THEY GOT A PAIR OF LOGGERS WHOSE RELIEF IN THEIR ORDER GOT THEM INTO TROUBLE.

John Hodges, night clerk at the Metropolitan hotel, was arrested yesterday on a charge of assault, brought by two men who have been boarding at the Metropolitan.

Hodges gave bond in the sum of $100, and was released. It seems that the two complainants asked for their baggage Friday night without the formality of settling their bills.

The request was politely declined by the clerk. His loggery proceeded to enforce it anyway, and gathering up their luggage started to take French leave.

The baggage hit the floor with a sickening thud. "Git," said the clerk.

Two pair of heels shot down the street at a go-as-you-please gait. Their owners feel that they have been insulted and assailed, and to relieve their outraged feelings, filed this complaint.

Hodges is a young, headless-faced man, fresh from the East. He came to Fort Worth with the Max Thomas Opera company, the stranding of which reduced his financial status below par.

It is said that a crowd of bullies have been having things pretty much as they pleased with him, but that he surprised them on Friday night, and when the "bum" began to wave about in a reckless sort of manner the air was thick and resonant with flapping coat-tails.

TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION. PROGRAMME OF THE NEXT MEETING TO BE HELD IN THIS CITY.

The following is the programme of the first meeting for 1886 of the Tarrant county teachers, which will be held in school building No. 2 Saturday, January 25, at 10 a. m.

1. "How can the Standard of Proficiency of our Teachers be Improved?" Prof. Hanly

2. "The Future Outlook of the Public Schools." Prof. Davenport

3. "How to teach Morals in the schools." Miss Jones

4. "Calisthenics—Class Drill." Miss Speer

5. "System." Prof. M. Bealbrook

6. "Parallel Studies." Prof. Gerrard

7. "Subject to be announced." Prof. Connolly

On account of the inclemency of the weather since the beginning of the year it has not been possible to have from the presidents of the divisions of the county or the programme would be even fuller than this.

The teachers of the city school (belonging to the Third district) are expected to attend this meeting and hence many of them have been given places upon the programme.

A FAMILY VENDETTA.

A Son Gets a Bullet Through His Drunken Father's Breast to Save His Mother's Life.

The brute shoots his daughter and attempts to massacre his whole family—The Mother's Testimony.

Special to the Gazette. WHISKEY RUINS A HAPPY HOME.

HENRIETTA, TEX., Jan. 16.—To-day, about 4 o'clock a. m., a shooting affray took place in Henrietta, which is too terrible to enter the columns of a paper.

William Taylor, being somewhat under the influence of liquor, went to his home in this city, about 2 o'clock a. m., to-day, and began a quarrel with his wife and children.

Taylor soon flew into a bad state of feeling, and took his pistol, preparatory to killing his family. They succeeded in taking it from him, and then he said he was going to kill them anyway.

and took his wife by the hair with one hand, and a pair of scissors in the other, as if to cut her throat. While in this attitude, his son Tom, about thirteen years old, got hold of a rifle and shot his father through the breast, the ball entering on one side of the breast and coming out on the other.

The wound is thought not to be fatal. Immediately after Taylor was shot he grabbed the gun from his son and attempted to shoot some one of the family. The muzzle was thrown down by some one of them and the weapon was fired, shooting one of his daughters through the calf of the leg.

This daughter is about grown. Taylor is now sober, and gives his son Tom credit for the bravery he displayed in defending his mother, brothers and sisters. Tom is ready to be tried at any time, as he feels justified in doing what he did. Taylor is in bed. His amazing trial will come up as soon as he gets out, which will be before long it is thought.

Special to the Gazette. ANOTHER ACCOUNT. HENRIETTA, TEX., Jan. 16.—At this place to-day, about 4 o'clock a. m., a drunken husband attempted to commit suicide on his family and then tried to commit suicide. An examining trial was had to-day of the son who shot the father with a rifle in defense of the family. The wife is the only witness who testifies, and she relates the story as follows:

"I saw the defendant to-day before the making of the complaint. William Taylor, my husband, came home drunk last night about 10 o'clock. He brought home whiskey and tried to get me to drink it and I would not drink. He made the children drink as long as they could drink, and then poured some down his daughter's throat and beat her on the head with his fist.

We begged of him to stop and told him that we all liked him well enough and were not mad at him. He sat in a chair until about 1 o'clock this morning. He went to sleep and fell out of his chair and my daughter and I picked him up and put him to bed, and he lay there as he was asleep until about 2 o'clock. He had a pistol in his pocket when we put him to bed, which I took out and put away in the trunk in another room, where my daughter slept. When I awoke he was out of bed and in my daughter's room, and he was going to go into the room where he was. He heard me and came out and met me. He took hold of me and commenced to choke me and told me he was going to kill me. He pulled me back into the bedroom, continuing to choke me, but he soon quit and went to bed looking as if trying to find something to drink with him. He found nothing. He then felt in his pocket for his pistol and asked where it was. I told him that it was put away, and that none of his family were going to hurt him. By this time my daughter and the defendant had hold of him and told him to let me alone. He told them no, he was going to kill me, and said to me 'you have begged of before, but you will not beg off this time.' Then he threw the children back into the bedroom and got a pair of scissors off of the table and opened them, and drew my hair back by my throat and beat her on the head with it. While in the act of striking my throat with the scissors, the defendant shot him with a rifle, I think in his left breast, the ball ranging across his breast. He then dropped the scissors and said: 'I am killed, but he swore he would kill the whole family.'

After he was shot he succeeded in getting the gun from the defendant, and his wife still had hold of him, and he tried to shoot his daughter. The wife pushed the gun down so that it was out of his reach, and the ball struck his daughter just above the ankle, making only a flesh wound. The wife stated further, while not testifying, that William Taylor said he was ready to die himself and that he would kill them all and then kill himself. After he had shot his daughter he told them he was killed, and tried to persuade his wife to let him loose. She, thinking that he was only wanting to get a chance to kill them, continued to hold him with the empty gun in his hand until she could send for some of the neighbors. Shortly some one came in and took the gun, and the matter ended.

As soon as William Taylor got sober he said the boy did right in shooting him and saving the life of his mother. Under this testimony the court discharged the defendant, Tom Taylor. The citizens say if Tom ought to be punished at all it should be for not making a better shot.
