THE DAILY CHATTANOOGA REBEL.

Volume II. GRIFFIN, GA., JULY 9, 1864. Number 268.

THE DAILY REBEL.

PUBLISHED EVERY DAY IN DAILY EDITION

BY FRANC. M. PAUL.

Terms of Subscription.

One copy one month.
" " two months.
" " three months.

Rates of Advertising.

Two Dollars per Square of ten lines or less for each insertion.

☞ Terms—Cash.

THE DAILY REBEL.

FRIDAY EVENING, JULY 8, 1864.

EVENING EDITION.

From the Front.

The army, with the exception of a portion of the cavalry, is in its entrenchments beyond the Chattahoochee. A brisk [illegible] yesterday evening, after sunset—result not known. There was also skirmishing all along the lines and a cavalry skirmish on our right. The enemy's act of demonstration, however, appears to be on our left, below Baker's ferry. Whether the enemy intend to cross the river in that direction is not known, but is a subject for conjecture.

Commencement of the Grimm Synodical Female College.

The closing exercises of this excellent institution took place yesterday, at the Presbyterian church. The evening previous, a rich entertainment was given to a large and attentive audience, by all the members of the School. The house was crowded to its utmost capacity, and a deep interest was manifested in all the exercises, which were very happily arranged by the worthy President of the Institution.

The exercises of yesterday were confined mainly to the Graduating class. The [illegible] composition presented by the young ladies, graduates of the Wilkes and Petersburg Railroad, [illegible] was read by Miss Emily Wilkes, of Macon, Georgia. Dr. Wills had had a few days' notice of his appointment, and of course his address was impromptu, but the Doctor was himself as usual, strong and forcible. His thoughts were well conceived, and happily presented. For half an hour, or more, he held the large and intelligent audience spell-bound by his rich and intellectual feast, and the only regret was, that he came to a close so soon. His remarks about our ladies in sustaining and supporting the war for our Independence, were most just and true. The noble sentiment he presented—"God bless the women of the South,"—will be heartily responded to by every heart, with a loud "Amen." The entire address of Dr. Wills, was most excellent and appropriate, and fully sustains that high reputation he justly holds in his Church and State.

The College we understand, is under the care of the Synod of Georgia, and we can safely say that, with its able corps of instructors, it is eminently worthy the patronage of that respected body.

Long may it flourish an ornament to our country, and a living exhibition of the distinguished ability of its honored President, Rev. Dr. Patterson.

From the Army of Tennessee.

Special correspondence of the Rebel.

IN THE FIELD NEAR CHATTAHOOCHEE RIVER, }
3 p. m., July 4, 1864. }

Our line of entrenchments cross the Bell Road about 6 miles from Chattahoochee River. It is unnecessary to state the position of the different Divisions of the army. It is enough, to know that the dispositions are properly made.

To day about 1 o'clock in the afternoon, while Gen'l Vaughan was quietly sighting his piece at his quarters, a shell passed through the house of which left foot terribly mangling his foot and inflicting a very serious wound. It is to be regretted that this gallant officer is lost to the service. Bros. Goodwin, Maury and Kibbler of Wright's Brigade, send dressed his wound on the field, state that it will be absolutely necessary to amputate his foot above the ankle joint. He bore the severe pain like a soldier, and remarked when he was placed in the ambulance, to be sent to the rear, "that his only regret was, to give them the d—l. If they advanced upon our works." Gen'l V. formerly commanded the 13th Tenn. Reg't. It was consolidated with the 154th or. Tenn. Reg't. Col. Vaughan commanding the two consolidated. After Gen'l Preston Smith was killed at Chickamauga, Gen'l Vaughan, then Colonel, was promoted to the rank of Brigadier and assigned to the command of Smith's Brigade. When President Davis visited the army at Missionary Ridge, Gen'l Vaughan was introduced to him by Gen'l Bragg, who remarked to the President that Col. Vaughan must be promoted, and placed in command of Smith's Brigade. He soon received his commission as Brigadier General.

The loss in Wright's Brigade, Cheatham's Division, to-day, is one killed and three wounded. The Brigade occupies a rapporting line of works. A twelve pound solid shot, from one of the enemy's batteries passed over the fortifications of the 31st Tennessee regiment wounding three men. Private Hinton, Co. E., 31st was terribly mutilated. The shot passed through both legs and [illegible] Private Hampton and Railey, were slightly wounded by the same shot. Lieut. Prentice of the 38th Tennessee regiment received a shot wound below the knees.

Our army occupied the present line yesterday morning at daylight. The troops have had two days to fortify, and with the natural advantages of position, I feel assured that we can resist and will be able to drive back more numerous forces than man can bring against us. Heavy [illegible] is heard on our extreme left. It is thought that the enemy is massing in front of us at this point. He probably will attempt his old game, a flank movement. It is unreasonable to suppose he will attempt a charge. Their men are not to engage in the "scratch." They administer the default commissaries with whiskey and urge them forward to the destruction. Cleburne and Cheatham have given them an idea of the folly in attempting to take our works. I cannot believe that Gen. Sherman will bring on a general engagement. Such a thing would be ruinous. I give him credit for a reasonable amount of what is commonly called [illegible] sense. The time is rapidly approaching when they will offer terms of peace. Financial ruin now stares them in the face. Their active efforts during this campaign might be compared to the dying struggles of the whale. We place our trust in Providence and humbly pray that His will be done.

ALPHA.

The Spirit of our Country, of our Women and of our Soldiers.

From the Christian Index.

Never was there such a people as ours, such a nation of women as ours, such a soldiery as before in the field! With the watchwords of our cause in our watchword, we spring to arms, a nation in [illegible] such as the ranks, to accomplain it, or devoured, we have no words to admonish martyrs in the cause of [illegible] such one, a monument to his [illegible]. But whence this spirit of [illegible] and endurance? In the [illegible] we [illegible] it to the change in our army. Twelve months [illegible] commenced, a more ungodly [illegible] could scarcely be found than the Con- [illegible]. Now, the utterance of oaths is [illegible] religious songs and expressions of [illegible] are heard from every quarter.— [illegible] be impressed with a high sense [illegible] Providence. They have become [illegible] and have a sacred object to ac- [illegible] dearer to them than life.— [illegible] confidence in their com- [illegible]

Such an army may be temporarily overpowered by vastly superior numbers, but they never can be conquered. Our armies, God being with us, are invincible.

Northern News.

[illegible], June 28.—The New York Tribune of the 28th, says the enemy is very [illegible] and only the most consummate skill will be able to wrest the Petersburg and Weldon Railroad from them.

[illegible] doubt they have strengthened the position of it the line where the repulse of the 17th [illegible] on Friday.

The World's special of the 27th says we have not possession of the Weldon and Petersburg Railroad, but can prevent the enemy from running trains over it.

[illegible] is making the enemy's position a very [illegible].

The [illegible] Bermuda Hundred correspondent, of the 28th, says a commissary serr Jones' neck [illegible] in a picket firing—the gunboat, Hunchback opened on the enemy, who were throwing up [illegible] the head of Little creek. After several rounds the enemy left.

[illegible] loss in the recent fight is less than [illegible] that Gen. Wilson and Kautz [illegible] damage around Lynchburg, though [illegible] heard from them.

The [illegible]'s Ninth Army Corps correspondent [illegible] losses in rebel attack on Sunday [illegible] six wounded; rebel loss se- [illegible] as they skirmish line marched against our [illegible].

The [illegible] correspondent says, that [illegible] Trent there is only eleven feet [illegible] prevents our iron clads, drawing [illegible] approaching near Richmond.

[illegible], June 28.—Rebel deserters continue [illegible] Butler's lines reporting de- [illegible] men and officers.

[illegible] brigades cavalry at an in- [illegible] Hunter. The advance of the rebel [illegible] is the scene of conflict, and a popula- [illegible] consternation exists in the [illegible].

[illegible] Secretary Seddon [illegible] to provide for raising $75,000,000 [illegible] by increased taxation, tobacco and whisky.

[illegible], June 29.—Senate.—The bill to [illegible] of Freedman's affairs was passed.

ARMY OF THE POTOMAC, June 28.—Our [illegible] around and taken possession of [illegible] Railroad, four miles from Petersburg [illegible].

[illegible] the enemy's lines have been concentrated [illegible] sent to drive back Hunter. [illegible] 5,000 sick and wounded at the hospitals.

Correspondence of the Atlanta Register.

CHATTANOOGA, July 7, 1864.

There were several prisoners brought [illegible], some of whom were captured on [illegible] river. They were nearly all quite [illegible] was caused more by their capture [illegible] else. They were glad to get out of [illegible] fortunes.

The [illegible] has become exceedingly hot and [illegible]. Gen. Chastham took his Division [illegible] other day, and the boys enjoyed [illegible]. The yankees must have [illegible] [illegible] as the shells and balls [illegible] one man's leg was taken off. He [illegible], however, but died that night.

[illegible] yesterday there was an ammunition [illegible] by the explosion of a yankee shell [illegible] the wife of the driver, was ri- [illegible] time, and, marvelous to relate, [illegible], though severely burned. She [illegible] the bottom of the wagon, it being [illegible].

[illegible] patrols were in pursuit of a spy [illegible] lines, taking plans of the works. [illegible] description "fit" of him, and very [illegible] by this time at liberty to take in- [illegible] the Barracks in your city.

[illegible], of this Department, is indeed [illegible] as the most efficient [illegible] this army has ever had. [illegible], and never neglects a duty.

[illegible] Hill, of this Department, is indeed [illegible] spoken of as the most efficient [illegible] this army has ever had. [illegible], and never neglects a duty.

[illegible] B