supported, believing them to be sound and conservative, and as experience has proven, the best guaranty of good government, and a prosperous and happy people.

CONCLUSION.

For fear of being tiresome to you, I have declined alluding to any other topic of State policy than that of the Currency, the prevailing question, aware however, that there are others both of a local and general nature, that will demand the serious attention of your Legislature.

You will please, Gentlemen, consult your real good—The Public Interest, in selecting an agent to legislate for you; and should I be your choice, the best pledge I can offer for the faithful discharge of the duties that may devolve on me, are sameness of interest, my habits of life and past conduct for many years among you. With sentiments of high esteem I have the honor to remain,

Your obedient servant,

J. R. SLATTER.

"Pledged to no Party's arbitrary sway,
We follow Truth where'er she leads the way."

LOCAL

Our town has been crowded this week with visitors—some in attendance upon the examinations, and some came to hear the speaking between the Candidates for Governor. We had looked forward with much anxiety to hear this speaking, but when the opportunity came we were too unwell to attend. We understand that it passed off quite harmoniously, and the friends of each candidate were fully satisfied and alike sanguine of the election of their favorite. On the occasion referred to, the candidates were stationed in the beautiful grove belonging to Jno. T. Slatter, where seats and a good stand had previously been provided. We don't believe another place can be found in Tennessee as suitable and in every way as comfortable for such demonstrations as this grove. It seems to have been grown especially for public out door gatherings.

We understand that the fair sex were present, and they too had their preferences between the distinguished opponents for the Governorship of our State. Several bouquets were presented to Gov. Harris by the ladies, and to offset this the lady friends of Col. Netherland presented him a beautiful bouquet, which presentation was performed by Mr. Bennett, a young man of our town, and pupil of Carrick Academy. Both presentations were responded to in nice and appropriate style by the recipients of these tokens of regard.

As to the candidates themselves, we believe they get along more amicably than any two candidates we have had for a long time. They seem to be good friends and exhibit their feelings wherever they go. This is comme il faut, and ought to characterize candidates more than is generally the case.

THE RISING GENERATION.—We met up with a little boy several days since in the twelfth year of his age, who had under his arms a bundle of periodicals. He asked us to purchase a paper, naming over a number of the illustrated works published in the North. The extreme modesty of the youth, and his polite bearing created in us an interest in his behalf. His name we learned to be Isaac, and we further learned that his earnings that day amounted to $1.40.

He was only allowed 3 cents profit on each paper, thus requiring the sale 48 papers to make for himself that amount. Upon further inquiry we learned that by this means he supported a mother and sister. That little fellow is an honor to any community, and will some day make his mark.—Nashville Gazette.

We have in the good town of Winchester many little boys who ought to be doing something in the form of work, instead of running round the streets doing nothing. We never see a boy working at any labor, but that we feel like encouraging him. Let him pick up chips, clean off the streets pull weeds out of the yards, peddle apples and chestnuts, or do any sort of work rather than nothing.

But some mothers are too proud to send their little boys around town to pull up weeds, pick up chips, shell corn, &c. How foolish! Is not a dime thus made worth as much as one made in any other manner? And by encouraging your child to look with disgust on such labor, you do much to render him, when grown, a vain, self-conceited, foolish, "no count," man.—Let your boy work! And whip him if you see he has unfortunately inherited or imbibed a disgust for labor like that we have mentioned. Don't allow him to lounge about town in the way of industrious people, until his laziness shall become a second nature. Remember that nearly, if not all the most distinguished men and millionaires of our land, are those who spurned not honest labor when young—and who possessed nothing to start upon, save "Low birth and iron fortune."

We attended the closing exercises of Winchester Female Seminary last evening, and may write something about it in our next.

SUICIDE.

Mr. Wallace E. Walker, a citizen of our town, and well known to most of the people in the county, committed suicide last Monday by shooting himself with a pistol. The ball entered his temple and passed through the head into a rail close by.

Mr. Walker had not been in his right mind for near two years, but no one apprehended that he thought of destroying his life. On the morning referred to, he was met by several ladies, to whom he very politely spoke, at the same time carrying the pistol in one of his hands with the muzzle down, as if to guard against its going off to the injury of any one who might be around. He proceeded to a grove on the West side of town, and there put an end to his existence. To the grove, we are informed, he had frequently repaired in company with a young man who worked in the same shop with him, and they would there practice with the pistol. A morning or two previous he borrowed the weapon from his friend, but exhibited no sign that could have been taken as indicative of his intention.

He was a clever, honorable, industrious, sober and moral man, and had ever acted in our community so as to win the esteem of every one, so far as we know. He was a saddler and harness maker, we believe, by trade, but we remember of his working at the cabinet business, and at painting. Doubtless he followed each of these callings, in order to divert his mind from the burden that seemed to oppress it. What that burden was, we surmise that no one is aware. We have frequently been in conversation with him and heard him talk about a person being happy "if he had never sinned against nature." What he meant by this expression, we could never learn. He frequently spoke in this strain, and seemed ever to be remembering with regret something of which he alone on earth was cognizant. In conversation he was quite interesting, and we have often been glad to have a chat with him, and we never knew him to utter a sentiment which, if heeded would not make one better, if not happier. He was always found at church and at prayer meetings, and seemed to delight in doing good so far as he was capable.

But he is gone, and perhaps is better off, for he has shown by his act that he would rather trust to the dark uncertainty of death's estate, than live a life of unhappiness. Strange, that with all the means which God has placed within our reach for being happy, there are some unable to make those means answer their purpose. Men may call him insane, but how do they know? Thereby is room for thought.

Mr. Walker leaves a mother and a wife in our midst.

THE ROAD TO BEERSHEBA.—The road to Beersheba is now in better condition than it has been for sometime. We are informed that it is in fine condition. Col. Price intends putting on the route from here to Beersheba, an excellent line of four horse coaches, managed by experienced and careful drivers. After the fifteenth of this month, two trains will be run on the McMinnville and Manchester road, thus avoiding delays either at Tullahoma or this place.—McMinnville Era.

But still your road is not equal to the route via Sewanee, and we surmise that any money expended in the improvement of your road is so much wasted, so far as it is expended to secure Beersheba travel. Everybody will go by the Sewanee Mining Co's rail road in nice cars instead of going by your way up the mountain in stage coaches, be those coaches ever so fine. Besides, Col. Price will also run a line of fine four horse coaches to Tracy City, only 16 miles from Beersheba, and there will meet the passengers over the Sewanee railroad. Col. P. has positively arranged to do this, and we assure all travelers that, (in the language of the New Era several weeks since) "no pains have been spared to render the route from Tracy city to Beersheba, attractive. And we say to all, if you would save time, save expense, save trouble, and save 16 miles of travel; and if you would avoid a dangerous mountain ascent, and if you would see the site of the great University of the South, and see lovely scenery go by the Tracy city route!

DISTINGUISHED NUPTIALS.—Ex. Gov. H. S. FOOTE, was the other day married to Mrs. RACHEL D. SMILEY, of Nashville, Tenn. The happy pair left on the evening train for Vicksburg.

An unfortunate husband of our acquaintance, having been deprived of his charming wife, who had left for parts unknown, thus gives vent to his feelings through the medium of a public advertisement:

"My wife has left her bed and board,
For a few days—few days;
She sloped from here on her accord,
While I was away from home.

I warn the world that no amount,
Now-a-days, now-a-days;
Will I pay on the jade's account,
For home she'll never come."

CROPS.

The Dallas (Texas) Herald of the 1st of June says: "We hear on all sides the most cheering accounts of the crops; it is thought the wheat was never better than at present. The quality will make up the deficiency in quantity, although the crop is an average one.

We have seen recently some of the finest fields of oats that we have ever known in any country, perfectly free from rust and the numerous ills that beset the crop last year.

Corn has seldom looked finer at this season of the year; and much larger crops have been planted than were ever done in this county.

The farmers,—many of them, have on hand a surplus of last year's wheat; and there is no way of getting it off by Ox (s) team navigation, to points at which flour is scarce, and where it will bear a good price. We make a prolonged sigh for the Railroad, while we are on this subject, and "wish it were here."

MARRY AN EDITOR.—What do our readers think of the editor who could give this answer to a correspondent? "Jennie—Ministers are not more addicted to dissipation than the men of other professions. A few of the Kalloch tape gun toddies and liberties with females, but the great majority of them are as good as lawyers and doctors: If you want a true Christian, marry an editor."

James Williams, an African, died in Augusta recently at the remarkable age of 115 years.—Ex. Paper.

This is the first one-hundred-year old negro who has died within the last twenty years that wasn't the nurse of GEORGE WASHINGTON. About a thousand of his nurses have died within that time, and quite a number are still living.

THE DOOM OF AUSTRIA.—Retreating already into Lombardy, the Austrian army is likely to have a warm reception there. Garibaldi, with a chosen corps of his Italian volunteers, has plunged into the heart of the Austrian dominions of Italy, to raise Lombardy in insurrection. He was approaching Milan; and Milan is about as well-affected to Austria as Limerick is to England. The giant struggle now begins in earnest; and in addition to Austria and Sardinia, a fourth power now appears in the field—glorious Italy! All the non-belligerant powers are looking on now with breathless eagerness to see, not whether France or Austria is to prevail, but whether a resurrection of the Nation is to dawn over that red field; and the tender and philanthropic heart of England is now Austrian to the inmost soul; and if she does not yet openly take a part in the fray, it is solely because she dares not. Italy and Hungary are stirred this moment with all the passion of '48. The Pope, like a good christian prelate, is preparing to quit Rome and find a quieter home for a time. Europe gives herself a shake in her chains, and the reconstruction of the map of that Continent commences. Austria is doomed to disappear.—Southern Citizen, Washington.

J. O. SHACKLEFORD.—We announce the name of this gentleman, to day, as a candidate for Attorney General and Reporter, to supply the place made vacant by the resignation of John L. T. Sneed. Election to come off on the 12th of August next.

The Lebanon Herald says:—"Mr. Shackleford is now, and has been for the last 16 years, the law partner of Maj G. A. Henry. He is a gentleman of unblemished moral character, and is eminently qualified in every particular for the responsible position to which he aspires."

THE ARMY WORM.—The Greeneville (Tenn.) Democrat learns that the army worm have made their appearance in great squads on some of the plantations on Nola Chuckey river in Greene county. One family were driven out of their house by them. The house was surrounded by a clover field and they became so numerous that the bedding and everything else about the house was so infested as to render endurance impossible.

JUDGE TANEY ON SLAVERY.—In the case of the slave, Amy, decided a few days since, Chief Justice Taney has furnished a written decision, in which he asserts the following great legal principles touching the institution of slavery in the United States:

1. That slaves are recognized by the Constitution of the United States in the charter of persons.
2. That slaves are represented in Congress as persons.
3. That as persons, they are, in many instances, at least, subject to certain liabilities, and invested with the rights corresponding to those liabilities, in the same way that other persons are.
4. That among these liabilities are those which render them amenable to trial and punishment for crimes and misdemeanors; and among these rights is the right of legal protection against personal injury.
5. That the Constitution of the United States also recognizes slavery as property.
6. "As property, the right of owners are entitled to the protection of the law," i. e. the laws of the United States, enacted by Congress.

ELECTION TICKETS.—We notice that in some places the friends of Candidates for office, settle the cost of the tickets. Guess we know a few candidates who wouldn't object to see this practice inaugurated here.

BRING FLOWERS.

BY COL. G. LEANDER EBERHART.

Bring flowers, sweet flowers,
To lay on her breast,
For the soul of our loved one
Has gone to its rest.

Bring flowers, bring flowers,
To strew o'er her bier;
But let us first hallow
Each bud with a tear.

Let us deck her pale brow
With roses' sweet bloom,
Ere the loved is carried
Away to the tomb.

Let us kiss her fair cheek,
And those eyes of blue,
Where her love once sparkled
So brilliantly through.

No more will her laughter,
So mellow and clear,
Come like sweetest music
To gladden my ear

No more the dear angel
Love-ditties will sing;
Nor roam o'er the meadows
Sweet flowers to bring.

Then fold her hands over
Her innocent breast,
And solemnly bear her
Away to her rest.

Bear her down to the dell,
And bury her there,
Where the sweet birdies sing
In the perfumed air;

And where the tall willow,
Its branches shall lave,
In the murmuring brook
That sings by her grave.

NASHVILLE, TENN., May 1859.

BLACKBERRIES, &c.

We have taken pains to notice, during several little trips in the country, and were surprised to see the great quantity, many of which are getting ripe. Never before in our life have we seen so good a promise of a large yield. Oh! the blackberry tarts, pies, cordial, &c., which will be made this year! And who don't like blackberries! And as we shall go to house keeping in a few days, won't we have lots of 'em made up into pies and sich! We intend to have blackberry pie if we don't have anything else. We always were fond of this delicious esculent. And blackberry jam is mighty good, too. In fact, blackberries fixed up in any way are good.

And it is nice to hunt blackberries, too. Just get up a crowd of girls, and go the fields,—ain't it delicious! Were you ever in such a scrape! It's a "cheap nicer" an pie nics. The girls romp about under the briars and over 'em, sometimes getting one hung to their dresses, and forthwith your gallantry is called into requisition to undo them, which you do speedily, while your heart almost beats itself at the rates of 2 40 as you hold the delicate fabric in your hand while detaching the briar, and if perchance the fair one's hand is punctured by the unruly thorn, and a little drop of her precious sweet blood, like wine, comes oozing through the pores of the snow-white skin, how you sympathize and try to soothe. You bind it a moment with your handkerchief—stop the blood—she thanks you, and on you go after more blackberries. Oh! how nice! And why don't the girls and boys in Winchester give more attention to this subject. As the season is close at hand for such parties as these we trust many will be formed, and if we have any spare time from the numerous duties of our office, we intend to hunt lots of blackberries. We will that! Talk about going North to Canada, to Saratoga, Newport, or to that loveliest of all watering places—Beersheba in our own SState—one can stay right here in Winchester and be as happy and see as much pleasure as he ought to see. Nature has placed the means within our reach for enjoyment in Winchester equal to enjoyment to be found anywhere else, and it is all our own fault if we do not avail ourselves of those means.

And just now we hear many persons saying: "Won't Winchester be dull for the next two months!" And almost every one responds "yes," just because the school girls are going away. Now that's all fudge, especially in the boys and widowers. You know you couldn't go with the school girls while they were here, and you only have lost the pleasure it affords you to see their sweet faces at church and public gatherings, and of some times seeing them trip along the street. Then our own home girls are good enough, and pretty enough—just as good and pretty as any of 'em; and its no use, but mean, to be gazing and hunting after flowers that grow in other climes, when just as sweet bloom in our native dell.

The season continues delightfully refreshing and animating to the hopes of the farmer. Crops generally are fine, thus far. The wheat panic has entirely exhausted itself, and good crops are an acknowledged fact. We learn that some of our farmers have already cut their Wheat and pronounce it well filled and heavy grain, the rust having only slightly touched the blade.—Sparta Times.
