NATURAL GAS

There is a definite movement underway to develop natural gas for Corpus Christi. The system who stand behind the project are men of vision and heart. They are not in good faith and desire the individual welfare of the people. We are not at liberty to mention their names. They are capable of framing their own arrangement.

Corpus Christi needs natural gas. Deep water and cheap fuel are an irrefutable combination. Associated, they build cities, provide a dinner-table brigade, and produce prosperity. At WILCO Point there is an abundance of natural gas. The supply has been wasted woefully, but there must be enough billions of cubic feet left to assure manufacturers and households an ample supply for years to come.

Whenever one set of men applies for a franchise another set gets out the hammer. It has been so in the past, it will be so in the future. The average citizen is not interested in profits or losses that befall the producer, but in the supply of fuel itself. No franchise should be granted without careful investigation, and we do not believe that the City Council will grant a privilege unless its members are convinced that the applicant is sincere in his object.

Corpus Christi wants natural gas. Corpus Christi wants natural gas at the earliest practicable date and at the lowest price consistent with fair business. Provided the application does not pave the way for a monopoly there is no cause for concern. The provisions of the application will be open to debate, and the City Council will show no disposition to get into a tangle in the preference of the people.

GLAD TIDINGS

The news from Mesopotamia is the news. Bulgaria is still at war and involved in a bitter war with Turkey. Bulgaria has been declared a belligerent by the Western Powers according to Germany's demand and now Bulgaria is recognized. The Germans have had an important victory in Mesopotamia. The British have been successful in their operations against the Turks. The British have been successful in their operations against the Turks.

Germany is found to be in the relief of her position. The British have been successful in their operations against the Turks. The British have been successful in their operations against the Turks.

Unhappy advantage of the practice. The trouble is, however, that there has been a great deal of determination on the part of each one of the countries to force all the others in the way of doing. The result has been an endless and most annoying business of thought and action and a constant state of suspicion and distrust.

As to the state of America and her allies at least, England and France, they seem to be in a state of mind to do anything that will bring about a peace. They seem to be in a state of mind to do anything that will bring about a peace.

On the side of the belligerents, the situation is different. The belligerents are in a state of mind to do anything that will bring about a peace. They seem to be in a state of mind to do anything that will bring about a peace.

It seems likely, however, that the peace will be brought about in a way that will be satisfactory to all concerned. The peace will be brought about in a way that will be satisfactory to all concerned.

At the same time, there can be no doubt that the war has done much to bring about a peace. The war has done much to bring about a peace.
