A GREAT SCHOOL.

Mrs. Warren Writes of the Famous Chautauqua University.

Extremely Beautiful, Highly Intellectual and Attended by Enthusiastic Pupils Instructed by Profound Scholars.

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y., Aug. 12, 1889.
Editor of the Gazette.

Thinking a few words from this remarkable educational center might prove of interest, this letter is written. It is impossible for one who has not visited Chautauqua to form a just conception of its advantages. In the first place, the climate is remarkably cool, not only proving bracing and invigorating to the entire system, but necessitating the constant use of wraps, even at this season. However, this feature fades into insignificance when compared with the marvellous intellectual and spiritual advantages of the now famous resort. Here congregate the educators of the world, not only to formulate plans for the education of the nation, but also to give inspiration to all others for higher culture. Here the noblest moral lessons are at work, and a desire aroused for the regeneration of all one's possibilities for good.

The great American university is situated in a grove of stately trees on the northwestern shore of the small but beautiful lake Chautauqua. The principal buildings are the great amphitheater, built on the style of a Greek theater; the hall of philosophy, which is, in all respects, an exact imitation of the temple of Theseus at Athens; the Kellogg memorial hall, recently erected by James Kellogg in memory of his mother, and donated to the university; and the Hotel Adirondack, a beautiful structure, modern and elegantly equipped.

The first session of this institution was held in 1874, but the richness and variety of the water prescribed led to a demand for a permanent organization. Year by year steps have been taken, until now, in 1889, we find a magnificent academy of languages, art, literature and science, and beside the old university of Bologna of the centuries ago.

The principal departments are the Chautauqua teachers' retreat, Chautauqua school of the English Bible, and the college of liberal arts. As instructors of these schools, we find the most eminent scholars America affords. Johns Hopkins, Yale, and many other universities of this country, have not only given their best representatives, but grand old Trinity college comes to the front with one of Dublin's names, Professor J. P. Mahaffy. This ripe scholar gave a most interesting lecture a day or two ago on the Irish Question. He is a Liberal Unionist and evidently believes that all intelligent people on both sides of the water entertain the same political opinions. He thinks the American party must be very careful, and that in permitting it to be guilty of national discourtesy.

Tuesday, the 6th inst., was the opening day of the Sixteenth assembly, which is considered by all to be the most successful in the history of Chautauqua. The quantity and variety of entertainments afforded by the management, certainly no one can complain. There are lectures on all subjects from high art to cooking. Now, Dr. Ely of Johns Hopkins tells of the evils of the "Labor Problem." Dr. Mahaffy discusses Greek Archeology. Dr. Mansueto of Chicago, the brilliant lecturer in biography, holds his audiences spell bound. Dr. Swing of Chicago delivers various addresses. Prof. Ragan gives illustrated lectures on Venice, Rome, Belgium and Holland, and a host of others on different subjects, entertain the thousands.

These, together with numerous sermons, conferences, processions, concerts and displays of fireworks afford instruction for the earnest and amusement for those of leisure hours.

I cannot refrain from speaking of the beauty of the place on "opening night." One might have imagined himself in the valley of the Nile enjoying a veritable "feast of lanterns." Around the hall of philosophy burned the "Athenian watch fires," and adding to many other novel attractions, the great natural beauty of the place, the grand old trees, the smooth lawns, the picturesque tents, the blue, rippling waters, with their white sails and floating palaces, and we have a picture indeed worthy of remembrance.

All in all, Chautauqua is a marvellous place. Such earnestness and enthusiasm can nowhere else be seen. Here seem combined the strict moral observances of the Puritans and the integrity of the Academics. The scriptural mandate, "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy," has here its primitive force. Not a gate is opened, not a boat permitted to touch the shore.

The influence of Chautauqua is all for good, and when at 10 every night the melancholy melody of the chimes summons all to slumber, we can but feel as he "wraps the drapery of his couch about him" that here is everything to quicken intellectual life and arouse noble thoughts and purposes.

Mrs. Ed F. Warren.

Attempted Revolution.
KALAKAUA I., KING OF HAWAII, AGAINST WHOM HAS BEEN AN UNSUCCESSFUL OUT-BREAK.

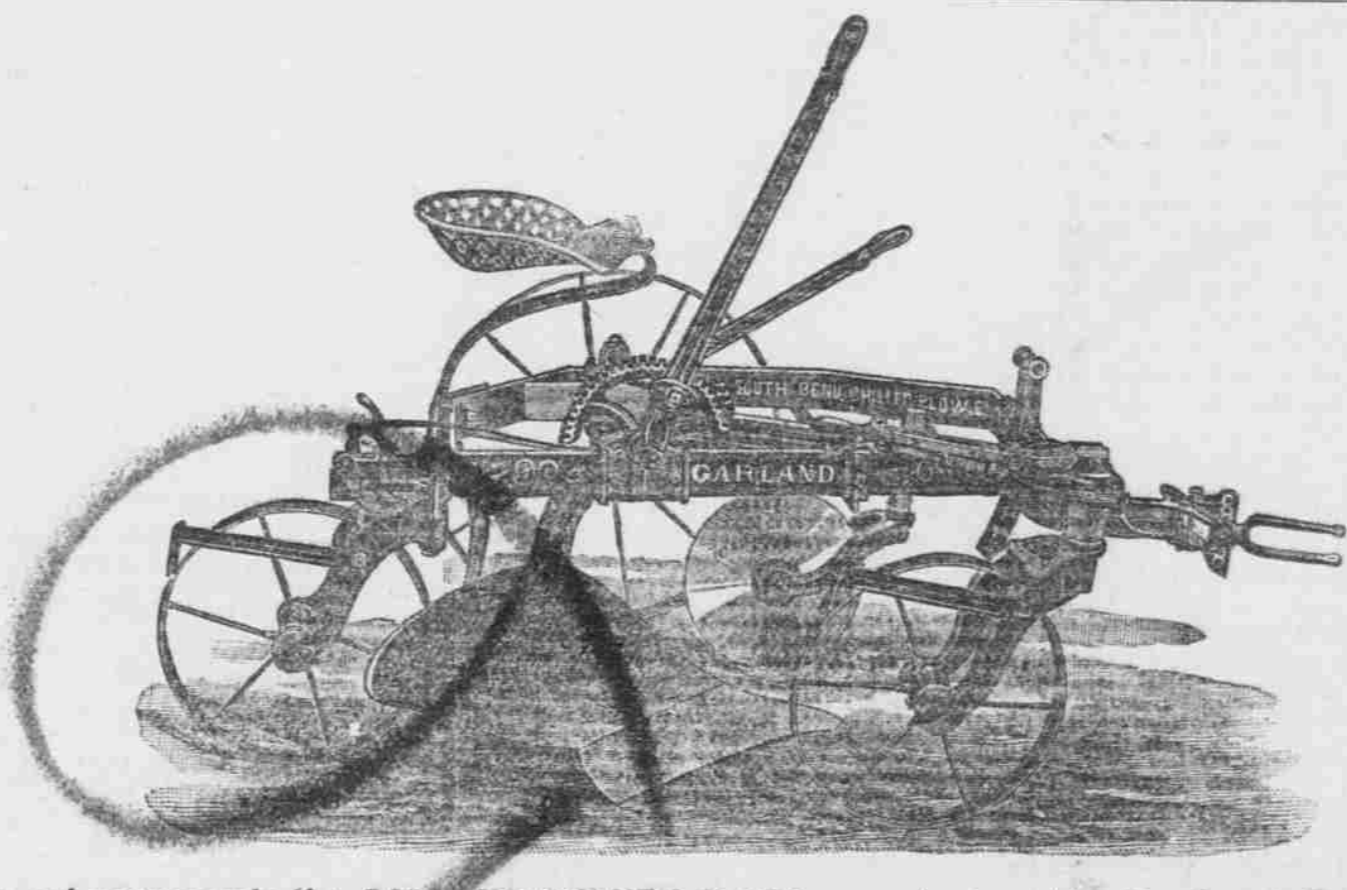

Readers have been thoroughly informed of the outbreak at Honolulu, Hawaii, against King Kalakaua I., which took place on July 30. It was led by Robert W. Wilcox and Robert Boyd, and shared in by some hundreds of men. Natives of Hawaii are said to be in sympathy with the movement, and the conviction of the prisoners taken is not likely to happen. One object of the insurgents was to depose the unpopular king, of whom we give a picture, and to make his sister, the Princess Liliuokalani queen. Kalakaua, who is reported to be a spendthrift and a man of dissipated character, is of pure Hawaiian blood, and akin to the ancient royal family of the kingdom. He was born on November 16, 1836, the son of the Chiefess Keolokaloie and Kapakapa. When, in the year 1873, King Lunalilo I. died, Kalakaua was elected by the parliament to succeed him. The king was crowned with ridiculous and costly ostentation in February, 1883. He was expected to cross the continent on a trip to Paris within a few weeks' time, but is not now expected to make the journey.

This cut represents the GARLAND SULKEY PLOW, manufactured by the South Bend Chilled Plow Company, and is constructed under the direct supervision of Mr. W. L. Casaday, who has a national reputation as a Sulkey Plow Inventor.

You will observe from the cut that we have thrown aside the pole, the Guiding is done by a separate lever, which accomplishes the purpose better and easier than with the pole. Neither do we need the pole in holding the plow from running on the team, as our automatic brake holds it back.

LIGHT :: DRAFT :: IS :: GUARANTEED.

The most prominent feature is our SIMPLICITY; it is so constructed that a one-armed man, a small boy, or any one who can handle a team, can do good work, and easier than a professional expert can with any other sulkey manufactured in America.

This may appear to be a broad assertion, but you can satisfy yourself by coming, seeing, and trying, and you will find out that what we have stated is TRUE. Everything GUARANTEED. Write for prices and terms.
