evil, and his lips that they speak no guile.—1 Peter

Scoutmaster, spent several days last week camping. The camp was located on Cumberland river at the mouth of Hamilton's Branch, nine miles northeast of town. The tents were pitched under large maple trees, which afforded ample shade, making it an ideal camp site.

The weather was ideal, and between fishing, hunting, swimming and other sports the boys had the time of their young lives.
Meals were served on schedule time and in army style, the menu consisting of fish, bacon, chicken, potatoes, eggs, coffee, and various fruits. The vigorous exercise and the outdoor life gave the youngsters a ravenous appetite, and it was more than a one man's job to prepare a meal.
