THE RANGE OF OUR BATTLESHIP GUNS.

They Can Reach the City of Santiago Without Having to Go Into the Bay at That Place.

Washington, July 9.—Attention has been directed to the range of guns on our ships, for on this depends whether the bombardment will be confined to outer forts or whether it will be effective upon Santiago itself. There are five battleships and two armored cruisers besides the lesser ships to open this fire, namely, the battleships Iowa, Indiana, Massachusetts, Oregon, Texas and armored cruisers New York and Brooklyn. The Oregon and Iowa are to be rushed with the eastern squadron to the coast of Spain and therefore may not take part in the bombardment.

The three battleships and two armored cruisers combined have 26 huge 13-inch, 12-inch and 8-inch guns, having a range of 10 to 13 miles on an accurate elevation, and a range of over six miles on the elevation which can be given in turrets. This is an elevation which can clear Morro castle and the harbor batteries and can about reach the city of Santiago. The maximum elevation on shipboard is 17 degrees, which limits the full range of the heavy guns about one-half. It is only the large guns above mentioned that have a range which could get anywhere near the city, as the 6-pounders and under, have a range of not over three or four miles, while the galling guns are of close range, usually not exceeding 1000 yards.

Naval experts say that the bombardment will be confined mainly to the forts and batteries, for while the big guns can about reach the harbor, yet the most effective work can be done against Morro, Cayo Smith, the Socaps and other fortifications leading up to the city. Once these are reduced the way is clear to Santiago.

FEEDING NONCOMBATANTS.

So Many Have Applied For Food That Shafter May Be Embarrassed.

Washington, July 9.—Lively interest is taken by the war department officials in the reports regarding the large number of refugees who have fled in panic from Santiago to avoid the horrors of war. Many of these people, non-combatants, have looked to General Shafter for assistance, which may make a severe drain on the commissary branch of the expedition. Especially is this so in view of the great difficulty experienced by the general in getting his supplies from the transports to the shore. If the city of Santiago holds out for a long time and Shafter has the non-combatants on his hands to feed, the question of their sustenance may become a serious one for the government. General Shafter has authority to issue rations to the hungry people and he undoubtedly will do so to the greatest extent without impairing his own resources. He has full discretion to act in the matter, and will do his utmost to relieve any suffering that may exist.

For the time being he has all the stores necessary for his command, and enough to deal out some supplies to the Cubans, as General Egan of the commissary department shipped such a quantity on the transports. In addition to those already there is in port the Victor about to leave New York with a great mass of all kinds of eatable merchandise, to be followed soon thereafter by the Mohawk and Mississippi with stores of refrigerated beef and fresh vegetables.

Two Warships May Be Saved.

Washington, July 9.—Information has been sent to Washington by Sampson that the Cristobal Colon can be saved and added to the American navy, and that there is a possibility that the Maria Teresa can be of some service.

Two Men Mortally Wounded.

Texarkana, Tex., July 9.—A shooting scrape occurred about seven miles from this place in which D. A. Babb and Ernest Allen were mortally wounded. Their assailant was J. M. Neal, a tenant on Babb's farm. He came to Texarkana immediately after the affray and surrendered. Neal states that Babb and Allen disliked him and had threatened his life before. They attacked him in a watermelon patch with Winchester rifles. He was never, however, and drawing two revolvers from his boots he fired with both hands until he disabled the men. None of their shots caught Neal.

Francisco Cisneros Dead.

New York, July 9.—Francisco J. Cisneros is dead at the Windsor hotel, of Bright's disease and neuritis of the heart, aged 62. He was a man of large wealth and was a descendant of one of the most noted Cuban families. All of his brothers had notable careers as lawyers, physicians and engineers. He was a member of the same family of which Cardinal Cisneros, the famous Spanish prelate, was a member.

Suit Against the Fee Gee.

Texarkana, July 9.—Attorney General M. M. Crane of Texas has filed suit in the district court of Bowie county, Tex., praying for the forfeiture of the charter of the Kansas City, Pittsburg and Gulf railway. The action is based on the requirement that the company maintain its general offices in the state of Texas. It alleges that the offices were moved out of Texas last January and the penalty asked for is $800,000 damages besides an additional damage of $5000 per day following the filing of the suit.

THE NAVY NEEDS SMOKELESS POWDER.

Many a Shot Sent Wild on Account of American Vessels Being Equipped in Smoke.

New York, July 9.—A dispatch to The Times from Washington says: Later stories from Santiago about the engagement between the fleets of Sampson and Cervera dwell with particular stress on the inexperience and distress caused the American gunners by the use of the old fashioned smoking powder. It is not doubted by ordnance experts that the winning of the flying Spanish ships would have been accomplished even more promptly than it was had our guns been fired with smokeless powder. As it was in the mad race and swift succession of shots fired after the Spanish ships our vessels were enveloped in the smoke of their own guns that many a shot went wild that otherwise would have struck home.

Inquiry at the ordnance bureau of the navy department as to the prospects of our warships being supplied with smokeless powder elicited the information that there is no probability of this being done, generally, for a considerable time to come. Commodore O'Neill, chief of the ordnance bureau, said that the bureau had placed very large orders with private manufacturers for smokeless powder and that large consignments of it were being received and forwarded to the ships off Santiago. It would take a long time, however, the commodore said, to supply all the ships, and in view of the quantities of ammunition likely to be used there, it would be difficult to present facilities for manufacturing the powder in this country to keep them supplied.

What a Spanish Consul Says.

Madrid, July 9.—The Spanish consul at Hong Kong cables that the insurgents at Cavite, Manila bay, have "revolted against the Americans." He adds that a sharp fusillade was expected, and that the result is not known. In another part of the dispatch the Spanish consul makes the assertion that the majority of the Philippine insurgents have received the American reinforcements with hostility because they included a number of negroes.

Two More Vessels Seized.

Washington, July 9.—The war department has announced the purchase of the steamer City of Berlin, owned by the International Navigation company for use as a transport. She can accommodate a regiment of infantry and the horses of officers of two regiments. She will be overhauled and fitted up preparatory to her departure south.

The Department Also Has Bought the Steamer Rita, one of the Spanish prize ships captured by our vessels. She will be fitted out for transport purposes.

Must Get a Tip From Spain.

Madrid, July 9.—According to newspapers here the Spanish minister of foreign affairs, Duke of Almodovar de Rio, declaring no European power is disposed to intervene in behalf of peace unless the belligerents make a request to that effect.

STEAMER BURNS AT SEA.

All the Passengers and Crew Saved, but the Vessel Was Lost.

New York, July 9.—The Clyde steamer Delaware, from New York for Charleston and Jacksonville, was abandoned off Barnegat, N. J., at 10:30 o'clock Friday night, being alive. The passengers and crew left the vessel on boats and life rafts. There were 70 persons in all, and they were rescued by the members of the Cedar Creek lifesaving station, with the aid of the fishing smack S. P. Miller. All the passengers were transferred to the steam yacht Ocean King. The captain and 12 of the crew of the ill-fated steamer were landed at Barnegat, presumably to look after the ship.

Only One Bill Fails to Pass.

Washington, July 9.—Only one bill which passed both houses of congress failed to become a law on account of the failure of the president to attach his signature. It was a house bill appropriating $10,000 to carry into effect some provisions of the Curtis bill concerning the government of the Indian Territory. It passed the senate about a minute before 2 o'clock and not in time to receive the signature of either the vice president or the speaker of the house.

Wants to Surrender.

The News circulator here received the following last night from the Galveston News: "Secretary Alger gave the correspondents positive information that the bombardment of Santiago began at noon, but now states that Linares has offered to surrender conditionally. Armistice extended until noon tomorrow (Sunday)."

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. English and Mr. Mrs. Jas. O. Chance and little son left last night for Buffalo, N. Y.

Mr. Richard Harding Davis, in a hysterical dispatch to the New York Herald, condemns the entire conduct of the fight at Santiago and especially reproaches Gen. Shafter for remaining two miles in the rear of the fighting front, says the Galveston Tribune. In the first place Gen. Shafter has been compelled to keep his tent on account of illness. In the second place, a commanding general's place is in rear. In the third place, Mr. Harding's commanding ability as a story-teller does not necessarily imply military knowledge superior to that of the entire war department, which has daily and hourly advice of Shafter's movements.

ARCHITECTURAL ART.

Nineteenth Century Experiments and Results Which Have Been Fruitless.

The best that can be said of the architecture of the nineteenth century is that it has been an architecture of exceptionally learned, ingenious and accomplished individualities. It has been an art of experiments which have failed and of revivals which have been fruitless. These individualities, with their consciousness highly educated and trained, have been embarrassed rather than aided by their knowledge of the great achievements of the past. It does not seem to have occurred to them to appeal to the sympathies of the people by storing their inspirations in the vulgar tongue, but they have labored with immense talent and ingenuity to interpret and apply dead languages. Their efforts have been reinvented, excessive and experimental. The architects have analyzed, theorized, disputed and argued. They have formed schools concerning classic or romantic traditions—a class which have fallen apart because progress has been found to be impossible in merely archaeological lines.

Many of the individuals under these conditions brilliant and powerful and a following of lesser men has advanced certain theories which have been inspired by loftier motives. The architecture of the nineteenth century, because it has been in the same soil that produced the telegraph, the telephone, other triumphs of industry, exhibited a certain sporadic occasional thrown out of the full of the possibilities of invention, but because it has the advantage of concentration, it did not flower as it flourished in the teeth and sixteen years of the Augustus—Henry Van der Lant.

MADE IN MASSACHUSETTS.

Interesting Facts About Spools and Strips.

"Oxford county, Me. is the only all the spools and strips of this kind in the world." The writer, "The spools are white birch timber, produced by the mill in Oxford. There are many other parts of Maine, also, where the industry is important. There are numerous in that part of the state which use all the year round. The birch logs into strips 4 feet from 1 to 2 inches wide and 1/2 inch thick. These strips are spool factories, where they are worked into spools by the long labor saving machinery. "The strips of white birch are to one machine, and they are not turned, in fact, are hardly seen again, until the spools, all finished for market except polishing, drop out by the bush from another machine several rods away from where the strips started in. The spools get their gloss by being rapidly revolved in barrels turned by machinery, the polish resulting from the contact of the spools in the barrel.

"In the backwoods villages of Oxford county one sees scarcely any other industry but spoolmaking, and every person in the neighborhood is in some way interested in the business. The factories have been eating into the Maine birch forests for years, but there still seems to be enough of the timber left to feed the machinery for many years to come. Hundreds of thousands of feet of logs are cut and sawed into spool timber.

Interior Photography.

To make a good portrait in the ordinary room is quite a difficult task, as all the light to be had comes through the window and leaves the shadow side of the portrait underexposed. This can somewhat be remedied by the use of a piece of white muslin about 12 feet long and about 3 feet wide or more.

Stretch a string across the room parallel with the window and fasten it to a point about six feet from the window, and also six feet from the floor. Fasten the muslin over the top of the window and throw the other end over the string, allowing it to fall to the floor. This forms a sort of one-half side of a tent, and this somewhat confines the light and reflects it on the subject, so that your object and helps to brighten and soften the light. In using muslin for a background place them behind the sitter as far as the wall will allow, so as to produce a soft effect. Place the string about three feet from the window and about opposite the far side of the easement. Pull the window down from the top, and perhaps it would be best to cover up the lower part of the window with some dark cloth or paper. Close all doors so as not to have any draft, and then make the exposure.—J. A. Boss in New York Mail and Express.
