NOTICE.

The ordinance prohibiting the shooting of fire works of any description, or the discharging of fire arms within the fire limits of the town, will be strictly enforced during the holidays.

R. H. LOESCH,
City Marshal.

The railroad people are still all stirred up over the discharging of passenger conductors, as it means a general promotion all along the line. John Bachman, we learn, goes on a passenger train, as does Freight Conductor Davidson, so they say. More will be heard from later.—Yoakum Graphic.

From what we can learn it will be nearly a clean sweep as far as the passenger conductors are concerned.

LEWIS-DILWORTH.

GONZALES, Tex., Dec. 6.—Jos. A. Lewis was married at 11 o'clock Thursday morning to Miss Margaret Dilworth at the residence of G. A. Dilworth, the father of the bride. The lovely home was most exquisitely decorated with rare floral offerings. The mantels were banked with white and yellow chrysanthemums, and the archway at the entrance of the parlor was bedecked with the most dainty bouquet blossoms, designed by deft hands, who know well how to blend colors so as to make them stand out.

patented harness was all astir with friends and loyal ones, and at 11 a. m. Master Dilworth Wittig, acting as page, and Miss Mattie Lee Dilworth, assisted by Master Norval Wittig (niece and nephews of the bride) as flower messengers, led the way to the parlor, followed by the bride and groom, each to the sweet and touching strains of the wedding march, executed by the talented Miss Nell Dilworth of Austin. They entered, halting under the floral archway, and in a few words Rev. E. R. Cornwell performed the impressive ceremony. Congratulations followed and the wedding breakfast was announced. The bridal party embarked in carriages for the depot and took the noon train for New Orleans to spend a few weeks to return to live in Gonzales.

Prof. Blair was quite several days last week, but announces that he has entirely recovered. But few teachers work as hard as he to make his school work perfect, and the great work he is doing for the rising generation of Shiner will become highly evident as they grow up to manhood and womanhood.

Heavy Loss at Runge.

Runge, Dec. 8.—Fire broke out this morning in Lyons livery stable and was under full headway before discovered. The building and many of the fixtures were consumed. The flames spread to the large store building of A. R. Wilbern. The crowd which congregated took most of the goods out and thus saved them. From there the flames leaped to the old Charon hotel building and in a few minutes it was in ashes. But for the hard work of many willing hands the flames would have crossed the street and destroyed a row of wooden buildings. The loss has not been estimated.
