The Pope's Condition. (Special to The Herald.)—(Special Dispatch.) New York, Jan. 4.—The Herald's Paris special says: Day and night access to the bedroom of the Pope is denied to all but two nuns, a valet and a prolate of the papal entourage. The servants and all but a few of the most trusted prolates are not allowed to approach the sanctuary, which is thus thoroughly protected against indiscretion. These precautions are necessary, for the Pope is spiritual head of millions of Catholics and the interests of the holy see are bound with those of many nations, great and small.

In the strict sense of the word the holy father is not ill at present. He breathes easier and takes only four light meals a day, consisting of strong bouillon made of beef, veal and chicken, with rice and vegetables and a little Bordeaux as accompaniment. At frequent intervals throughout the day the Pope takes a paste made of gin, condensed milk, extract of camomille and cocoa and a minute admixture of phosphorus. The holy father got up at 4 a. m. and attended to work. At 6 a. m. Monsignor Angelo, his private secretary, enters his bedroom and remains with him till 9 a. m., when breakfast is served. This is followed by a benediction, by private audiences and a second benediction, preceded, when possible, by a light sleigh and short ride in a Sedan chair or carriage in the gardens of the Vatican. At 11 o'clock the Pope returns to his apartments, and important audiences, reserved for cardinals and ambassadors, begin. By 5 o'clock these are ended, but as a rule some high dignitary on more intimate terms with the Pope than the rest, remains till 7 or 8 o'clock for a chat and interchange of ideas which are almost indispensable to Leo XIII's ruling policy. Towards 9 p. m. the Pope retires to bed, attended by a prolate and valet, who till lately was Francesco Minichetti, a celebrity. This Minichetti, who was several years old and had been attached to the person of Pius IX, before his accession to the pontificate, died recently. But though Leo XIII. is not ill, he is exhausted. His mind is still clear, but he has not energy enough to do anything. There is no truth in today's or yesterday's reports of his critical condition. To-morrow they may be more trustworthy, for the pontiff is breathing through, his death, when it comes, will be a calamity. The present pontiff commands the deference of Europe. Every crowned head bows to his authority. His reign has more than once recalled the members of the triple alliance to their respect for this country.

The Pope Accepts France's Terms. ROME, Jan. 4.—Count de Beaume, the French ambassador to the Vatican, had an interview today with the Pope. They came to complete accord regarding the future mutual policy. The Pope accepted France's terms. The ambassador's declaration of the cessation of episcopal letters to the archbishop of Aix and the suppression of the Catholic electoral caatechisms.

Retrenchment Necessary in Germany. BERLIN, Jan. 4.—A sensation has been caused by the publication in Socialist papers of a confidential circular sent by the government to directors of the different state railways. The labor agitators make political capital out of the circular, which they aver, places the government in an unenviable position as to the interests of the laboring class. The circular declares, in effect, the present financial position is such as to render necessary the adoption of a policy of retrenchment and the abolition of state railways are informed they must reduce the wages of employees and dismiss all whose services can possibly be dispensed with.

Colonel Ballou is Missing. DENVER, Jan. 4.—Colonel Ballou, the lawyer from Providence, R. I., connected with the Graves-Barnaby case, is missing. He took the train for Chicago when the verdict was rendered and probably arrived there this morning.

When seen by an Associated Press reporter this afternoon Dr. Graves emphatically reiterated his denial of having made a confession. He stated that Sheriff Wilson came in and woke him up at half past 8 in the morning, and said he had just come from District Attorney Stevens; that Stevens had come to his bedside and made a confession implicating Ballou, saying it would help him out. Graves says he refused to make any statement. Wilson said that the doctor confessed, but that Deputy Means refused to talk on the subject.

It is asserted a detective in the employ of John H. Conrad, the late Mrs. Barnaby's lawyer, had returned from Chicago on his eastern trip. No warrant for Ballou's arrest has been issued, but the grand jury is now in session and it is asserted they are examining the charges against the alleged confession.

Mrs. Ballou is here and quite ill. Dr. Graves's wife has been out of her head most of the time since the verdict was rendered and was raving about the doctor being hanged. His mother bears it with more fortitude. It has been charged by the defense that the jury was unduly influenced during the trial by having access to the daily papers, but the jurors strenuously deny this. When the grand jury adjourned at a late hour this morning it was understood that had been done in regard to indicting Ballou.

Dr. Graves caused a surprise to-night by stating Ballou came to him Saturday night last and told him he was going to leave Iowa because he was afraid of being arrested if he stayed any longer. When the doctor gave his reasons, he said he had become reticent and nothing further could be learned from him.

Nothing seen of Ballou in Chicago. CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—Nothing has been seen here of Colonel Ballou. The lawyer connected with the Graves-Barnaby case, who disappeared from Denver and went to Chicago.

Conrad Will Follow Ballou. ST. LOUIS, Jan. 4.—A special dispatch from Denver says John Conrad, witness for the state in the Graves-Barnaby case, speaking of Colonel Ballou's flight today said: "Although Ballou fled it is as easy to bring him back as it was for him to disappear. I will follow him to the utmost parts of the world."

The grand jury meets to-day when Ballou's flight will be considered. It is expected that he will be indicted in the next few days.

Suit to Cancel a Contract. CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—W. T. B. Reed filed a bill in the circuit court to cancel a contract made September 21, 1891, with James P. McCarthy, of San Francisco, under the latter twenty acres of land in the north-west part of the city for $110,000, payments to be made in installments, November, 1891, McCarthy failed to make the first payment, but the contract was in records, which constituted a cloud on complainant's title which the court is asked to remove. This is the tract of land formerly owned by the spiritists, who prospect therefor on oil, but only struck water.

BUSINESS BRIEFS.

The Gas Finds Attract Wide Attention. Purchases of Real Estate Made on Account of It.—The Keeley Institute Moving Into the Garbo House. The news that natural gas has been found in Salt Lake is spreading in all directions and is getting to be the talk of the country. Inquiries are constantly being made either by letter or in person. Just now several gentlemen from Montana are looking over the city and quietly purchasing real estate in North Salt Lake, near the gas finds, present and prospective. One of them learned yesterday that H. P. Mason, the lumber dealer, owned some land in that direction and he promptly sought him out and bought it, paying cash therefor. Several other deals, small as yet, have been reported and real estate men, with an eye to the future, claim that this is but the beginning of a revival of a legitimate boom.

Gas. R. M. Kennedy and H. W. Watson, of Denver, have been attracted here by the gas discoveries, and yesterday made a purchase of real estate made on account of it and they intend to proceed at once to drill for the article.

The American Natural Gas company has placed 50,000 shares on the market at 50 cents a share, for a development fund to be used in sinking at the most eligible points on their lands. The Salt Lake Natural Gas company (Keeley Institute) is also beginning drilling on the premises just north of the stock yards in a few days.

The Citizens' Natural Gas company, organized last Saturday night, will file articles in a few days and press work as rapidly as possible. Prof. Luckenbach is the city representative of the party of Pacific vana capitalists. They are said to have secured several tracts of gas land within three miles of the city and will begin work soon.

Postal Notes. The revenue of the postoffice for the quarter ending December 31st last exceeded the receipts of the preceding quarter by $3,000.00.

The Keeley Institute. The Keeley Institute will move into the building formerly known as the Garbo house next Saturday. An inventory of furniture, etc., is now being taken, and the opening will take place on Monday, the 11th inst. R. H. Harris, manager, and Dr. A. L. Greenwood, medical director, will be here on Friday. Mr. Simon Bamberg will remove his headquarters to the institute.

Abstracts of title to real estate situated in Salt Lake county neatly, accurately and promptly furnished by the county recorder. THE LATEST FROM LA PLATA. One Hundred and Fifty People in the Mines Through the Cold Weather. Mr. C. K. Westover, one of the owners of the Red Jacket and several other mining claims at La Plata, arrived in Ogden Saturday after a three days journey down from the snows on snow shoes. The mines at La Plata is very deep and all work is stopped, except in those mines where shafts have been put down. In the La Plata mine, tunnels about eight feet in width are being made in three different directions. A heavy body of ore was struck in the tunnel at the foot level, and it is intended to sink it another fifty feet.

The La Plata is working fifty-two men and two of ore are being put out on the dump in the morning. The water level in the La Plata mine is very low. The Sunrize is showing up splendidly and six men are at work. The Red Jacket keeps five men constantly at work and the large ore house is now filled with the raw products ready to be shipped to a smelter. The Lost sheep is working four men and has been out for several days. The weather at La Plata has been extremely cold, and the thermometer has ranged from 10 to 22 degrees below zero. On Christmas morning it was 23 below. Mr. Westover thinks all told there are about a hundred and fifty people in camp. Several families have been here and have furnished amusement several times a week. Everyone has enjoyed excellent health and no sickness whatever has been reported. On his way down to Ogden Mr. Westover collected twenty-five snowshoes, most of which were in Middle fork. The road is completely blocked, but Billy Wilson, who has the contract for handling ore from several of the mines to Ogden, expects to make an attempt to open it up this week. The snow did not drift so badly on the Logan road owing to the south winds, and it was broken through Tuesday.

MURDER AND ARSON. A Visit From Chief Ramsey—Personal and General. Hon. D. G. Ramsay, acting grand chief of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers, arrived in this city last night from California where he has been laboring for several days and in behalf of the order, attended in settling in a very satisfactory manner the difficulty between the Southern Pacific system and its operators. The gentleman will leave for Texas to-morrow, whether he goes to investigate the existing differences with the San Antonio & Oranosa Pass railroad and its telegraph operators. Mr. Ramsay is about twenty-seven years of age and is unmarried. He was representative to the thirty-seventh Illinois legislative session at St. Clair county and made an enviable record as a parliamentarian. The gentleman is a practicing attorney and is at present a resident of St. Louis, Mo., where he figures conspicuously. Besides this he is a third second degree Mason and represents over 30,000 telegraph operators who are members of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers.

Personal and General. The Hot Springs railway will reach Bountiful Wednesday night. The Union Pacific carried a large crowd to Ogden last night to see Peter Jackson's exhibition. Mr. Joseph Brinker assumed his post yesterday as assistant freight agent to S.

Adam Port, Charged with Threatening to Kill, Discharged. A Bold Theft.—Burglars and Holdup Still at Work—Charles Thiede's Case—The Counterfeiters. Adam Port, the German butcher, who was arrested on Saturday night for threatening to kill Charles Hadden, was examined before Commissioner Moyer yesterday. It seems that Port had been working for Hadden, and the latter alleges that the German tried to entice his wife away from him, and when he protested against this conduct, Port threatened to cut his heart out. The testimony adduced showed that there was some foundation for the charges, but not sufficient to warrant him in binding the defendant over, and Port was accordingly discharged.

A Bold Theft. On Saturday afternoon a lady from the country purchased a line suit of clothes, and placing it in her wagon, drove up Broadway, where she had business to transact. While she was in one of the stores in that thoroughfare, some daring thief stole the suit, as well as some other articles, and escaped.

It Did Not Work. The murderous hold-ups are still with us, and if the reports of their doings have not been so numerous of late as before, it is probably due to the fact that the citizens have realized that it is a waste of time to report these things at police headquarters. Late on Saturday night ex-policeman Andrew Smith was walking his way toward and when on Sixth West, between First and Second East, a couple of thugs, were about to attack him, when Mr. Smith allowed them to raze down the muzzle of a revolver, and then ordered them to get. They got.

In Trouble Once More. One William D. Keizer, who has a pretty black record, is in trouble again. He was arrested yesterday by Officer Jenkins on the charge of stealing a mink coat worth $175.

One More Burglary. Late on Saturday night the residence of Mrs. C. Y. Cannon, in the southwest corner of the city, was entered by a burglar, who succeeded in getting away with $15 in cash.

Thiede's Case. The case of Charles Thiede, charged with assaulting Olof Nord on Christmas day, will be decided by Commissioner Pratt this morning.

The Counterfeiters. The examination of Gibson et al. on the charge of having counterfeit money in their possession, will be held before Commissioner Greenman this morning.

SHOVING THE QUEER.

Counterfeiter Sprague Arraigned and Pleads Guilty. Thompson to Be Arraigned This Morning.—Both Men Will Be Brought Back to Salt Lake. The following special in regard to Counterfeiters Sprague and Thompson was received from Denver last night: DENVER, Colo., Jan. 4.—[Special Telegram to THE HERALD.]—P. D. Sprague was arraigned this afternoon before United States Commissioner Hinsdale, on complaint of Hugh L. Glenn, of Salt Lake, charging him with passing counterfeit money. He pleaded not guilty and waived examination. His bonds were fixed at $5,000. Assistant United States Attorney Rodes will ask Judge Hallitt for an order of removal in the morning, and if it is granted, the officers will start with to-morrow night. The case against F. H. Thompson, charged with having counterfeit money in his possession, will be taken up in the morning. He will be returned to Salt Lake.

THE FREE LANCE.

Old Hickory was a Democrat in life and it isn't fair to connect him in death with anything else. While he was still in the flesh he was maligned and traduced as few men ever have been, but nothing quite so mean has been suggested about him as that he was caught out as a straight-out, fighting, seven-days-in-the-week Democrat, without an alias, wherever he might have been. And just like Jackson, so was the peerless Jefferson libeled and pilloried as a demagogue and time-server. What a glorious example these two inflexible heroes—for peace has her victories no less renowned than war—have set for Democrats to follow in spite of any aspersions and defamations that may be cast upon them. Very properly the Democratic celebration of Andrew Jackson will embrace three subjects—his life, by Judge Judd; Jefferson's life, by Judge Henderson, and Democracy, by Judge Rhodes, of Ogden. Let every Democrat who is anxious to know something of the stuff that genuine Democracy is made of, come and listen.

THEIR FIRST OPENING.

That of Walker Bros and Fryer Co. in Their New Store Rooms Last Night. At 6:30 o'clock last evening the magnificent new store room of Walker Bros. and Fryer company, corner of Main and Second streets, was thrown open to the public, and the citizens were given an opportunity in their new house. From that time until 11 o'clock there was a mass of people surging through the great room, while the sidewalk in front and side were packed as the crowd gazed upon the beautiful and decorated show windows. The DeWalters Rifle band of twenty pieces was present and gave a grand concert, and the grand old store room of Walker Bros. and Fryer company has been given in THE HERALD, so it will suffice to say that no handsomer or more attractively appointed goods house could be found west of Chicago than theirs. Last night under the brilliant illumination of arc and incandescent lights, with the immense throng of people constantly passing the windows, the store room of Walker Bros. and Fryer company was a sight to behold. The display of shoes in one window, the trimming being the work of Mr. Frank Draper, was exceedingly handsome and the show place being, "There was an old woman who lived in a shoe." The show of the fine furnishing goods seen in another window, the work of Mr. W. P. Peterson, from Rome, and that of the public, was a sight to behold. And just like Jackson, so was the peerless Jefferson libeled and pilloried as a demagogue and time-server. What a glorious example these two inflexible heroes—for peace has her victories no less renowned than war—have set for Democrats to follow in spite of any aspersions and defamations that may be cast upon them. Very properly the Democratic celebration of Andrew Jackson will embrace three subjects—his life, by Judge Judd; Jefferson's life, by Judge Henderson, and Democracy, by Judge Rhodes, of Ogden. Let every Democrat who is anxious to know something of the stuff that genuine Democracy is made of, come and listen.

CRIMINAL CIRCLES.

Adam Port, Charged with Threatening to Kill, Discharged. A Bold Theft.—Burglars and Holdup Still at Work—Charles Thiede's Case—The Counterfeiters. Adam Port, the German butcher, who was arrested on Saturday night for threatening to kill Charles Hadden, was examined before Commissioner Moyer yesterday. It seems that Port had been working for Hadden, and the latter alleges that the German tried to entice his wife away from him, and when he protested against this conduct, Port threatened to cut his heart out. The testimony adduced showed that there was some foundation for the charges, but not sufficient to warrant him in binding the defendant over, and Port was accordingly discharged.

A Bold Theft. On Saturday afternoon a lady from the country purchased a line suit of clothes, and placing it in her wagon, drove up Broadway, where she had business to transact. While she was in one of the stores in that thoroughfare, some daring thief stole the suit, as well as some other articles, and escaped.
