Hypnotism and Into Buying Goods.

A curious case has just been decided in a Rockford, Ill., court, where hypnotism was set up as a defense against a suit for the collection of a note, and carried the day. It seems that a year or so ago Timothy Ryan, a peddler, stopped at the farm of Ferdinand Collins and sold Mrs. Collins a lot of goods, for which he took her note for $98 and went away. He was hardly out of the house when Mrs. Collins realized that she did not want the things at all, and calling her husband made him go after Ryan and tell him to surrender the note and take the goods away. Ryan declined to do anything of the sort. Mrs. Collins did not open the package of goods, and when the note was presented for payment she refused to honor it. Ryan sued, but the jury held that he had the woman hypnotized when she signed the note, and gave a verdict against him.

Odessa, Russia.

Odessa, which is frequently described as the Liverpool of Russia, and which in point of trade and prosperity ranks as the most important city of the empire, has just been celebrating the centennial anniversary of its foundation. Built on territory ceded to Russia by Turkey in 1792, the foundations of the present city were laid in 1794, and when at the beginning of the century, the French emigres, the Duc de Richelieu, arrived upon the scene to assume his duties of governor general, a post to which he had been appointed by Emperor Alexander, there were only 400 houses and about 8000 inhabitants in the place. To-day the population is over 500,000, of whom no less than 160,000 are Hebrews, and there is no city in the empire more bountifully endowed with magnificent public buildings or where the inhabitants are possessed of greater wealth, mostly amassed by commerce.

You Deserve a Good Shaking.

And while and before you get it you don't take defensive measures to escape the periodic scourge in a region where it is prevalent. The best, safest and surest is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which is free from any unpleasant ingredients to quinine, and is eminently safe and effectual. Whenever on the occasional sojourn in the tropics, malarial contagion is encountered, and whenever the Bitters is the proper antidote for constipation, biliousness, rheumatism, kidney complaint, dyspepsia and nervousness, it should be used. Use it continually, and not by fits and starts.

Every one subscribing for this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative power, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

He Was Not at Home.

A good story is told of how Senator Coke, of Texas, not long ago disposed of a troublesome gang of his constituents. He returned home in the evening, after a tiresome day in the senate, and to his amazement and disgust found his room filled with a lot of Texas rangers, who were making themselves very much at home. He shook hands with them all and remarked: "Well, gentlemen, I am always glad to see my constituents, but allow me to ask how you got up here without going through the regular procedure?" They replied that they did not know anything about the regular proceedure, but had inquired out his room, and finding the door unlocked, had entered. The senator then told them that there was such a press to see him that he was obliged to observe certain forms, and that he must ask them to go down to the office and send up their cards, as if he dispensed with the formality in their cases he could not enforce it in others. The Texans thought that it was a good joke and filing out of the room, went down to the office to go through the little formality. In a moments time the hallboy came up with eight cards on a tray. "Tell the gentlemen I am not at home," said the senator, and he pushed the boy out of the room and locked the door. The Texans looked at one another in amazement, and with various wild western ejaculations made a rush for the barroom to think it over.

Topolobampo Was.

It is said in Abilene, Kan., where the scheme was first originated that the co-operative colony at Topolobampo, Mexico, of which so much was promised a few years ago, is a thing of the past. The final act of its dissolution was the suspension of its newspaper organ, the Integral Co-operator, which was edited by the president of the colony, C. B. Hoffman. For some time past the colony has been torn up by internal dissentions, and the colonists have been drawing out. But few remain and they will return to the states, or will take their share of the colony's lands and make homes for themselves among the Mexicans. It is said that $1,000,000 has been sunk in the scheme and there is nothing to show for it.

EXECUTING AN INJURED FLY.

How a Quartet of Insects Put a Half-Burned Brother to Death.

Flies are not usually accredited with great intelligence, but an illustration observed a short time ago goes far to disprove any idea that they are entirely bereft of thought. It was near midnight and a writer for the Philadelphia Call laid aside his pen for the day, but was constrained to remain at his desk by the strange action of a quartet of flies. One unfortunate had forgotten too near the gaslight and had been so badly singed that he could not fly. Quite helpless, he lay on his back struggling to overturn himself. He almost succeeded, but so painful were his efforts that mercy suggested the speedy killing of the insect. But the smallest agitation of the fore unusually large flies prevented a hasty execution. In great excitement the quartet circled around the unfortunate, remaining within a radius of twelve inches. One pair seemed to touch heads, and in an instant one of the two went savagely for the wounded brother. After contending with him for a brief time the first helper left, when, without lapse of more seconds, the second of the pair went through the same performance. There was a parade that required close study to solve. Were the flies striving to aid the sufferer, or did they want to kill him, either because of his uselessness or to relieve him from pain?

Seventeen times were combats—for such they seem appeared to be—had. The fly, lying on its back, fought and apparently sought to keep off the big insects. As near as the eye could determine, they seemed to strive to reach the mouth of the sufferer. There was a short sharp fight each time. A few grains of sugar were placed up on the desk, but the fighters were too greatly absorbed to notice them. More powwows ensued, and three attacks followed. Then the four were frightened by an attempt to catch them. One fly, not of the quartet, was captured and placed under a glass with the wingless member. Five minutes the stranger flew around wildly, not going near the burned fellow. The glass was removed and in the course of ten minutes families were again on the scene, trying to kill the small insect. It was then nearly 1 o'clock a. m., and the observer, failing to investigate any more, retired. Early in the morning the fly that had caused all the trouble was found dead, with the grains of sugar lying around him undisturbed.

NOT A DOLLAR MORE.

Honor Dwindles in Price as the Cause Is Concealed.

When Conkling and Platt were before the New York legislature, at Albany seeking vindication and reelection, consequent upon their resignation from the United States senate, a certain state senator was employed to buy up one of his colleagues for five thousand dollars. He considered that three thousand dollars was quite enough to pay for one man's vote, and coolly pocketing two thousand dollars, turned the rest over to the solicitous senator. The latter bore a private grudge against his companion, and found here his opportunity to get even. He accepted the money with every appearance of gladness, and was profuse in his thanks, says the Argonaut. The next day a sensation was caused when he rose in the senate chamber and, in a most dramatic manner, told the story of his bribery. He wound up by asserting that his integrity could not thus be assailed and that his vote was beyond the reach of filthy lucre. Then came the climax of his indignation, when he produced a big roll of greenbacks, containing, as he said, two thousand dollars, the price of his honor, which he hereby returned with scorn and contempt to his would-be purchasers. True enough, there were two thousand dollars in the roll, and not a dollar more.

In Honor of the Czar's Daughter.

To commemorate the marriage of his daughter the czar issued a ukase for the establishment of the Xenia institute. In this the daughters of impoverished nobles are to receive a general education and "such practical knowledge as renders woman useful to her family and enables her to make an honest living in these times of demand for female labor." The palace of the grand duke Nicholas, the czar's uncle, has been taken for the use of the institute; 400,000 rubles is given at once for the equipment, and a large sum is to be appropriated yearly for the support of the pupils.

She Found a Fortune.

Good luck does not often fall to a poverty as it did the other day to a poor old Polish woman, who has long been working as a rag sorter at the paper mills at Poyer, Wis. Among the rags she found a tattered vest. She put her hands into the pocket and to her great surprise drew out a roll of bills, amounting to $300. The proprietor of the mills told her he had no claim on the money, and she will buy a small farm with it from which she can make a much better living for herself and children than she now gets.

English School Children.

Of over 4,000,000 children in elementary schools in England only 500,000 pay for their schooling, and of these 400,000 pay no more than a penny a week, according to a recent official statement of the "voluntary schools," in which the whole or part of the tuition is paid by the parents. 5,000 receive from 10 to 20 shillings a head for the children in attendance, 1,000 between 5 and 10 shillings, and 4,000 under 5 shillings.

A Queer Census.

In order to ascertain the resources of the Seine department as far as victuals are concerned, the police authorities ordered a census to be taken of the live stock in the fowl yards in the immediate vicinity of Paris, which gave the following result. Guinea fowls, 6,000 turkeys, 10,150 geese, 9,010 ducks, 70,501 pigeons, 32,013; rabbits, 50,450 and poultry, 101,670.

of all cases of consumption can, if taken in the earlier stages of the disease, be cured. This may seem like a bold assertion to those familiar only with the means generally at use for its treatment, as, many cod-liver oil and its filthy emulsions, extract of malt, whiskey, different preparations of hypophosphites and such like palliatives.

Although he many be said to be mistaken, there is the evidence of hundreds of living witnesses to the fact that in all its earlier stages, consumption is a curable disease. Not every case, but a large percentage of cases, and we believe, fully 98 per cent. are cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, even after the disease has progressed so far as to induce repeated hemorrhages from the lungs, severe lingering coughs with copious expectoration (including tubercular matter), great loss of flesh and extreme prostration and weakness.

Is no doubt that hundreds of such cases reported to us as cured by "Golden Medical Discovery" were genuine cases of that dread and fatal disease. You need not take our word for it. They have, in nearly every instance, been so pronounced by the best and most experienced home physicians, who have no interest whatever in misrepresenting them, and who were often strongly prejudiced and advised against a trial of "Golden Medical Discovery," but who have been forced to confess that it surpasses, in curative power over this fatal malady, all other medicines with which they are acquainted. Many cod-liver oil and its filthy emulsions, and extracts, had been tried in nearly all these cases and had either utterly failed to benefit or had only seemed to benefit a little for a short time. Dozens of weak whiskey and cordial preparations of the hypophosphites had also been faithfully tried in vain.

The proprietors of a large number of cases cured of consumption, bronchitis, severe coughs, asthma, chronic nasal catarrh and kindred maladies have been faithfully reproduced in a book of 168 pages which will be mailed to you on receipt of address and six cents in stamps. You can then write those cured and learn its experience.
