MONDAY MORNING, JULY 6

LET the Radicals monopolize the bloody shirt. Wah-hoss statesmanship must go.

FIVE hundred thousand acres more added to the barbed-wire pastures of the bullionaires. The lease law must go.

THE enlargement of the big pastures in the West will be funny to the lease monopolists. Nero fiddled while Rome burned.

THE New York appointments confirm the growing impression that the president of the United States spells his name Cleveland.

THE determination of Mr. Gladstone to remain in politics makes a Liberal victory at the coming elections in England very probable.

THE new postal law which went into effect Wednesday, enables letter-writers to add a half ounce more of nonsense at the same old price.

AN EVEN, symmetrical development of Texas for Texas may be found with deep water at Aransas, Sabine or Valasco, as well as at Galveston.

UNLIMITED leasing this summer means unlimited fence-cutting next fall. Like causes produce like effects. This is a prediction, not a threat.

IT WILL never do to say again there is nothing in a name since Miss Sweet, the pension agent at Chicago, has bluffed the whole Democratic administration.

THERE are some people who can detect no inhumanity in making a convict earn his own living; but unfortunately not enough of them are sent to the legislature.

SENATOR LOGAN wants Republican office-holders removed more rapidly. In this respect the Illinois senator is in accord for the first time with several million Democrats.

SECRETARY WHITNEY has revoked the order requiring naval officers to leave their families at home. The government is evidently determined to put down flirting among the marines.

ADVERTISEMENTS may go and advertisements may scarce and scarcer grow, but that "wharf-rate" ad. in the Galveston End sticketh as a brother. Wonder if it is to be duplicated next fall in the Dallas End?

CHANDLER says that the Dolphin is fully up to the plans and specifications, and that John Roach isn't to blame at all. This is very kind to Mr. Roach, but it leaves the world still in doubt as to whether the late secretary was an ass or a knave.

MR. WILLIAM DORSHEIMER of New York ran for president and got to be United States district attorney. His is hardly a parallel case to that of the rising young statesman in North Texas who went to the last legislature on a candidacy for constable.

RIGHT HON. HENRY HOWARD MOLYNEUX, earl of Carnarvon, the new lord-lieutenant of Ireland, and J. Armory Knox of Texas Siftings, are as much alike as a pair of African twins. It is not stated, however, that Molyneux owes his promotion to this account.

BIG BEAR wrote Gen. Middleton that such of his troops as were not devoured by his braves would be finished by the bull-dogs and mosquitos, and the latter immediately stopped the pursuit. The general has evidently seen military service against the Indians in Texas.

IF IT wasn't for the libel law of Texas, the people of the state might now be informed how public servants make a "private trust" of high place. That libel law was framed to protect corrupt officials. If THE GAZETTE had the money to spare, the tale would be told.

THE one hundred new cattle companies which were chartered in June will each want from 50,000 to 500,000 acres of land from the state. By the time they get through leasing, the actual settler will be restricted to scraps of sections too stony to produce grass, but good enough to grow babies, according to the present article of statesmanship that controls. Poor old Texas.

EVERY acre of land leased is one acre gone from settlement, was the verdict of a distinguished member of the administration several months ago. On that basis nearly one million acres will be taken away from settlement this month. Are the people of Texas ready to see one-third of its richest territory seized from the grasp of the advancing settler and converted into pastures?

THE man, Pyers, who was legally flogged in Maryland the other day, for whipping his wife, was heard to say: "This is hard treatment for a white man." The beating he gave his wife was very hard treatment for a white woman. There is a depth of depravity in the beating of a woman by her husband that no civilized penalty can reach. No penalty can degrade a man guilty of such a crime. And as flogging will be more likely than anything else to prevent the crime, flogging ought to be made the penalty for wife-beating.

THE GAZETTE'S hatred for Waco is only exceeded by its yearning affection for Dallas, and Pfouts.—[Waco Examiner.

That's unkind and untrue. THE GAZETTE has no cause to hate Waco, but much cause to admire and like Waco. Even if we hated the Examiner, which we do not, the Examiner is not Waco. We like Waco and we like the Examiner, but that is no reason why we should advocate every Waco man for an office. To advocate the claims of every Dallas and every Waco man would require all the newspaper space in Texas.

Deep Water for Texas.

The growing demand for deep water on the coast of Texas is one that merits the serious practical consideration, not only of the people, but of the representatives of the people in the national congress? There must be some cause for the delay in this matter; there must be some reason for the comparative neglect of a state like Texas, while territories with less need of harbor improvements have received the liberal care of the government. THE GAZETTE is forced to believe that the cause of this neglect, by which property values and material interests in all sections of the state have been retarded, is a perverted sentimentality on the part of many people and downright selfishness on the part of many others. The marvelous growth of Texas, the tremendous increase in its annual production, and the welfare of each section of the state, demand a consideration of this question, uninfluenced by "a shriveled localism." The time has come to take a common-sense, practical, business-like view of the question of deep water for Texas, for the welfare of the people demands such consideration of the question. Indeed, true sentiment, that patriotic sentiment which favors "an even, symmetrical development of the state" so far as deep water may promote it, demands this unselfish view of it. "The shriveled localism" that would pervert, and that has in the past perverted all the sentiment of Texas to the uses of local selfishness, must now give way to a broader, more patriotic view and effort. Texas—not any particular sea-coast town—demands deep water, and the effort should hereafter be to secure deep water for Texas, and not for any one coast town, which may or may not continue to do business at the old stand, as it may be able to paralyze the energies of Texas by the appeals of selfishness to sentiment.

What are the claims of any one town on the coast as compared with the welfare of a state which now numbers 2,000,000 people? Railroads will be only too glad and too prompt to seek deep water, but years of waiting afford ample proof that deep water cannot, does not, seek railroads. Else, there would be deep water at Houston, which is the greatest railroad center in Texas. Let us look at this question sensibly, patriotically, sentimentally, and work for Texas. Let a survey determine where deep water is most feasible, cheapest and most certain and permanent; and then, to secure deep water at that place, let the people and the people's representatives band all their energies. What is there unpatriotic, unfair, in this course? Who will find fault with it save those who are actuated by a "shriveled localism" that has stood for years between the people of Texas and their interests and deep water on the coast?

Congressmen and Patronage.

As between a president who claims the right clearly given him by the constitution to exercise his own discretion in nomination with the avowed purpose, shown by his acts to be sincere, to exercise that discretion in the interest of a pure, safe, efficient and just administration, and a body of congressmen who claim the privilege nowhere recognized in them by the constitution and the laws to dictate nominations to the president in order to advance their personal and partisan ends, there is no question on which side the overwhelming preponderance of public opinion will be found. It will not only be on the side of the president, but it will know how to make itself felt.

The above, from some unknown exchange, is in direct line with the tendency of public sympathy. The "privileges" of congressmen to dictate nominations is one of the chief obstacles to that civil-service reform which is demanded by the best interests of the country. A congressman, as any other citizen, no more, no less, has the right to recommend; but beyond that the "privilege" has grown up to be a source of corruption and a menace to the country. If President Cleveland shall do no more than to emphasize the public desire for civil-service reform and abridge the "privileges" of congressmen, who are chosen to make laws and not to fill the public offices with their henchmen, he will do that which will mark an epoch in the political history of the country and endear his administration to every sincere patriot.

Excuse Us.

An exchange has an article on "curing Limberger cheese at home." We don't want it cured at our home.

Works for Fort Worth.

Blanco Star-Vindicator.

Fort Worth has a set of live, enterprising citizens, but THE GAZETTE deserves much credit for what it has done for that city. It is true THE GAZETTE is for free grass; and we guess it is for free trade and free drinks. Anyhow, GAZETTE, you are doing a great deal for Fort Worth, and the business men of that city should give you a big patronage.

Fort Worth and the Gazette.

Van Alstyne Enterprise.

Fort Worth is one of the liveliest cities in Texas. The Fort Worth GAZETTE had a great deal to do with making it what it is. The merchants and people seemed to appreciate its (GAZETTE'S) efforts and influence, and gave it a good support—what it justly deserved, and THE GAZETTE, not to be outdone, has made Fort Worth the best advertised city or town in the state. Upward and onward is its watchword.

Works for the West.

Midland Staked Plain.

During our short experience with the newspapers of Texas we have not noticed a more staunch friend of West Texas than the Fort Worth GAZETTE. It gives full reports of all that is done to develop the West; is an untiring advocate of the interests of the actual settler and in every way is battling to overcome the ignorance and prejudice that exists respecting the staked plain. It is a good paper to tie to.

County Alliance Meeting.

Tarrant County alliance will convene at Grapevine July 17, 1885. It is hoped that each sub-alliance will be prompt in sending their delegates, bearing the proper credentials. It is requested that as many members, not representatives, be in attendance as possible. The house will be called to order promptly at 10 a. m by President Dwiggins.

J. M. HUMAN,
County Secretary.

Information Wanted.

Grapevine Telephone.

Mr. S A. Bowlin of Burke county, N. C., arrived in Grapevine several months since in search of his brother, T. J. Bowlin, who came to this part of Texas about nine years ago, but so far Mr. Bowlin has heard nothing of his brother's whereabouts Mr. T. J. Bowlin is about thirty years old, has blue eyes, red sandy hair, five feet eight inches in height and weighed 150 pounds. He married about eight years ago in either this, Dallas or Denton county, but his brother has been so far unable to find out who he married or in which of the three counties he married in. Any information as to his whereabouts will be thankfully received by Mr. S. A. Bowlin or this paper. Our exchanges will please copy.

Partial to Fort Worth.

Forney Register.

Mr. J. G. Williams, representing the W. A. Huffman Implement company of Fort Worth, has been with us for several days in the interest of his house. This house has not been represented in the territory east of Dallas to a great extent, but, from the amount of sales that Mr. Williams has made, we think there will be lively competition in the future between the leading companies of Fort Worth and Dallas. Our hay men are inclined to be a little partial to Fort Worth, any how, as she spends several thousand dollars with us annually for hay, while Dallas buys scarcely any. Already Mr. Williams has sold three cars of bailing ties, which is a large item for a place of this size. We can say that Mr. Williams is an elegant gentleman and represents a first-class house, and the Register wishes him success in his new territory, as this is his first trip among us.

Reversed and Remanded.

Marshall Herald.

The Fort Worth GAZETTE of the 25th contains the synopsis of decisions in seven state cases rendered by the court of appeals, six of which were reversed and remanded and only one affirmed.

It is a fearful commentary upon the administration of the criminal law of the state when every session of the court of last resort is marked by such wholesale reversals. Either the court must be lamentably deficient in ability, or a large number of the district judges and district attorneys of the state are ignorant of the plainest principles of law, or grossly negligent, and ought to be addressed out of office. And when we consider the great cost of these trials, the number of criminals turned loose annually upon society, the most of them upon mere technicalities, and the demoralizing effect of such reversals, it is strange that such a condition of affairs elicits so little commentary. It would be reasonably supposed that the enlightened portion of the bar and the leading journals of the state would institute a rigid investigation as to the causes of these innumerable reversals and propose a remedy for a condition of things that renders the administration of the criminal law in Texas a travesty upon justice, as understood by plain, honest, intelligent men. But the bar and press are silent. The leading journals of the state are diligent in collecting and publishing these decisions, but have nothing to say in regard to them or to the questions they involve, which so deeply concern the people.

In the decisions to which we specially allude in this article the court of appeals arraigns not only the district judges and district attorneys, but the legislature. In one case it says:

"The record fails to show that appellant, who was alone on the trial, ever pleaded to the charge or that a plea of not guilty was entered for him. Without the plea there was no issue to try. (See authorities everywhere.) This court suggested to the last (the Nineteenth) legislature the adoption of amendments to the code of procedure which would save reversal in a great majority of such cases, but that body, doubtless in the interest of the public welfare, concluded it was better to let the law remain as it is. We have no option in the matter." Reversed and remanded.

In the other cases the district courts are charged by the court of appeals with ignorance or the neglect of plain duties.

We repeat, there ought to be a remedy for this state of affairs, and there will be, if the leading journals of the state will do their duty.

TEXAS POLITICS,

As Reflected by the Newspapers of the State.

It will take a larger man than Ireland to fill Maxey's place.—[Alvarado Bulletin.

Gov. Ireland wants to go to the senate. We think his claims are good to go—home.—[Bowie Cross-Timbers.

The Waco Examiner is grooming Gov. Ireland for the senate instead of Mr. Maxey. A very hard job, we opine.—[Hillsboro Mirror.

The Fort Worth GAZETTE has warned Gen. Ross several times to put a bridle on his organ. If the general will heed this advice and unmuzzle his organ about three months before the state convention he may be successful—for a place on the ticket, but not the first.—[Bowie Cross-Timbers.

The talk about a third party in the field in Texas at the next election is all bosh. There will be two parties only, the Democratic and the Prohibition. The Republican party, such as it was, went to pieces in its great feat of attempting to ride two horses at once—Wash Jones and Gov. Norton.—[San Antonio Light.

In a letter to the Galveston News, Judge Reagan explains what he did say about the president and his cabinet. It is about what ex-Senator Terrell briefly stated, though the judge covers it up in a multitude of words which suggest the Frenchman's saying that the object of language is to conceal thought.—[Waco Day.

Mr. Foster of Limestone county took the stump in favor of prohibition during the recent contest in that county, and now the Hempstead Ledger asks him if he has quit Democracy for prohibition. If the Ledger intends counting out of the Democratic ranks all men who favor and work for prohibition it will find a very startling decrease in the 135,000 majority the G. O. P. gave Cleveland last year.—[Jewett Messenger.

If anybody thinks Barnett Gibbs is out of Texas politics somebody is mistaken. Gibbs is a live man and a man of the people, and is as certain of political promotion as he lives. This may not be the time for Gibbs, but his time is coming and at no very distant day. If he concludes to make the race next year for his present place, no man in Texas can beat him, and after then he can name his own political future.—[Meridian Blade.

Private Swain will undoubtedly make the race for governor, and we believe that he and Ross will be the chief candidates. We must admit it looks badly for Swain. If Ross can gather to him all the brevetted heroes in Texas and leave Swain with the privates, the latter won't poll ten votes. This country is too overflowing with captains, colonels, majors et al, for a private to have much show.—[Dallas Times.

And now the Galveston News is writing articles in opposition to the fundamental principle of Democracy—the right of the majority of the people to rule—on the prohibition question, of course; it's all right in everything else. The News was never overburdened with Democracy, anyway, and its tirade against the Democratic doctrine of the people running their own government in their own way will not tend to disabuse the public mind of the idea that it is run for the purpose of gathering in the almighty dollar, regardless of every other consideration.—[Limestone New Era.

And so the News has concluded to make Barney Gibbs governor and Seth Shepherd senator! This ought to make both ends of the News, present and prospective, solid at their respective resting places. Would not still another branch at Austin, with Terrell down in the books for something fat, strengthen the combination? Branches also at Fort Worth, Waco, Houston and San Antonio, with a favorite candidate judiciously located at each point, might tend to an even and symmetrical political development of the state. But are there enough rich men to go around—that is, rich men with political ambition and a corresponding] pan-handedness?—[San Antonio Express.

Never Give Up.

A Would-Be Train-Wrecker Captured —A Horse Stolen.

Special to the Gazette.

TEMPLE, TEX., July 5.—Detective A. N. Woody and Constable Chinn, who left here last evening for Moody in search of John Morris, the alleged train-wrecker, captured their man near Moody last night after some resistance, and brought him here this morning. The proof against him is said to be very strong. He will have a preliminary trial before Justice Lowry on Tuesday next.

R. P. Bigham rode a good horse into the city last night and hitched at a rack on Twelfth street. After a short time Mr. Bigham went after his horse and the animal was gone. Parties who knew the horse saw an unknown man ride him off in a western direction. A diligent search has been made, but to 8 o'clock this evening no trace of the man or horse had been found.

A Great Discovery.

Mr. Wm. Thomas of Newton, Iowa, says: "My wife has been seriously affected with a cough for twenty-five years, and this spring more severely than ever before. She had used many remedies without relief, and being urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery, did so with the most gratifying results. The first bottle relieved her very much and the second bottle has absolutely cured her. She has not had so good health for thirty years." Trial bottles free at H. W. Williams & Co.'s drug store. Large size $1.

A Stockman Missing.
