MISSIONARIES IN THE CAROLINE ISLANDS.

The Revista Christiana, a theological periodical published in Madrid, furnishes the following information regarding the progress made in introducing Christianity to the Caroline Islands.
The first attempt was made in 1843 by the Rev. J. P. Schlegel, who landed at Ponape, one of the islands of the Carolines.

THE GREAT SOUTHERN REBELLION.

It is not often now that Dr. Clark, the eminent principal of Glasgow university, preaches away from the university. When he does he always says something, and he is invariably listened to by an eager crowd.
A few Sundays ago he preached in Greenock, his native town. He told his hearers that religious belief was generally, so far as the individual was concerned, the result of a religious education.

THE LANGUAGE OF CHRIST.

The language used by Christ was the Aramaic, the dialect of Northern Syria. It is a fact that in the time of the Aramaean populations, and some words from that tongue became incorporated into the Hebrew at a very early date.
The Hebrew of the Bible had become the official language of both Judea and Assyria—that is, the language spoken at the courts. After the fall of Samaria the heathen inhabitants of Northern Israel were largely carried into captivity, and carrying it with them to the land of the Assyrians, it was probably spoken by the Jews in the Diaspora.
