GENTS FURNISHINGS

Thanks to You.

We come to the New Year of 1922 with many thanks for your patronage, kindness, love and friendship for all the past.

We go forward into the new year with bright hopes and bigger hearts, to endeavor, if possible, to serve you better this year than ever before. In soliciting your business we hope to have your patronage and co-operation for a bigger, brighter, happier year for us all.

With thanks to all, we are yours for business, of industry and a success in his business. He was here visiting the family of his uncle, Judge F. W. Moore, and the friends, those especially who remember him in the days of yore, are always glad to see him.

E. P. GRISSOM

Death of Mrs. J. P. Cox.

Mrs. J. P. Cox, daughter of Joseph and Sara Prunett, died at the family home in the vicinity of Woodland Mills, on Tuesday afternoon, the 3d inst., after a short illness. Mrs. Cox was born in Sumner County, Tenn., October 14, 1864, being 58 years, two months and twenty days of age. She was married to William Ingram November 20, 1881, and five children blessed the union, three of them surviving. Mr. Ingram died in 1889. Mrs. Ingram was again married in 1900, united with Mr. Cox, and to this union two children were born, both dying in infancy. The daughters surviving the first marriage are Mrs. Arthur Evans, Mrs. Luther Carr, Mrs. Amos Kendall.

Mrs. Cox professed faith in Christ at the age of 25 and joined the Baptist Church, living a consistent member and devoted mother and friend, a woman of many kind deeds and christian virtues. Mr. Cox died seven years ago.

Funeral services were conducted at Salem Church by Rev. H. W. Stigler, and the remains were interred at Salem Cemetery.

Parent-Teachers Meeting.

Under the management of the Parent-Teachers Association the first program for the new year will take place in the auditorium of the High School on Thursday afternoon, January 12, at 3:15 o'clock.

The program will consist of an interesting course of lectures on child life from pre-natal stage to adolescence. Dr. Qualls will give the first lecture on Thursday afternoon on pre-natal care and influence.

The second lecture will be on January 26 at Westover School, given by Miss Butler, our local Health Nurse. Subject: Infant Care.

The remaining parts of the program will be given in lecture form by good and competent speakers at dates to be announced later.

Interesting musical numbers will be given to add to our programs. We feel sure that these lectures are very important and should be very interesting, and as a large per cent of infant deaths is due to ignorance on the part of the mother, before and after birth, every mother and girl of marriageable age should be interested enough to attend and take advantage of the benefits from these lectures.

A special invitation is extended to the mothers who have children at Westover for the second lecture.

Serious Injury.

Jim Stone, Jr., aged about eleven years, residing with his father in Number Seven, fell out of a barn and his body struck a large metal hook, which pierced his lower bowels and held him above the ground. His cries brought assistance and he was taken home in a critical condition. Drs. Hibbits and White were called and found besides the other injuries a rib broken, which perhaps saved the boy from greater danger. It is understood that the patient is improving.

Miss M. G. Nisbet, Supervising Nurse for the State Board of Health of the Southern Division, Auxiliary Red Cross for the State of Tennessee, is spending the winter at the home of Mr. Moore.

Johnston-Roland.

Mr. J. W. Johnston and Miss Una Alberta Roland were married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Roland, Dec. 29. It was a quiet but pretty home wedding. The rites of matrimony were beautifully solemnized by Rev. Petty, pastor of Hickman Baptist Church, in the presence of a few immediate friends and relatives. The decorations were of holly and ferns, simple but very charming. The bride was dressed in a tailored suit of blue tricotine and hat to match, wearing a corsage of bride roses. She looked pretty. The happy groom was handsomely dressed and looking as if he had won a queen. The bride will be greatly missed from the community in which she lived. They were the recipients of many pretty and useful gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Johnston are making their home in or near Hickman.

Postmaster's Greetings.

To the patrons of the post office—greeting: On behalf of the employees of this office, I extend to you my heartiest Christmas greetings.

I feel that it would be ungrateful to fail to thank you for the liberal patronage extended to this office this year. Notwithstanding the general financial depression, the misfortunes in business, etc., in our little city, the post office has had the largest business both in volume and amount of gross receipts ever. The parcel post business is growing by leaps and bounds. We attribute this to your confidence in the parcel post system as the cheapest and best method of transportation of articles carried by that system.

It has been our purpose to render service to the people, realizing that we are SERVANTS of the people. We have received many helpful suggestions from business men which have been incorporated in our business policies. We hope to have this same splendid spirit of co-operation continue. We assure you that much good in service will be the result.

With kindest wishes of the season, Sincerely,
G. W. PHEBUS, JR.,
Postmaster.
