THE SOLDIER'S MEMORIAL.

With the ending of the war the thoughts of the people are naturally turned to the men who fought for us.

Following other men there have been memorials and it must be said with regret that in a great many cases they have been thought of by the public.

It is not possible that a new idea must be suggested, but the idea since the late war. Already a number of memorials in the United States have been erected.

Evenings. Many a young man has spent his evenings in the saloons here because there was no place better to go.

When Corpus Christi begins giving its attention to the memorial idea it would be well to consider the Community House.

SOME LATE ONES
