Hillsboro, Nov. 25.—Some time Saturday night the show window of a jewelry store was broken with a large rock by some unknown party and a lady's gold watch, umbrellas, and gold rings, amounting in value to about $50 were taken. The window contained about $500 worth of jewelry and other things, and it is thought that the thief was frightened away by someone or he would have made a large haul. There is as yet no clue to the thief.

Go to C. I. Jaeggli's for everything in the grocery line. Quality and prices guaranteed.

A. C. Koepke and wife were called to Moulton Wednesday by the critical condition of Mr. Charles Moellenborendt.

The wedding affair at the house of John Kaspar Tuesday eve was largely attended from here.

Constable Beckery, of Moulton, was here on business Tuesday.

BENSON AT LULING.

Luling, Nov. 24.—

son, the great tempter, delivered one of his oil-and-tin-ware, of which he alone is capable, at the Methodist church this morning. Notwithstanding the threatening clouds and inclement weather the house was comfortably crowded, about half of whom were men and boys. Although, according to his own testimony, this was not one of his regular lectures, but merely a short talk, he detained his audience about one hour and a quarter and related many laughable as well as pathetic incidents. He impressed upon parents the power of example by relating the following incident: A little boy's mother was trying very hard to induce him to retire to his bed, but without any apparent success. At a last resort she pointed to a tree just outside, where an old hen and her chickens were roosting, and said: "See all the little chickens have gone to bed."

"Yes, but the old hen is with them," was the rejoinder.

He said that children should be taught to despise liquor as soon as they are one hour old, and gave as the reason that good Catholics never eat meat on Friday, that they are taught from the cradle, and never fed meat on that day. He warned the young ladies never to marry a man who let liquor pass his lips, that "if you don't break him of the habit before you marry him you never will. Before you marry you have him, after you marry he has you."

At the close of his talk he announced his regular lecture for tonight: "Personal Recollections from the Life of a Drunkard," and promised a description of delirium tremens. The house will be full to-night.
