THE DAILY EAGLE.

MAGAZINE CAREER, EDITOR.

Entered at the Postoffice at Bryan, Texas, as Second Class mail matter.

Galveston is to have some good races January 11 and 12.

Bryan is fortunate in having no business failures of importance for a long while.

Senator Sherman takes issue with the president, and opposes the retirement of the greenbacks.

The man who blows in the money with which he ought to pay his debts, has a queer conception of honesty.

Apostle Brann thinks the United States can lick the British in half the time it took to conquer the confederacy.

The Mason, Miss. man who committed suicide in a cemetery paid a neat compliment to his own sense of propriety.

A third bond issue has been made by the present administration. It will doubtless be a case of "three times and out."

In these times of war, and rumors of war, the mug of some new president in some unheard-of country looms up in the papers every day.

A lantern trust has been organized, and an advance of 33 per cent on the output of factories ordered. Jack-o'-lanterns and lantern jaws are not included in the raise.

Secretary Olney, while attending to Great Britain, is not neglecting United States citizens in Turkey. He has directed Minister Terrell to demand from the Turkish government $100,000 indemnity for American property destroyed in the Armenian troubles.

A fashion editor gives the following advice for removing freckles: "Treat them with lemon juice twice a day. Tincture of iodine will hide but not remove them without also removing the hide. For a bad case of confluent freckles we would suggest a shell game, where the operation of skinning is painless and speedy."

Utah has at last been admitted to statehood, with polygamy prohibited, and the Mormons are pulling out to Mexico, where the pleasure of having a house full of wives and a yard full of children will not be denied them. They are very industrious people, however, and will make the country to which they are going blossom like a rose.

If England and the United States go to war, the census bill will be an assertion of the Monroe doctrine in protection of a little insignificant country in South America, having an area of 672,807 square miles, and a mixed population of whites, negroes, Indians, mulattoes and zambos, the latter probably being a combination of all the others. The whites number less than 3 per cent.

England is about to become involved in a war with Germany about a filibustering expedition of one Dr. Jameson in the Transvaal of South Africa. The whole world has had about enough of English arrogance, and in the event of war with any considerable power, "Tight Little Isle" will find it difficult to maintain its grip on any of its foreign and widely scattered possessions.

To the Stockmen of Texas.

SECRETARY'S OFFICE,
TEXAS LIVE STOCK ASSOCIATION,
FORT WORTH, TEX., Jan. 3, 1896.

The object of this letter is to urge upon you the great importance of your attendance at the coming annual meeting of the Texas Live Stock Association in San Antonio on the 14th and 15th of this month. The railroad companies will issue half fare round trip tickets; the good people of San Antonio are making unusual preparations for the entertainment of their visitors; an attractive program, embracing all important branches of the live stock interests, has been prepared and assigned to prominent speakers, and the proceedings will terminate with an excursion to Mexico, which a large number have already signified their intention of joining.

Apart from the above inducements, therefore, however, stronger reasons for desiring your attendance. The cattle and sheep interests of our state are at present in a condition from which there will before long be a change, either for better or worse, which it is to depend greatly upon legislative action. For this reason it is now of vital importance that not only stock raisers, but all who are interested in the industry should confer together, and decide upon some specific action. You can readily see, therefore, how directly you are interested, and the consequent importance of your attendance at this meeting.

You are further kindly requested to give as much publicity as possible to this call, and urge the attendance of your friends. The association wishes it understood that all are free to address the meeting, and a special invitation is tendered non-members to meet with us and participate in our deliberations. Yours very truly,
Geo. B. LEVINE,
Secretary.

I have on hand at all times a full and complete line of feed stuffs. Your trade will be appreciated. Prompt delivery.

A wall from the Countess Cass tellane, nee Anna Gould, came across the briny deep from gay Patee. It seems that her noble husband is spending her money lavishly in dissipation, and making life a burden to her generally. Well, she bought it and paid for it, and she will have to put up with it, and we hope it will continue to make things warm for her. An American woman who chooses a spigot of dismantled royalty in preference to her own countrymen, deserves no better fate than an opportunity for lifelong repentance.

The Sabine and East Texas railway is paying Jefferson county 25 cents per day for the labor of every tramp arrested within the limits of the county for stealing rides on trains, the last legislature having made such an offense a misdemeanor, and double in the sum of $5. The Southern Pacific is furnishing the tramps by wholesale. Altogether it is a smooth scheme that a little work out of the Wandering Willies and Weary Walkers.

The Venezuelan commission has met and organized, Justice Brewer being chosen president.

The Daily Examiner, Navasota, has resumed publication, after a short suspension.

For those interested, will state the following prices on coal: 504 pounds or less, 50 cents per 100 pounds; 600 to 1000 pounds, 40 cents per 100 pounds; 1000 pounds, or one ton, 35 cents per 100 pounds. Phone 57.

A Brilliant Wedding.

From the Denton News-Pam.
Tuesday night, as the old year was falling into the new, Mr. Will H. Davis and Miss Olivia Virginia Fisher were united in marriage by the Rev. M. C. Hinton, in the presence of numerous relations and friends, at the residence of the bride's parents in this city. The scene was a striking one. The apacious and elegant dwelling, brilliant with electric lights, seemed itself to welcome the guests to the warmth and comfort within, where all was gaiety and animation in the throng of well-dressed men and women. The ceremony was performed in the large sitting room, in the embrasured window of which at its eastern end a pretty bow of evergreens and flowers had been erected. Promptly at the time appointed (8:30 o'clock), to the sweet strains of music from the orchestra in the hall, the bridal party appeared, advancing down an aisle formed by parallel lines white ribbon, the outer ends of which were held by little Miss Blanche Fisher and Hannah Walker, sister and cousin of the bride. The attendants were followed by the beautiful bride, leaning on the arm of the groom. When they reached the head of the room the attendants parted, the ladies on one side and the gentlemen on the other, and the bride and groom, passing between, stood before the minister, who, in solemn and impressive tones, pronounced the words that made the twain one, and they turned to receive the congratulations that came warm and sincere from the hearts of the spectators.

The bride was radiantly lovely in a handsome dress of pink brocaded silk, worn on train, with chiffon and ribbon trimming, and with gloves and slippers to match. Her neck was encircled by a string of pearls, in her hair was a pink comb, and in her hand she carried an elegant pink silk fan.

At a later hour dancing lent its charm to the enjoyment of the occasion. Refreshments were served in an adjoining room.

By 10 o'clock the greater part of the guests had departed, and an hour later all was said, and the bridal party were driven to the depot, and Mr. and Mrs. Davis boarded the case en route to Monterey, Mexico, where the honeymoon will be spent.

The contracting parties are well and favorably known here. Mr. Davis, the groom, is a member of the dry goods and clothing firm of Webb Bros. & Davis. Coming here a stranger a few years ago, he has built up a splendid trade, and the firm now occupies the largest and handsomest store in town. Energy, tact and sound business principles are the means by which Mr. Davis has achieved such eminent success.

His fair young bride is the eldest daughter of Captains and Mrs. A. S. Fisher. Born and reared here, she is known and loved by all. Lovely in person and disposition, she possesses all the elements of true happiness, and the husband of her choice may truly be congratulated in winning such a rare prize.

Among those who attended the wedding was Mr. Webb of Bryan, a partner of Mr. Davis.

Dangers of Piano and Organ Notes.

Men, notes for payments on Pianos and Organs sold on installment are generally sold or transferred to others, hypothecated with Banks or Factories, or traded for other goods. Lien notes generally carry an additional 10 per cent Attorney's fees for collection. Lien notes, when placed in Banks for collection, may injure chances for loans when needed, hence no business man should give notes when buying instruments on installments.

Manufacturers who consign Pianos and Organs demand lien notes when instruments are sold; these people must have their money when notes are due, regardless of consequences.

Lien notes are liable to be held anywhere between Texas and New York, consequently those who sign them have no opportunity to plead for extension until too late.

Responsible houses who buy for cash do not demand notes—they are useless to them.

Agents and dealers who demand notes on installment sales generally state that notes do not pass from their possession. If this was true why do they take them? The usual contract is ample security in itself. Agents and dealers who say lien notes will be protected if not promptly paid, neglect to state that the notes are liable to be in the hands of parties unknown to them to whom manufacturers or others may sell them. Some agents demand deeds of trust in addition to notes. This system takes away every vestige of protection from customers.

We do not demand notes on installment sales, we simply take a lien as security, hence our patrons know where to apply when misfortune prevents them from making payments when due.

We can show over Five Thousand cases where we extended payments from three to twelve months to deserving parties after being due; every one of these would likely have lost not only all the cash paid, but instruments also, had they bought from dealers and agents who demand notes.

A Word on Consigned Pianos and Organs.

These instruments are what cannot be sold to dealers who buy for cash. Should they be their factories in good standing, they are liable to be what may be left after selections are made by cash buyers. Consigned instruments are shipped and reshipped to agents from town to town, and may have been in the hands of several families and back to factories for polishing up before finally sold.

First-Class Pianos are Never Consigned. Consignment agents almost invariably demand notes on installment sales. Don't buy consigned instruments if you want a reliable article, and do not give notes for deeds of trust when you buy on installments.

We have been established in Galveston since 1866, and have large houses also in Dallas, San Antonio, Houston, Austin and Waco. We carry everything in the music line.
