GEN. GRANT hasn't received any "retired-list" money yet.

THE whirligig of time brings Paddy Ryan his revenge on Sullivan.

SENATOR Plumb seems to have been pretty much of a schemer himself.

WE haven't heard of any effort on the part of Galveston to dispense with the drummers recently.

MR. Legate, the "ablest Republican in Kansas," ought to tell his dear Fishers to "Burn this letter".

RANDALL thinks his Southern tour proves him a leader double leaded and a column long, when in fact he is only a "dead ad."

MCCULLAGH says St. John is a liar, and St. John says McCullagh is a liar. The country seems disposed to believe both of them.

IF we are to have a state reformatory let it not be located, as are the penitentiaries, on the outward border of extreme remoteness.

THE Building and Loan associations of Memphis are being sued by stockholders for the money paid in, in excess of the sum borrowed, with legal interest.

NOBODY wants to make a scapegoat of Jeff Davis. The cause of Jeff Davis is the cause of the Confederacy and they both belong to the past. Leave them there.

WHEN the penitentiary question comes up before the legislature it is surmised that the ante will be raised to fifty cents and blue checks will be issued at a dollar, cold.

IF Reagan's bill becomes a law, railroads can charge full price on freight a part of the way and send it free the remainder. This will give them a chance to work the "long haul" scheme, and no one can prevent them from hauling free.

TENNESSEE has a town called "Wartrace," yet a man has to go there and hang around the rival towns to learn what to call it. Reading it one might say "War-trace" or "Wart-race," which would be very embarrassing to any one who desired to be correct.

THERE was a man over in New Orleans who, feeling himself injured by a newspaper, sent a friend to the newspaper office to whip the editor. The friend thus sent was killed. Moral: If an editor offends thee, go larrup your washerwoman. Editors are bad men.

We would like to hear from the Fort Worth Gazette on the proposition of making a Texan an governor.—[Houston Age.

THE GAZETTE has no objections to urge against the Dallas man. Dallas has many excellent and able gentlemen. The little episode at the Dallas cotton exchange, among other things, shows that the Dallas man is not what one would expect to find him after perusing the Dallas papers.

IF there has been any crookedness in the campaign between St. John and the various political parties it should be remembered that Mr. Legate is personally responsible for it, as he says he acted without the consent or knowledge of the cold-water apostle. It would be well to keep in mind, too, that Mr. Legate is "one of the ablest men in the Republican party," and that the rascality is a family affair.

QUEEN VICTORIA'S youngest daughter, Princess Beatrice Mary Victoria Feodora, is to be married to Prince Henry Maurice of Battenburg. Miss Mary is a dandy from long taw and wears bangs of her own hair; Henry hasn't a sous marke to his name and when he says "with all my worldly goods I thee endow," he will want to put on a bold front lest some one should "call" him, in which case he could only show, as a-sets, a traditional account of his ancestors wearing boarskin breeches.

Rejection of the Nicaraguan Treaty.

So the Nicaraguan treaty fails of ratification, though it had a majority in the senate of 32 to 23. Lacking, however, the necessary constitutional majority of two-thirds in its favor, it is rejected.

Whatever might be said in its favor on general principles, the present time and existing conditions were specially unfavorable to the treaty. Its adoption would have signalized a departure from the traditional policy of the government, which has been to avoid all political connections and alliances with foreign nations. Since the termination of the offensive and defensive treaty with France, which was entered into to secure the support of that country during the war for independence, there has been no deviation from this policy.

It would be unfair to the incoming Democratic administration to impose upon it the task of carrying out a policy foreign to the character of the government, and which, however disagreeable, it could not abandon. Mr. Arthur has but a few weeks more of official life. It would be manifestly improper to adopt, in the closing hours of his administration, a policy of government to be transmitted to his successor, full of difficulty and danger, which will not fall upon him but, however unwelcome, upon that successor. Let Mr. Cleveland begin and carry out his own measures of reform, without being burdened with a legacy of difficulty from his predecessor. Looking at the question in this sense, it is probable many of the Democratic senators voted against the treaty, who in any other situation would have favored it.

Randall's Visit to Cleveland.

Mr. Cleveland's invitation to Mr. Randall to make him a call, and the conference that took place between them, do not make conclusive evidence that the president-elect called on the leader of the protectionists for advice about running his administration or offered him a place in the new cabinet. Mr. Cleveland probably looked upon him as the recognized head of a faction in the party, and wished to ascertain fully the feelings and purposes of the faction, and to learn how far the incoming Democratic administration is to rely upon them in its measures toward the tariff.

It is stated that Speaker Carlisle is also the recipient of an invitation to pay a formal but unostentatious visit to his party chief, and give his views as to the wisdom of policies contemplated by the head of the Democratic administration. It may be that the president-elect is seeking to ascertain, from representative men of both factions, their views as to the duty of the government upon the questions that will be presented for legislation, and where those views diverge to harmonize them as far as may be, or to instruct himself for his future guidance. In this light the visit of Mr. Randall has no special significance beyond that which would attach to the visit of any conspicuous and leading public man of his party to the president-elect at his invitation. Senator Bayard and Senator Garland were called to confer with Mr. Cleveland some weeks ago, but it was never given out that they were going to counsel him how to run the government. It is not at all likely that Mr. Randall gave any such advice, or that it would have been regarded if he had.

Cotton Merchants Fail

Obituary at Sulphur Springs.

Special

SULPHUR SPRINGS, TEX., Jan. 30.—W. G. Blythe, editor and proprietor of the Sulphur Springs Enterprise, died to-day, after a brief illness of pneumonia. The deceased was one of the most exemplary young men in our midst. He was aged twenty-two.

A Burglar Released.

KINGSTON, ONT., Jan. 30.—This morning Jones, alias Jimmy Carroll, the North American burglar, who was sentenced some years ago to the penitentiary for robbery, was released and departed for Montreal. Before he left it is said that he exhibited an American bond to the value of $100,000.

The Missing Editor.

NEW YORK, Jan 30.—Nothing has yet been learned of the whereabouts of S. S Conant, the managing editor of Harper's Weekly. The assistant editor of that periodical this morning received a letter from the chief physician of the Pennsylvania state asylum for the insane stating that last Tuesday night a man applied for admission to the asylum. He said that two Russians were pursuing him and that he was a newspaper man. In height he was five feet eight inches. In no other respect did he resemble Conant. Pinkerton's detectives are no longer working in the case.

MEXICO.

An Independent Editor Put to Work With Criminals.

CITY OF MEXICO, Jan. 30.—A horrible crime was reported this morning from Santa Cruz. A negro was burned at the stake. No particulars have been received.

At the city of Morelia, in the state of Michoacan, Luis Gonzales, editor of the Morelia Explorador, an opposition paper to the government, was arrested by order of the prefect of police and put to work in the public highway with criminals. The Explorador declares the prosecution to be a dishonorable revenge on the part of the authorities of Morelia directed against an independent writer.

OUR LEGISLATORS' PAY.

Reduce the Number of Law-Makers and Increase Their Salaries.

AUSTIN, TEX., Jan. 26, 1885.

To the Editor of the Gazette.

A joint resolution was introduced into the house the other day proposing to amend sections 2 and 24 of article 3 of the constitution of the state of Texas, and was referred to the committee on constitutional amendments. The substance of the resolution is to provide for the election of thirty-one senators and sixty-two representatives to the legislature of Texas, to receive a compensation of $8 per day for the first sixty days, and $2 per day for the remainder of the session, and mileage not to exceed $5 per 25 miles. This seems to me to be a progressive move, but the compensation allowed is not sufficient. To have service of any character we must pay well for it. When a man enters a store and calls for an article of merchandise, if he desires something cheap, he lays out a little money; if something of worth, he pays a good price for it, for the old maxim runs, "the best is the cheapest." It is the same with talent or genius as with merchandise. The same principle underlies both. If we expect to have wise legislators to enact wholesome laws, free from taint, the product of bigotry, and narrow, contracted minds, we must be prepared to pay for it. The pitiable sum offered legislators brings, as a general thing, a man without a great amount of education, and without experience, because a man who has the education and the experience that makes him fit for a legislator cannot afford to leave his business for the compensation allowed. In this age, when money has usurped the place of almost everything, we cannot secure the valuable services of valuable men without it. I do not mean to say by the above that patriotism and glory are dead, for we have in this Nineteenth legislature men of great talents, and a great many of them, but they are mostly in the minority. What do we pay our representatives in congress? Five thousand dollars per year and mileage. Are the laws enacted by congress of any more importance or binding effect upon us than the laws of our own state, under and by which our actions are controlled? I think not. Do you think a congressman would make a personal canvass for the position, and talk himself hoarse at political gatherings, for the paltry recompense of $5 a day and mileage? Reduce the number of legislators and increase their pay, and see if we can't have better representatives, and laws that each succeeding legislature would not feel itself compelled to amend, repeal or alter. If this joint resolution gets to the people for their action I have no doubt but at the polls they will give it a hearty ratification.

SAN ANGELO.

Stockmen Jubilant Over Their Small Losses—The Necessity for State Rangers

Special.

SAN ANGELO, TEX., Jan. 28.—Since the sun again sheds his genial rays upon this portion of the coming Empire state, the gloom occasioned by the late severe weather has given place to cheerfulness, and business seems brisker from comparison with the few days of stagnation.

The stockmen have had time to estimate, and the conclusion generally arrived at is aptly expressed by the remark of a widow when informed that her dear departed was carrying a heavy life insurance: "Hits powerful onpleasant, but hit haint nigh as agivative as I lowed it 'ud be."

The greatest loss of cattle in this immediate vicinity was due to the herds in their rush for water pushing calves and weak cattle over the river bluffs into deep water, where they were drowned. In the bend of the river above San Angelo there are, all told, about eighty-five head of dead cattle.

The most loss sustained by business men is in length of countenance, which is more than made up by increased breadth, upon learning that the storm would not entail such loss upon the stockmen as to prevent them from promptly meeting their storebills.

The full-grown norther has pretty thoroughly convinced some of the stockmen that a barbed wire fence, on a bald, snow-clad prairie is not so wholesome a thing for cattle to drift against in a blizzard as the sunny side of a thicket, while the chilled and famishing herds find the fences a great impediment to their getting below the snow line and gaining access to the sunshine, running water and nutritious grasses of the southern range. It would be surprising if those stockmen who have neither feed nor shelter for their herds, should soon raise the cry, "The wire must go."

During the cold weather the people of San Angelo missed the music of the post band, but the music has thawed out, and considerable quantities of excellent quality are wafted by the south wind to this side of the Concho.

The governor's proposition to reduce the number of state troops to fifty with the necessary officers, does not awaken much enthusiasm among his unterrified supporters in Tom Green county, and your correspondent heard it said that if the rank and file is reduced to fifty the officers ought to be increased to about 200, so as to give enough fighting men to keep in check marauders and Indians from the Rio Grande. It is impossible for the sheriffs of the border counties to police the large counties or the unorganized and sparely settled counties of the frontier. It may seem all right to people out of danger to cry "the rangers must go" and "leave the enforcement of the law to the sheriffs;" but those exposed to danger feel very differently on the subject, and think if they have to stand on the picket line it is only right and justice. There are well authenticated reports of the people in the vicinity of a station on the railroad, called Midway, attempting to throw off the paternal government of Tom Green county and establish an independent county organization.

HENRIETTA.

Steady Improvement, Notwithstanding Hard Times—The Schools.

Special

HENRIETTA, TEX., Jan. 30.—Our citizens are all rejoicing that the backbone of the bad weather is broken. Business is beginning to revive, and everything is assuming a more cheerful and business-like aspect than has been observed here before for many months. The recent wet and cold weather has here, as elsewhere, been extremely hard on stock, and many have died for want of food and shelter.

Henrietta continues to improve, notwithstanding the hard times, and the evidences of her future prosperity and importance are seen in this fact, in the enterprise of her business men and in the fertility of soil that characterizes the surrounding country.

Our new court-house is nearing completion and will be, when completed, one of the handsomest buildings in North Texas.

The Streeper dramatic troupe has been playing at the opera-house here this week and has drawn and pleased good audiences.

Our public school is the pride of the city. The building is a handsome two-story brick structure, completed last fall, and furnished in the most approved style. Under the excellent management of Prof. J. M. Summers and his able assistants, the school is in a most flourishing and satisfactory condition. There are about three hundred and fifty pupils in attendance.

The unwise notion entertained by some of our citizens that THE GAZETTE has shown a disposition to discriminate against Henrietta by not publishing accounts of interesting and important events happening here, is fast dying out, as the people learn that it has been altogether through the negligence of those who had been engaged to act as THE GAZETTE'S correspondents here, and who have, in every case complained of, failed to report the items.

Your correspondent hopes and believes that such cause of complaint will not occur again very soon, and falls in with the majority in wishing for THE GAZETTE for 1885 the abundant prosperity it richly deserves.

SAN DIEGO.

Stock Notes from Duval County—Work for the County Commissioners.

Special.

SAN DIEGO, TEX., Jan. 27.—We have been having a long spell of cold, wet weather, but yesterday there was a considerable change for the better. It has cleared off and moderated considerably, and the prospect for a good spring is very fair. The fact is, that though a great many animals have died, the loss has not been anything near as great in this neighborhood as was expected. There is a scrubby growth in this vicinity, or more properly speaking several kinds of shrubs. The guajilla, chappara prieto, chapte and some others upon which horses, cattle, sheep and goats browse and keep in very good order, to say nothing of the nourishment contained in the succulent nopal. Your correspondent has had a milch cow maintained principally upon nopal, the thorns being first burned off, which has kept in good fair order and given a reasonable supply of milk all winter.

I have been over a very large portion of our country and was really surprised to see such a large proportion of the stock in as good condition as they were. The ground has new been pretty thoroughly saturated and if it continues moderate, we will soon have fat animals ready for the market, at least I may say that the prospect is better than it was and the gloom is leaving the brows of many of our stock-raisers.

There has not been a ball, a free fight, or a fire, or any sort of diversion here for some time.

The Mexican theatrical company continues to give performances, but to rather small audiences, and the thing is becoming monotonous.

Our county commissioners' court will meet next month, when there will be a good deal of business before them. Amongst other things, they will adopt some plan and probably contract for the enlarging of our jail, but they will not have a new jail built; of this I am assured, and I mention the fact because there have been a good many letters written here proposing to build a new jail. One architect who submitted plans for a magnificent jail, but much too costly for our purposes, has even threatened to bring suit against the county because he has not been employed or his plans adopted.

With the exception of colds and coughs, which seem to be prevalent everywhere, our people do not appear much the worse off for the bad weather, and our town is generally healthy.

There was one case of sudden death from heart disease, such, at least, was the verdict of the jury of inquest on the body of Nicholas Alverado, who was found dead on the night of the 21st inst.

The Week's Failures.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—The failures during the last seven days number in the United States 317; in Canada, 37; total, 354, compared with 411 of last week and 420 of the week previous. There is a decrease in every section of the country, though failures in the West and South are still numerous.
