DEMOCRAT PUBLISHING COMPANY.

Market Report.

GAZETTE readers will find in the market report of this paper special telegrams daily, as well as regular Associated Press reports. These telegrams are supplemented by other interesting commercial matter, and are made up after the close of business in the great business centers. THE GAZETTE will leave no effort unmade to have its commercial reports all that merchants and others demand.

High-Court Decisions.

THE GAZETTE has a special representative at Tyler who reports the decisions of the higher courts. Lawyers and litigants will find in THE GAZETTE prompt telegraphic announcement of all decisions.

FRIDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 6.

THE GAZETTE has the largest bona-fide circulation of any daily newspaper published in Texas.

THE organs should not call too lustily for the records. The records are loaded.

WHEN the old musty record begins to flop some politicians in Texas feel premonitions of a buck-ague.

AT this rate Mr. Blaine will be induced to desist in his efforts to obtain the Republican nomination for the presidency in 1888.

DEAR TIMES: Did you read that Waxahachie special in THE GAZETTE yesterday? More than ever you will need to come here to reach the people.

MR. CONKLING explains that he never mentions the name of Blaine. But Roscoe will not deny that he often thinks, and, perhaps, even dreams of him.

TWO things ought to be settled by the elections this fall. They are, first, that Ohio is a Republican state, and second, that New York is a Democratic state.

THERE is never any malice in the Dallas Times unless Sterett is absent on the dengue. Then, there is. A reader of the paper can always tell when Sterett is away.

THERE is a striking similarity in the fate of the Mugwump in New York and of Mahone in Virginia, which goes to show that it hardly ever pays to play the traitor.

SHALL the big cattlemen have exclusive control of the school lands and the West by lease; or, shall the little man have free range for his herd of milch cows? A lease-law paper put the question. Now let the people proceed to a verdict.

NOTWITHSTANDING the emphatic rebuke which they have received, there is every reason to believe that Georgie Willie Curtis, Carl Schurz and George Jones still express their gratitude to the Almighty daily from the street corners for making them not as other men.

WAXAHACHIE, having monkeyed with Dallas long enough to see that it would lose connection with Fort Worth, has finally cut loose from the dead man's grip and raised the money to secure the Fort Worth & New Orleans railroad. The people of Waxahachie are wise.

FIVE hundred dollars per month will buy many columns of news. THE GAZETTE expends its money for news. Its contemporaries at the cross-roads spend their's for "special trains." The reading public have not been slow to discover which gives the greatest return for their money.

COL. J. H. BRITTON of Sherman visited the great distributing point of North Texas yesterday. This is the gentleman whom the Houston Post reported as saying that "more people get on and off the cars at Fort Worth than at Galveston, Houston, Dallas, Austin and San Antonio combined."

SOME people have sense enough to get out of the way before the blow hits them. Such a man seems to be United States District Attorney Searl of Minnesota, who writes to the president that "if you desire my resignation as United States district attorney in and for the district of Minnesota, I hereby cheerfully place the same at your disposal, provided no charges of any kind have been made or are pending against me."

IT is regarded as a settled fact that Secretary Manning and Treasurer Jordan will, in their coming annual reports, make a strong argument for the discontinuance of silver coinage, and the president will, in his message, urge congress to at least suspend coinage for the present. In this recommendation the president will not be supported by his party. The country is not ready to have silver coinage stopped, but it is anxious that the silver dollar shall be increased in value. There is not a surplus of money in the country to demand the disuse of one of the metals, but there is no further demand for an 80-cent dollar. Make the dollar an honest one, and make as many of them as the mint can afford.

THE Texas papers generally know a hawk from a handsaw. The Waco Day observes:

The Dallas News and Dallas Herald, it is said, pay $500 a month for that special train to carry their papers into Fort Worth by 6 o'clock every morning. When they get there, they find another morning paper, equally as good, already distributed to the people or ready to go North, South and West on the trains. Of course, the News and Herald are looking entirely to their own interest, but it looks like carrying coals to Newcastle, at a pretty steep freight tariff, to boot.

But Fort Worth is the distributing point of Texas. The News and the Herald must come here. Cooped up in Dallas, they are without railway connection with the reading public of the state. Five hundred dollars a month is the price of this necessity. It comes high, but it must be had.

RECALLING A FACT.

The statement of the Houston Post that the legislature disregarded the figures of the comptroller and the recommendation of the executive, in making the tax reduction which brought about the late deficiency in the cash balance of $250,000, is very, very, very funny. It is a well-known fact, of which the Post is fully cognizant, that Gov. Ireland was as mad as a March hare because Comptroller Swain's estimates showed a small deficiency even at the old tax rate, and in his message to the legislature he committed the unusual slight of omitting all mention of the comptroller's report, declaring that the taxes would bear a heavy reduction. The legislature took his recommendation, instead of the comptroller's figures, and the result was that the succeeding legislature had to borrow a quarter of a million dollars to pay up the debts of the state. In casting the blame on the Eighteenth legislature the Post should explain that it simply placed too much reliance on the executive judgment.

A GREENBACK PAPER.

Dr. Andrew Young announces in the Cleburne Telegram that he intends shortly to issue a Greenback paper from that point. Dr. Young is perhaps as competent to expound and disseminate the doctrines of Greenbackism as any man in Texas, and THE GAZETTE would be glad to see him win financial success. A purely Greenback organ in Texas seems to be unnecessary now, since the position taken by a large part of the Democratic press that the government may properly stamp 80 cents' worth of silver a dollar and give it out for a dollar. Clearly 20 cents' worth of the suppositious 100 cents of this dollar is fiat value, of the same nature as the Greenbackers' fiat dollar. The difference is only in degree. If the government may fairly call 80 cents' worth of silver a dollar, it may as well call 10 cents' worth a dollar, and, going a little further, it may call a piece of paper a dollar, by its fiat. Then we have Greenbackism, pure and simple. While, in this state of affairs, not recognizing the need of a Greenback organ, THE GAZETTE will welcome it, and assist its publisher in his undertaking.

NO HALTING YET.

The people of Fort Worth who have contributed so largely to the various enterprises which have been instrumental in advancing the progress of the city should not yet discontinue their efforts. Fort Worth has made rapid strides toward metropolitanism, and its achievements are the wonder and admiration of all who are acquainted with the history of its progress. But there yet remains much to be done. Its railroad facilities are almost complete: with the construction of the Fort Worth & Rio Grande railway, which is not very remote, Fort Worth will become the center of a network of roads reaching into every section of the state, all contributing to the business of the city, enriching its people and furnishing remunerative employment to its artisans, mechanics, merchants and tradespeople, and providing safe and profitable investment to the accumulations of capital in the hands of individuals and corporations. These arteries of commerce, however beneficial and useful, are not enough to accomplish the ends desired by Fort Worth. It must still have factories and mills ere its success is assured. The foundation has been laid and laid well. The superstructure has yet to be reared. Those who first made the contributions, years ago, to the foundation, are here still and are willing to add to it material for the superstructure, but they are hampered and hindered in their labors by the discordant notes of the croaker, who sees nothing good in united effort and would have every man live by and for himself, and survive or perish by his individual and unaided efforts. Those who first contributed of their substance to the public good have profited largely by the investment and have expressed no regret because of their expenditures for public purposes. There are matters of a public nature now appealing to the generosity of our citizens, and they should not appeal in vain. Their success is the success of the city, and while their failure would not jeopardize the fate of the city, it would result in its injury. They must not fail—it would be contrary to the traditions and patriotism of the city for them to fail.

REPUBLICAN HOSTILITY TO THE NEGRO.

The Washington City correspondent of the Cincinnati Enquirer recently wrote that "it is certain that by reason of an understanding between the heads of the Republican party leaders there is to be an effort made to have the negro vote of the South counted solid for the Republicans, else their disfranchisement or reduced representation in congress and the electoral college in states where the blacks outnumber the whites." This view is harmonious with late utterances and acts of the Republican leaders, who are determined, if they cannot reap the advantage of negro votes, to deprive them of the right of suffrage.

There is abundant evidence that in the Virginia election large numbers of negroes forsook the Republicans and voted for Fitzhugh Lee. The great majority for the Democratic candidate must have been built up by the help of negro votes. This is sure to intensify the feeling and accelerate the movement of the Republican party against negro suffrage. It is plain now that they cannot control the negro, and they hate him for his new-grown independence. By some scheme, if they ever again acquire control of the law-making machinery of government, they will attempt to disfranchise the negroes, or at least to so restrict their voting privileges as to render their influences in government a nullity.

Old Thad Stevens, in the debates on reconstruction, recognized the advantage to the Republican party of the negro voters as long as they voted with that party, but he saw with prophetic vision the danger that would ensue if the negroes should cease to act with the Republicans when the increased representation given the South by virtue of their enfranchisement should add strength to the Democratic side of the house of representatives. But he expected that there would always be a respectable white Republican party in the South to lead and control the negroes. "If they should grant the right of suffrage to persons of color," he said, speaking of the states enfranchising their late slaves, "I think there would always be Union white men enough in the South, aided by the blacks, to divide the representation, and thus continue Republican ascendancy." But old Thad could not foresee the demoralization of his party in the South, and his judgment that the negro vote and white Republican vote would divide representation and give the Republicans a majority of Southern congressmen, was false.

Out of no regard for the negro did the Republican party invest him with the right of suffrage. They wanted his support and he could not support them without a vote. Therefore they gave him the power to vote. Now that he has ceased to use his vote for their advantage, and the Democratic representation in congress is largely increased by the negro enumeration, the Republican party would, if it could, take away his ballot, and, without making an actual slave, so shear him of his political power as to make him a virtual serf. That which the Southern negro has now to fear most is the Republican party of the North.

Improves Daily.
Paris Balance Wheel.

The Fort Worth GAZETTE is daily improving, and is now abreast with the best of 'em.

At the Apex of the Triangle.
Waco Examiner.

THE GAZETTE has, by far, the best of the triangular journalistic fight now going on in North Texas. It seems both able and very much disposed to hold its advantage.

Three Wives and Fifty Four Children.
St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Thomas James, a colored man residing near Gainesville, Fla., has a family of fifty-four children, thirty-three of them being now at home with their father. He has had three wives, and the three were all living at one time. Only one of them is now living, and she claims nineteen of the children.

Special Train Bosh.
Waco Examiner.

The contest between the News and the Herald for the business of North Texas is one of the most ridiculous ever witnessed. The idea that these two papers contain matter any morning in excess of the Fort Worth papers worth the expense of a special train, or even a special arrangement to transmit, is the veriest bosh. The whole state is still laughing at the contemptible exhibition. After a while the disgust will come. It is amazing, this nonsense. The fact is there is not business enough in Dallas or from that point to make a fortune for one of them and with both in the field disaster is bound to overtake one and perhaps both. Better hyphenate and do it very promptly.

Heaping Up Coals of Fire.
Dallas Herald.

The Fort Worth GAZETTE is pleased to remark, in the course of an editorial comment on "the blow about special-train enterprise," that "the typographical appearance of the Herald indicates that it never even bought ink enough until Dallas gave a bonus to another paper." The fling was unnecessary, as the Herald had more than once frankly explained to its readers the unavoidable cause of the inferior print, and stated explicitly the great effort being made for earliest possible improvement. In further reply, we take pleasure in observing that THE GAZETTE, in its several departments, is at once one of the finest papers in the South and a credit and matter of pride to all who glory in the prominence of Texas and in such enterprising cities as the Fort. The Herald is not cramped by any localism, and rejoices in the general and individual prosperity wherever existing.

WELCOME TO FORT WORTH!

Let the Farmers' Alliance Judge of the Future by the Past.

FORT WORTH, TEX., Nov. 5, 1885.

To the Editor of the Gazette:

I think the cotton sale made by the Farmers' alliance here in Fort Worth, on yesterday, in connection with the sale made here on the 9th of October last, will greatly redound to the interest of Fort Worth, from the fact that both sales were a success. The alliance demonstrated the fact in the first sale by their earnestness and patience that they were allied to each other as a band of brothers, indeed, and would stand together as a unit in every case of emergency, and consequently it was soon learned that the cotton could only be bought in bulk. This was done by a buyer in Fort Worth, and satisfactory weights given, and the men all treated very kindly by the citizens of Fort Worth. No unfriendly remarks were heard upon the streets, and the men all returned home feeling good over the results. The success of the first sale spread very rapidly over the country and the result was that on yesterday we had cotton here with ours from several contiguous counties, which was sold with ours in bulk.

Now, those two sales giving entire satisfaction upon both sides will certainly speak volumes in the future for Fort Worth as a cotton market for the Farmers' alliance not only of Tarrant county, but for all adjoining counties.

We are sorry to note the fact that alliance men have not been treated well in other towns in the sale of their cotton, but while this is the case we are glad to say to them, come to Fort Worth, where you will receive a hearty welcome, and will also get the last cent the market will justify for your cotton, and after sales are over if you wish to buy goods, you will find merchants here who are fair and square dealers, and who will put you goods at bed-rock prices.

BEECHER ROBBED.

The Brooklyn Divine Minus His Watch and Little Roll of $400.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Henry Ward Beecher had his pocket picked of $400 and a gold watch at the Forty-second street station on the elevated road yesterday. Being interviewed, Mr. Beecher said it was not a presentation watch, but a good time-keeper which he had purchased in 1863. "If I don't get it," he said, "I have another in my pocket that can do very well. I went over to New York to-day and laid the matter before the authorities. I had carried that watch over 500,000 miles, and lost it at last. It isn't the loss of the watch I mind so much, but the fact that some 'skunk' has got it that won't appreciate it, for its a good watch."

Neuralgia

CAN BE CURED WITHOUT THE USE OF OPIUM OR MORPHINE.

The Medical Brief, published at St. Louis, says in the June, 1885, issue: "Many have become victims to the use of opium or morphine, from the use of those drugs for the relief of neuralgia. It is gratifying to observe that such dangerous consequences may be averted by the use of TONGALINE, which is claimed a specific in the acute form of Neuralgia."

"Used Tongaline in a case of Neuralgia of years standing, which had resisted all remedies. This was six months since and the patient has enjoyed perfect freedom. This case was a severe one." R. L. Rowe, M. D., Rowena, Texas.

"Have given Tongaline a fair test in Neuralgia. To say it relieved was expressing it too mildly. It is the best preparation for that disease I have ever tried." J. F. Rowan, Bowie, Texas.

"I consider Tongaline the best remedy in Neuralgia I have ever tried." C. V. Duval, M. D., Floresville, Texas.
