

A Parallel.

Let us for a few moments use a parallel between two States which may be called the representative States of the North-west and South-west. Tennessee and Ohio—both distinguished for their native resources, fine soil and climate, and enterprising population. In territorial area Tennessee has the advantage of Ohio, the former containing 45,600 square miles, and the latter, only 39,964 square miles, Tennessee having an excess of 5,636 square miles. In 1810 Tennessee again possesses the propriety of several years, our state being the third one which was admitted into the Federal Union after the organization of the United States. With a most temperate and healthy climate, and every kind of labor, agricultural, manufacturing and commercial, we see might reasonably be expected to surpass her Northwester. Each however has not been the fact. The census of 1860 it appears that Ohio has a population of 2,339,562; while Tennessee has but 1,169,701. Of improved lands, Ohio has 12,066,587 acres, and Tennessee 6,897,974. The cash value of the farms in Ohio is $665,504,171; in Tennessee $372,555,054. The live stock of Ohio is worth $80,433,780; of Tennessee $61,257,374. The farming implements of Ohio are worth $10,790,220; and those of Tennessee $8,371,095. Ohio produced 28,340,000 bushels of coal and Tennessee 3,474,000. Tennessee has $17,270,000 invested in manufactures, and Ohio $58,000,000. Ohio publishes 340 newspapers and periodicals, and Tennessee 83. To omit farther details, nearly all of which are in favor of Ohio, we sum up the whole, by stating that the real estate and personal property in Ohio is valued at $1,193,898,422, or one billion, one hundred and ninety-three millions, eight hundred and ninety-eight thousand, four hundred and twenty-two, while the real estate and personal property in Tennessee is valued at $493,903,892, or four hundred and ninety-three million, nine hundred and three thousand, eight hundred and ninety-two. But this summary does not represent the relative wealth of Tennessee and Ohio correctly, for if we adopt the rule for Ohio that is applied to Tennessee, and estimate her laborers as property, the wealth of Ohio will exceed still farther that of Tennessee. Nearly one-fifth of the population of this State is counted as property; and one-fifth of the population of Ohio would be 4,67,900 persons, who, valued at $900 each, would increase the aggregate wealth of Ohio to the amount of $280,740,090.

Why is it that a State so much superior to Ohio in extent and natural resources, as our own, has been outstripped on the road to prosperity and wealth, by one who is our junior? Let those conservatives, answer who would, through the idle dread of exasperating traitors forborne from our path, an obstacle, which has obstructed the moral, intellectual, material, and political progress of every nation which has tolerated its existence.

Tennessee bleeds at every pore, in consequence of the reckless ambition of many of her leaders. RYAN, HARRIS, and others stirred up insurrection, rebellion, and bloodshed throughout the length and breadth of the Commonwealth, and the mournful result is that thousands of her citizens have found untimely graves, thousands of her beautiful farms have been desolated, and millions of dollars worth of property have been destroyed. Not one advantage has she gained by her rebellion, on the contrary she has sacrificed many that were of localizable value. Pain would the loyal people of the nation, staunch her bleeding wounds and restore her to health. Pain would they restore peace and prosperity to her people. The soldiers and officers of the Union army would especially rejoice if there were no longer any need of their services here. The rebel leaders know this well. Governor Harris, Andrew Ewing, John Bell, and a few others know that if they were to abandon the rebellion, and tell their fellow-citizens to go peaceably to their homes, civil war would cease in this State, and the Federal army would depart. The rebel leaders only are responsible for the existence and the continuance of the war in Tennessee. We could have peace to-morrow, if they would let us; and the fact was merely to be expected. The Richmond papers say of the Murfreesboro' fight. Richmond Examiner, speaking of Murfreesboro' battle, says: "It is lamentably certain that the enemy has carried his point, and retains all the advantage, except the loss of prisoners and arms, resulting from the battle of Murfreesboro; and now he can succor Grant, clear out our cavalry, and perhaps resume operations on the Mississippi. It must be confessed that a good deal of fortitude is required to support so painful a disappointment with equanimity. Certainly, after such official statements as those made on the last day of the year, and the beginning of the present year, this sequel could not be rationally anticipated."

The Examiner proceeds to abuse the Confederate army and the Confederate Central of the army of the Southwest without stint, and concludes by saying it "dismisses the unpleasant theme with as little reluctance as the reader may imagine."

KEEPING FRUIT.—Nature is a great conservator as well as a producer, when she can have her own way. The day after Christmas, we were hunting Delaware grapes under a trellis in Mr. Clymer's garden at Galion, and found them as plump and fresh and juicy sweet as they were last August. These little honey bags had nestled under a friendly covering of leaves on the bare ground, and all the snows and changes of weather had not vitiated or dried the nectar of their precious globes, while the savings from our own vines, carefully enveloped in cotton and put up in boxes, had out-lasted their usefulness weeks ago.

The same is true of apples; let an apple get covered up by leaves under the tree, and it will retain its freshness for a long time in spite of storm, sun, or frost.—Ohio Farmer.

How many thousands are ready to report wounds, death and captivity, on the field of battle, but how very small is the number of those who are willing to lead in a moral warfare against a long established social evil, which has incorporated itself, as it were, in the body of society, especially when that evil, like slavery, is supported by a formidable moneyed and political interest.

Tennessee, in the Union, in the decade extending from 1850 to 1860, lost about one hundredth of one percent in fugitive slaves! How terribly oppressed she was, and how her peculiar institution was outraged by the Federal Union! We wonder how much more secure her slave property has been made since King Hannibal dragged her into the rebellion.

A BRIBER CATCHER. A TALKER.—One George Parham recently wrote to Ex-Governor Randall of Wisconsin, now First Assistant Postmaster General, endeavoring to "root out" Mr. Lottridge the present postmaster of La Crosse, Wis., and secure the berth for himself. Appended to his note was the following:

P. S. If you think favorable of this request and will give me the office, I will come on to Washington with such letters and recommendations as you may request, and, upon receiving the appointment, will place in your private purse $400; or you may say in your letter come, or not come; and if come, I shall consider it a guaranty of success.

Gov. Randall responded by forwarding the note to the postmaster, for publication in the La Crosse Republican.
