Here is Quick Relief

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home.

Get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex from any drugstore, pour it into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, whooping cough or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its healing effect on the membranes. Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. "My little boy, James, took sick with diarrhea, about five years ago, and was badly swollen. He had the measles and this was, no doubt, an after-effect. I made him well by giving him Theodor's Black-Draught. I gave it to him three times a day for a month. I firmly believe it saved his life.

We always keep Black-Draught in our house. It is our doctor. Always easy to get and prompt in giving relief.

A small pinch of Black-Draught after each meal and at bed time for headache, stomach and liver trouble, and we are well the next morning.

WIGGINS GIVES PLACE TO JOYOUS KING OF CARNIVAL

All Memphis on Streets Celebrating the World at Peace and Democracy in Victory Over Autocracy.

NOISE WAS KEYNOTE OF VAST CELEBRATION

Parade Dissolves Into Sections Churches Hold Thankgiving Services--Theaters Take Part--Little Disorder.

Dignity was dethroned in Memphis Monday night and the joyous king of carnival usurped his place. For the world was at peace, democracy had won a signal victory over autocracy and all Memphis was on the streets to fittingly celebrate the event. And if noise and laughter were keynote of happiness never in the city's history was such a merry crowd on the streets and never was a momentous event more fittingly observed.

Men, women and children weaved through the streets, shouting, singing, throwing powder and confetti, blowing whistles and horns, beating on drums, tin pans—anything that would make a noise. For noise was the paramount feature of the evening. There was little music and no dignity in the racket that made a veritable pandemonium of Main street, but there was a great deal of enthusiasm and patriotism and high spirits, and everyone was satisfied.

A huge sign with a deep border of black adorned the city company's plant Monday. It read: "Closed for the day to attend the funeral of Kaiser Bill. Interment in Potter's field."

And the funeral was concluded Monday night. For down the street drove a big float with a nurse black coffin resting on it. The casket bore this line: "The Kaiser's Last Submarine."

But noise—lots of noise—was the real keynote of the celebration and every conceivable type of racket was heard very much in evidence. "Dime stores" were raided during the day and scores of small frying pans and tin cans and brass instruments made ideal castanets. One man dragged a big garbage can down the street to act as a sounding board for an electric horn. A miniature bathtub suspended from a pole was carried on the shoulders of two men who were armed with huge clubs, imitating a boiler factory. Two boys who had placed a washtub in a wheelbarrow had beaten that once useful article out of all semblance of shape. One man found a lard can lid in the street and it made a beautiful racket as he kicked it down the street. He used the lid for a football for several blocks.

It was a merry, good-humored crowd and the man who could make the most noise was the ideal celebrant.

An attempt at a systematic parade was quickly frustrated by the celebrants for hundreds who had not been counted in on the parade line-up insisted upon marching, and soon the regular parade dissolved into sections, each section added to by scores of enthusiasts. But that was the kind of parade that the crowds wanted and the crowds ruled Memphis Monday night. Now and then a big silken banner, for America or France, Italy or England was carried by and then only was there a strain of seriousness in the celebrating. For thousands of heads were instantly bared and the crowds stood at reverent attention while the flags went past.

Little Disorder. But in all the shouting and singing and boisterous noise making, whereby the crowds vented their good spirits, there was little or no disorder. Now and then the horseplay among a group of men or boys would grow too rough, but this quickly subsided.

All of the joy of victory, however, did not take the form of grotesque sound, for at St. Mary's cathedral, men and women assembled to return thanks to God for the wonderfully complete victory that had won for America, France, Italy and the British Empire.

The night's celebration was but a continuation on a larger scale of the night's observance of victory. For all day long crowds thronged the streets, shouting, singing and making all the noise that lay within their power. City hall and courthouse offices closed early, as did many restaurants and shops. Hundreds of workers were added to the merry-makers. Hundreds refused to leave the downtown district to go to their homes for the evening meal and restaurants did a flourishing business.

At an early hour in the evening the section to resume the celebration, and until long into the morning hours the joyification held sway.

Victory had come and Memphis fitly observed their triumph. Four-minute men in theaters Monday night stirred their audiences to wild enthusiasm by their recitations of a Loew's Lyceum Rev. W. E. Clark, Unitarian minister, told his hearers, and vociferous cheerers, that he wanted to see William Hohenzollern and his six sons sentenced to life work in the depths of the Belgian coal mines as retribution for their crimes against the honest and hard-working man.

He warned his listeners to be cautious of the German who had been proclaimed in certain municipalities, until it was an absolute established fact that "the boys" over there would have to police the country for several months before coming home.

Rev. Clark's four-minute talk was preceded by a series of patriotic songs, participated in by the audiences, who rose to their feet and raised forth "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," "Over There" and "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Cheer after cheer was given for President Wilson and Gen. Pershing, Foch, Haig, Petain and Diaz, while Loew's Current Events were portraying moving picture scenes at the battle front in France.

From a police angle the night was also a busy one. Three alleged foot-pads were nabbed by officers on complaint of celebrants, who claimed they were robbed. Most of the entire day and night forces were placed on Main street to direct traffic.

Only one accident, however, marred the enthusiasm on Main street although 500 automobiles participated in the parade. Paul M. Acers, butcher, 618 East Trigg avenue, and Minnie Baker, 910 Florida street, were hurt when a speeding auto, whose driver pinned them against a Florida street car at Jackson Mound avenue.

Acers was taken to St. Joseph's hospital in Thompson Bros.' ambulance in a serious condition. The auto was numbered 25822, police say, and records show this car as belonging to W. E. McEwen, route No. 4. Three occupants of the car sprang out following the accident and disappeared.

CAR SMASHES WAGON; DRIVER NEAR DEATH

Edward Turk, 226 Iowa avenue, was probably fatally injured at 7:30 o'clock Monday night when a Jackson Mound car struck his wagon as it crossed the tracks at Illinois avenue and Pennsylvania street, throwing him against a boiler. He has not regained consciousness, and physicians say his chances for recovery are slim. Witnesses told the police Turk was going north on Pennsylvania street at the time. The horse he was driving was instantly killed and the wagon demolished. Turk's skull is fractured. Emergency Officers Taylor and White made an investigation. There have been no other accidents.

PEACE DESCENDS UPON BATTLEFIELD

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN BELGIUM, Nov. 12. (By the Associated Press.)—Peace descended like a mantle over the battle front at 11 o'clock yesterday morning. The last big gun crashed its challenge and a brief overpowering quiet replaced turmoil, death and destruction. Almost coincident with the signing of the armistice by the desperate enemy, the city of Mons capitulated before the British pressure. On this hallowed ground the troops now are resting on their arms, happy in the thought of the fitness of their final triumph. They had driven the enemy out by the same gateway through which they had entered. Field Marshal von Kluck hurled their great armies against the valiant little force of "knickerbockers" in 1914. The population of Mons today paraded the streets, cheering madly their deliverance. Their cries had reached the ears of the Germans outside the walls of the town. Punctually at 11 o'clock the firing ceased. Fleets of British airplanes dropped showers of signal lights which descended upon the momentous message to those below.

BURN LESS LIGHT

The co-operation given by our patrons last night made it possible for us to furnish light to every home in the city. Of course the number of people down town was also a great factor in the reduction of the amount of power required for residence lighting.

Tonight Is the Critical Time

It will be the test. Burn as few lamps as possible, and if your lights go out for a moment reduce still further, for it will be a warning that your circuit is carrying more than its share, and unless a reduction comes at once it will be necessary to cut out all lights on your circuit for the remainder of the night.

To Business Houses

When you close tonight turn out all display and decorative lights. See that your porters in cleaning up burn as little light as possible. By complying with this request you will help to make it possible to keep light in your home.
