

Whole System Is Benefited by Tanlac

Thousands of frail, nervous people and convalescents everywhere have testified to the remarkable power of Tanlac in bringing back their health, strength and working efficiency. It seems to quickly invigorate the constipated, and is a powerful foe of weakness. Mrs. George G. Owen, of Salem, Oregon, says:

"My nerves were upset and the little I ate wasn't enough to keep up my strength, so I lost weight and became so weak it seemed I had no energy at all. Tanlac restored my health completely, and I gained twelve pounds in weight."

There is not a single portion of the body that is not benefited by the helpful action of Tanlac. It enables the stomach to turn food into healthy blood, bone and muscle, purifies the system and helps you back to normal weight. Get a bottle today at any good druggist.—Advertisement.

Tennessee EVENTS

Happenings over the State condensed for our busy readers

TENNESSEE RANKS THIRD.

Two States Surpass Tennessee in Use of Hydro-Electric Power.

Nashville.—Tennessee ranks third in hydroelectric power production of all the southern states, according to figures just issued by the United States Geological Survey, covering the months of March, April, May, June and July of 1922.

The division of power resources on the geological survey lists Georgia and Alabama as the only other southern states surpassing Tennessee in the utilization of hydro-electric power resources. The survey figures indicate that Tennessee water power plants have had no diminution of production due to low water.

Figures gathered by the survey on the quantity of power production in Tennessee from coal show the hydro-electric production to be 70 per cent of the state's total kilowatt production. For the five months total of 203,526 kilowatt hours, 51,248 kilowatts were produced by fuel.

One interesting deduction from the geological survey figures is the amount of saving "the white coal" has meant at this time. The survey figures show that 98,569 short tons of coal were required over the five months period to produce 57,248 kilowatt hours generated in the electrical steam plants.

Visiting Preachers Heard.

Ripley.—The pulpit of the First Methodist Church was filled recently by Rev. W. L. Drake of Arlington, Ky., who is a guest of his brothers, R. Y. and S. B. Drake, in Ripley. Rev. Drake is a native of Lauderdale County and his friends were delighted to hear him. At night Rev. W. F. Barrier of Binghamton preached. He was in the city on a visit to his daughter, Mrs. J. A. Hutcheson.

Low Fair Rates.

Memphis.—A pro-war level in round trip rates from certain points in Arkansas to Memphis on account of the Tri-State Fair has been announced by H. D. Wilson, division passenger agent. The rates will apply from Little Rock and intermediate stations, from Pine Bluff and intermediate stations, and from Helena and intermediate stations, and will be one and one-third for the round trip.

Ginning Under Way.

Trezevant.—The ginning season has opened up in earnest here, and local gin plants are running right along. The cotton crop is opening up several days earlier than usual, and most all farmers are now engaged in picking their crop and as fast as they get wagon loads gathered they haul it to the local market, where they are receiving good prices for the same.

Boy Falls Under Train.

Covington.—Luther Emmons, the 16-year-old son of Frank Emmons, who lives near the Tipton Cotton Mills in South Covington, was seriously injured when, according to his statement, he stumbled and fell beneath the wheels of a passing southbound Illinois Central freight train a short distance south of the cotton mills.

Fair at Jackson.

Jackson.—The West Tennessee Fair had a most auspicious opening with several thousand visitors in the city. The biggest celebration of this kind ever held in Jackson is expected this year. Many surrounding counties have county exhibits at the fair and are competing for a community and county prize.

Great Revival Closes.

Lexington.—West Shiloh Baptist Church, on the western border of Shiloh National Park, has experienced one of the greatest revivals in its history, which was brought to a close recently. There were 33 professions and 29 additions to the church. Rev. Pleasant Hall of this place did the preaching.

Offered New Pastorate.

Lexington.—Rev. J. E. McPeake of Warrens Bluff, this county, has been tendered the pastorate of the Baptist Church at Doyle, Tenn., and also the presidency of the Doyle Institute, a Baptist preparatory school maintained at that place.

Man is Found Dead.

Covington.—The body of Harwood Cary, a well known citizen of Covington, was found in the crib of his barn near here. Mr. Cary's body was lying at full length on the floor of the crib, his right arm being extended at right angles to the body and a double-barreled shotgun, which gave evidence of having been recently fired, was lying across his right arm. A gunshot wound in the upper part of his head was the cause of death, and circumstances indicated that it was a self-inflicted wound.

A SILENT MEMBER

By MOLLIE MATHER

(© 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

Patience took stock of herself, contemptuously.

"If there was just one thing that I could do perfectly," she thought, "as it is, I'm an indifferent musician, a fair—well, hardly fair typist and I can plan or create dresses much better than I can sew them."

Wistfully she repeated her thought to her busy sister Rosalind, when Rosalind came in from the music classes. Absently, her mind on the dull pupils she had left, the sister made answer.

"Don't worry your head, Patty; you will come into your own, some day." "And in the long wait," Patience replied, "I'm inflicted upon you, Rosalind. Because your friends are as generous as yourself, it really no reason that I should burden the firm."

A laughing face appeared in the doorway of the little flat. "Firm!" repeated the newcomer, "what a pretentious name for three unreasonably ambitious students."

Beatrice came into the room. "Dearest girl," she seriously addressed Patty, "you are the silent member of our firm; we just couldn't get along at all without your bright presence. You are the flower in the desert, the courage in despair. Is dinner ready? Lucy May jumps slower every day."

Patty jumped up from theavenport. "I'll see," she offered. Lucy May in the small kitchen said: "No, dinner ain't ready."

Patty was placing the cloth for the evening meal. "I am trying to hurry things up," she promised.

"I have been speaking at the Y. W.," Beatrice explained, "and I have a talk at the high school this evening. I am sure I do not know how I shall ever get my notes in order for the talk at the federated clubs tomorrow. And then there is my blue satin, in woeful need of pressing—"

"Oh, I'll do that for you," Patty called. She was putting the roses on the table. "Dinner ready," she cheerfully announced.

"How," asked Beatrice at table, "went the classes today, Rosalind?" "The Baldwin children," Rosalind answered—"and of course my most desirable pupils from a financial standpoint, are at times, almost impossible."

Breadly, Nan, the ever late, entered. "I have designed a perfectly wonderful dress for Mrs. Rich Combs," she began enthusiastically, "but there is a detail about the front panel which does not please her. We almost came to blows, regarding lines. I deserted, making dinner a pretense for departure, but tomorrow I shall have to go over the whole thing again."

The flat vacated that evening, the busy friends going on to various affairs that claimed their presence. Patience, humming her gay little song, examined carefully Nan's drawing of the disputed creation. Then, happily, Patty smiled, while her sure fingers traced a copy. The panel referred to was undoubtedly improved in the effort. Beatrice had left her notes of tomorrow's talk in a confusing pile on her dresser. Patty attacked them, a frown of perplexity wrinkling her pretty brow. The typewriter was humming, when a dark head appeared in the doorway.

"I will be very good, and read my paper in quiet," begged a masculine voice, if you will let me come in, Patty. You are, I see—"the man smiled, "idling as usual. Where are the celebrities?"

"Sit down, David," the girl carelessly invited, "I'll be through with this, in a moment. It's coming out fine."

"Whatever is it?" David remarked inquiringly, but he was not informed. Beatrice's notes, neatly labeled, were in her club book, when Patty returned to the room.

"You will be glad to be alone for another little minute, won't you, David," she asked tentatively, "while I—I have something to press in the kitchen?"

"Of course," he answered.

Apologetically she sent herself before the telephone stand.

"I thought," she explained, "it might be better to give the message this evening, so I could have the children over early—just after Rosalind goes out. She gives a few home lessons in the morning, and the Baldwin children are difficult, David. They just must not spoil the musical; and their mother must be pleased, and proud of them. I can make the drill song a sort of game. You know I am not expert in music, David—or in any other thing."

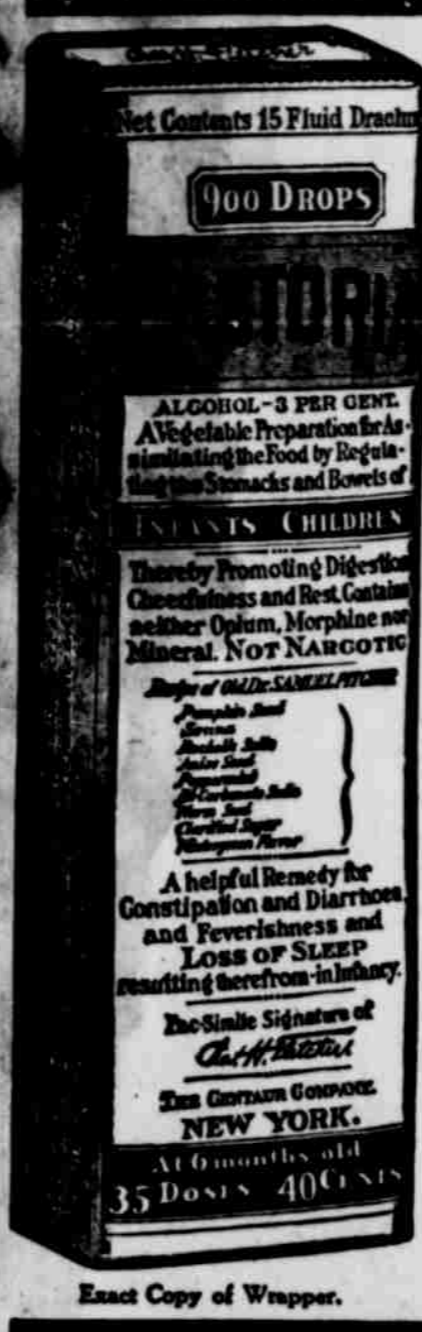

Patty's voice was momentarily doleful. But only momentarily. "I will have those children, enjoying that drill," she enthused. "You'll see, David." Sighing in relief, she looked back at him, as she arose.

"It is settled," Patience said, "the Baldwin children will be here in the morning. Now that is a secret, and you are not to tell. I, you know, am the silent partner of our otherwise gifted firm—of four."

Very deliberately the man folded his paper, then, before Patty could realize what had happened, he had her in his arms.

"And I am looking for a silent partner myself," he said after a happy silence. "Patty, darling, there is no use your trying to refuse me; the husband of our firm will be an appreciative member—"

"I'm not thinking of refusing," said Patience demurely.

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for Infants and Children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this:—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

TABLET MANY CENTURIES OLD MARSHAL FOCH'S FIRST PIPE BELIEVED IN "EARLY TO BED"

Recent Find at York, England, Declared to Be Most Important of Recent Times.

An ancient Roman tablet, said to be about 2,000 years old, has been discovered by workmen who were excavating for a new street on The Mount at York, England. The tablet is in a perfect state of preservation, the carving and lettering being as distinct as when first cut. The inscription lauds the virtues of the wife and family of a famous Roman author. The stone, which is over five feet high, is two inches thick and is made of a soft material, similar to the stone used in building the minster. It was buried to a depth of five feet. Near the site were also found the casts of two men of the Roman period. Corporation officials state that this discovery is the most important of recent times. The ancient church of St. James' originally stood on the site. A new archbishop on his way to be consecrated in olden times, had to walk from this church to the minster in his hose. He usually rode from Bishopthorpe to The Mount, and was there joined by the clergy, who always robed at St. James' church. The church disappeared several centuries ago.

What He Wanted.

A Frenchman and his wife came to England. She had relatives at Manchester, so it was arranged that he should take her there, returning by himself to London, where he had business. His request to the booking office clerk was as follows: "Give me, if you please, two tickets to Manchester. One for me, to go and to come back. One for my wife, to go but not to come back."—London Tit-Bits.

Such as give ear to slanderers are worse than slanderers themselves.

French General Discarded Cigarettes When Great Offensive Against German Enemy Began.

The truth about Foch's famous pipe came out also on the Metz trip. It was on the way home, and the marshal was dining in M. Poincare's private car. After dinner the prime minister said: "Pray smoke your pipe if you like, marshal." The soldier pulled a beautiful case, containing two handsome pipes, from his pocket. As the chief of state commented on their beauty, he said they were given to him by a group of American artists. "Have you been smoking a pipe for long?" asked Poincare. "My first pipe was on July 18, 1918." "The very day you began the offensive that led to victory?" exclaimed Poincare. "Yes, the cigarettes were fearful at the time, so I took to the pipe, like everybody else." And that is the true story of the famous "peace pipe" of Marshal Foch, if we can trust Le Sufflet.

Who First Licked Stamps?

Dispute is being waged as to the earliest postage stamp lick. Claim is put forward for James Chalmers of Arbroath, Scotland, who submitted specimens of adhesive postage stamps to a select committee of the house of commons in 1834. Rowland Hill is also credited with the invention, having experimented with glutinous washes in 1837. As Rowland Hill directed the British postal arrangements, he was probably the first man to lick a genuine post office stamp.

Nice Enough to Eat.

"Seen the black hats trimmed with white curlyques?" "Yes, they look like chocolate cakes with icing."

Small Town Evidently No Place for Individual Accustomed to the City's Bright Lights.

Recently two newspaper correspondents were sent to the coal fields in Clay county, where martial law has been declared, and in the evening they wandered to a small village near the fields in an effort to find some entertainment.

After walking up and down Main street several times, the correspondents sighted a public drinking fountain. It was then nine o'clock. On examination they found that the drinking fountains had been locked by the town official for the night. Then they headed for a drug store and found the proprietor locking up for the night. On inquiry they were told that "it is past nine o'clock."

One correspondent said to the other: "Well, Mack, do you suppose the hotel is closed for the night?" "I don't know," the other replied, "but I think we had better get to bed before they move the curbstones in."—Indianapolis News.

Monkeys.

Craveth Wells, explorer, while tramping in Malay jungles, found that the natives had trained broks, small monkeys, to run up trees and pick coconuts for them.

That is interesting because it happens far away. But, shucks! In our country the monkeys' descendants have been trained to do "a heap sight" more than the broks.

You have noticed in a circus menagerie that the monkeys are just as interested in us as we are in them. This is one of the reasons.

The potato bug originated near the eastern foothills of the Rockies.

The Cap that never fits

"NO harm can come to me from coffee or tea," is what so many people say. Yet those same people are often quick to note the signs of coffee harm in others.

How familiar the danger signals are—upset digestion, sleepless nights and irritability—all warnings of the nervous breakdown that lurks just a little way ahead. How easy and how delightful the escape—by drinking delicious Instant Postum instead of the beverages that contain the irritant caffeine.

Instant Postum is the tempting cereal drink made from roasted wheat. It is prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Its snappy flavor is not unlike that of coffee.

It is safe for everybody in your household including the children, and there's nothing in Postum to keep you awake even if you drink it at midnight.
