of comets is a question which cannot be easily answered. They are celestial bodies which move in definite orbits around the sun. As they approach our luminary they become bright and develop a tail, which always points away from the sun. This tail is composed of particles of matter and gas, from the body of coma of the comet, which have been liberated by the head of the sun and forced away by the pressure of the flood of light emanating from the sun.

The tail is entirely lost to the comet. One would therefore think it would soon dissipate itself after many returns to the sun. Such seems to be the case. Great interest is now centered in the approach of Halley's comet, and observers are anxious to see if it has retained its former self.

Misses Lindsey and Orr and Mrs. Kumm Entertain

The members of the I. O. O. F. lodge and their wives and the members of the Rebekah and their husbands were entertained at the Northwestern hotel last Thursday evening by Misses Lindsey and Orr and Mrs. H. A. Kumm. Progressive card games were the source of the evening's entertainment. Twenty-four couples engaged in the games. Mrs. E. H. Aldrich won the prize given to the most skillful lady participant, and A. W. Prewitt was awarded the prize given to the gentlemen. Booby prizes, miniature goats on wheels were also distributed to parties who by their record for the evening seemed to the committee deserving of them. It would be unseemly to mention names.

Delicious and appetizing refreshments were served consisting of sandwiches, olives, pickles, coffee, fruit salad, and cake. Sometime near the midnight hour the party broke up with hearty expressions of an enjoyable occasion heard on every hand.

NEW METHODS OF SOCIALISM

Enterprise in European Cities Based on a Hint Taken from the Financial Magnates.

In Europe, if we may believe such a writer and student as Prof. Brooks, the more advanced socialists have practically abandoned the old communism which is still groped after by the noisy socialists of America and have turned to more practical things by developing the infinite forms of co-operative industry.

In Belgium and in many other parts of Europe, as in England, the advanced socialists are to-day the operators. They have taken the hint of the financial magnates and organized co-operative stores, mills, bakeries and so on—in short, formed joint stock companies for the conduct of productive and distributive lines of business for their own benefit and profit.

In the great Austrian capital, Vienna, we find such a socialist venture—a great flouring mill and a bread bakery, known as the "Hammer Bread Works," an association or company of workmen that has some 70,000 members.

The great establishment, which was opened on June 20 last, stands on a site once occupied by a cloister and later by an iron smelter and also a flouring mill. The great building erected by the socialists contains a flouring mill of the most modern type known to Austrian milling, with capacity to supply flour for a bakery turning out about 150,000 pounds of bread daily, "and then some," the mill marketing a large part of its products directly in the form of flour.

The bakery in its turn is also a model of its kind with great, cheerful, clean and cleanable workrooms and the most advanced machinery for manufacturing bread with the least possible manual labor or contact with human hands, the movable parts of the machinery all getting power from electric motors. Cleanliness and perfection of the products is the aim.—Bakers' Weekly.

Whistling and Work.

Whistling has been called an evidence of cheerfulness. But most normal persons will pronounce the cheerful whistler an unmitigated nuisance. It is not to be assumed that the cheerful whistler is a willing worker—upon the contrary, whistling may be taken as evidence presumptive of a vacant mind. The art of whistling is difficult. The artistic whistler is an expert and commands money at the ticket office. The ordinary unconscious whistler drives unwilling hearers to distraction. He is an irritant.

This explains why an applicant for a position was rejected at the office to which he was recommended. Not only did he whistle while waiting, but he whistled "Auld Lang Syne." The employer decided promptly that the whistler would not fill the job. Perhaps had the whistler whistled "A Hot Time," and whistled it well, his selection of a tune would have been regarded as an indication of an alert disposition, of readiness to think and act quickly, of ability to hustle, and to make his surroundings colorful by fiction with hard work. But his selection of an air of sentimental reminiscence caused the inference that his mind was dwelling in the past rather than in the living, active present.

Wanted—A Cotton Picker.

"The man who invents a practical cotton picking machine will not only have as great a money maker as the Standard Oil Company, but he will completely revolutionize industrial and farm conditions in every southern state," said John Boyle of Montgomery, Ala., at the New Willard.

"Such a machine would at once do away with the field hands who gather the cotton. They are all negroes. Several millions of them depend mainly on this work each year for support for the rest of the year, and if they were to lose employment they would have to seek other work, which means that there would be a great migration of them to the factory towns of the northern states in search of employment. The cotton crop simply would not be gathered now if it were not for the black labor.

"I suppose a thousand different inventors have tried their hands at making a cotton picker, but so far not a single one of them has proved a success. The baffling part of such a mechanical device is in arranging a mechanism that can pluck out the cotton from the spiky boll which contains it, without also seizing the boll."

The American Woman's Curiosity.

"The American woman's intellectual characteristic is curiosity. One feels she would like to have ten pairs of eyes so as to see everything, ten pairs of ears so as to hear everything. . . . When I sit down at table beside an American woman of Paris, she immediately asks me: 'Have you seen such and such a play? Have you been to such and such an art exhibition? What do you think of this novel or of that philosophical or historical book recently published?' . . . And I am forced to admit that I have not seen the latest play, that for more than ten years I have not set my foot inside the annual 'salons,' that I read slowly and carefully, and am therefore forced to read but few books. And I know my American neighbor feels great disdain for my inactivity. . . . Still I have infinite sympathy for her charming and universal intellectual curiosity; only long experience has taught me that man's head cannot contain too many ideas at once."—Marcel Prevost in Shannon's News.

The Why of It

The virgin soil of Stanley county and advantageous climatic conditions combined make this an ideal wheat country. Analysis shows this wheat to contain an exceedingly high percentage of GLUTEN, and correspondingly low percentage of STARCH, which is quite the reverse of that obtained when analyzing wheat grown on the "over cropped" soils farther east.

In breadmaking a generous quantity of GLUTEN is absolutely required to make a large spongy loaf of nutritious quality. That is why
