A HERALD scribe went down to the car Mascot yesterday afternoon directly to Colorado Springs, over the Rio Grande Western depot, where he met his friends at dinner. He afterwards succeeded in gaining the car of the private secretary to his royal highness, and with an audience with the august personage in whom all interests were centered. However, a fleeting glimpse of this son of the house of Hapsburg-Latharungis showed that he is a tall, handsome man of about the age of thirty, and that he is a native of Spain and Austria. The particular branch from which he derives his pretensions was formed by the marriage of Maria Theresa, in 1745, to Count Francis of Austria.

Of course the prince of the royal blood will see much to surprise and let us hope, shock him in Democratic America, but he reaches the more populous cities of the east where a monied aristocracy has grown up and where blue blood is worshipped. However, an article from Town Topics, heretofore quoted, seems to cast doubts on the warmth of his reception. It reads as follows:

His Royal Highness Prince Ferdinand of Austria, heir presumptive to the throne of Austria, and the latest royal foreigner to arrive in America with the expectation of being made a social lion, has arrived at a particularly important juncture in his career. He has no doubt, heard of the reception given the Maharajah, the Spanish duke and other sons of nobility, and accordingly receives his royal highness with a certain amount of skepticism. The passage on the steamship Empress of China, which landed him at Victoria, B. C., of course, started at once across the continent, but before he gets to the home of American fashion I fear he will find he has arrived between two seasons, and that those he expected to entertain him are themselves taking a vacation from aristocratic society. The visitor is really of more importance from a social point of view than any of the titled foreigners who have preceded him, and I imagine there will be far more pleasure in entertaining him than a majority of those who consider every woman a possible addition to their string of wives. But since a majority of summer homes have been closed, and city houses have not yet been opened, his royal highness will probably have to be content with the hospitality of a hotel and occasional visits to the metropolitan clubs.

Coupling Pins. R. J. O. O'Reilly, of the Pullman company, is in town. A. E. Welby is expected tomorrow on his return from the coast trip. J. F. Wells, traveling freight agent of the Western, is back from his trip to the far and to Canada.

Six cars of the passengers who were compelled to go to the coast by the northern route on account of the Santa Fe wreck, passed through last night over the Western.

John H. Dewey, jr., is holding down the desk of the chief clerk of the Western freight department in the absence of G. W. Cassen, who went to Chicago with Mr. Babcock.

AN OPEN LETTER. Mr. Hinkley, Superintendent Rapid Transit Company: DEAR SIR—On coming home with some friends from south on State street, we desired transfers east on Seventh South and received them all right. On alighting on the corner, there was no car in sight, and it being cold for ladies, we started to walk slowly east on Seventh South, the car overtaking us just two blocks from State. On presenting our transfers we were taken by surprise by a haughty, domineering conductor who refused to accept them. We have been patrons of your road for a long time, and have spent considerable money in traveling on it, and consider the act referred to an insult. The Salt Lake company's car passes within half a block of our residences, and we have never heard of such actions by that company. Therefore, in behalf of the public and your patrons, we denounce the proceeding described, and would further say that the conductor on that car (No. 9, 11:15 p. m.) should be censured. Hoping, dear sir, that you will inform us in reply why you refuse to honor your own transfers, we are, respectfully, PATRONS.

AMUSEMENTS. "KILLARNEY." Katie Emmett is a winsome little actress who can act better than she can sing, and sing better than she can dance. That she is well known and well liked in Salt Lake, was clearly evidenced by the hearty reception accorded her when she made her first appearance last evening at the Salt Lake theatre in the first act of her new play "Killarney." Miss Emmett belongs to that class of little actresses who always struggle through dire poverty for three acts and then come in for a fortune and an estate in the fourth, to the great delight of her many friends, before and behind the footlights, the hearts of whom she has completely captured by her bright eyes and her sweet songs and her loving heart. Such a role had Miss Emmett last night, and she filled it well. Her singing doesn't pretend to much from a

HERS IMPERIAL HIGHNESS.

The Archduke of Austria Arrived Here Yesterday. HE IS TRAVELING INCOGNITO.

Two Dukes and a Baron Accompany Him.

The Party Drove About the City for Three Hours—Lineage of the Heir Presumptive to the Throne of Austria—Railway Notes.

The lowering skies of Salt Lake yesterday frowned on royalty in the person of his imperial highness, the Archduke of Austria, who came in on the Union Pacific train at 10 a. m. and left on the Rio Grande Western express at 7:50 p. m. As is the habit with personages of blue blood when on their pilgrimages he has assumed for the nonce the name of Count Aristenet and pretends to be traveling incognito in spite of the fact that newspapers all over the country have heralded his arrival. He is accompanied by Counts Wumbard and Ciam, the Baron Imhoff and two officers of the Austrian army, all of whom are boon companions of his.

After his arrival on the steamer Empress of China he and his friends enjoyed some good deer shooting in British Columbia, an afternoon was taken by way of the Oregon Short Line up to the beautiful Columbia river and allowed to view the grand scenery which there presents itself. After that the party whisked over the break lava beds of Idaho and at last were taken to the Yellowstone Park, through which they went on the regular schedule.

Their wanderings, of course, was provoked by this garden spot of wonders, and they came away pleased with their trip. Yesterday, in spite of the rain, a party of this city was taken in a party of three hours' length. After leaving here, the beautiful Pullman private car Mascot, which was put at the disposal of the party, will be taken directly to Colorado Springs, over the Western and Rio Grande. Here a stop of one day will be made, and then the party will go on to Chicago and New York, making stops at the principal cities on the way, and returning to New York by a steamer or home.

WONDERLAND. This is children's day at this place of amusement and a programme especially intended to delight both the old and the young will be given. Safe, Sure and Speedy. No external remedy ever devised has so fully and unquestionably met these three prime conditions as successfully as Alcock's Porus Plasters. They are safe because they contain no deleterious drugs and are manufactured upon scientific principles of medicine. They are sure because nothing goes into them except ingredients which are exactly adapted to the purposes for which a plaster is required. They are speedy in their action because their medicinal qualities go right to their work of relieving pain and restoring the natural and healthy performance of the functions of muscles, nerves and skin. MUSICAL STANDPOINT, BUT IT IS VERY TAKING AND PLEASING TO THE EAR AND THE SMILES WHICH ACCOMPANY IT.

At the end of one of those happy and melodious songs, made up of the footlights, and smilingly acknowledged. Miss Emmett cannot dance and she recognizes this by only wincing at the one.

Andrew Mack is one of the sweetest ballad singers on the stage today. His voice is a very high, clear tenor. His singing last night was enthusiastically successful.

Mack took a partial part in the bill, but when he appeared as a stop-gap, or stage wait, in the third act, he delivered a monologue which made his stock as an actor go up one hundred per cent. F. J. Battin played the faithful servant with honor and strength. Elizabeth Leslie as Judith Kavanagh was entirely incapable of interpreting the part of the designing woman. Little Ruby Leslie as the precocious child was good. The minor support was acceptable.

Of the play nothing can be said in praise of it as old as the Irish drama. There is nothing original in it. However, it is no worse than a good many plays which answered its purpose well, i. e., to furnish Miss Emmett a fitting vehicle to display her talents.

The settings of the play were very good. One or two of the drop curtains are gems. In each of these were pictured roads that made every wheelman in the house envious of the Irish boys. The Devil's pool, however, with the leap for life, was disappointing.

The house was crowded, the rainy night notwithstanding, and the theatre-goers got what they went for, laughter and applause, and they went home happy.

"Killarney" goes again tonight. The billing for "A Nutmeg Match," which is due at the theatre Monday evening, is advertising the bill boards. The advance sale has started out handsomely.

CHARLES ARNUP ON TRIAL.

Difficulty in Impaneling a Jury in the Case. ARTE FLINT IS ACQUITTED.

Mrs. Millie Cook Keyser Granted a Divorce. The Registration Cases Will Be Heard Today—The Law and Motion Calendar—A Receiver Asked for the Salt Lake Building Association.

W. J. Davis, one of the trio indicted for burglarizing the residence of Maynard Dixy on South Seventh East street in May last, was brought up for trial in the Third district court yesterday before Judge Zane, but on motion of the prosecution the case against him was dismissed on the ground that the evidence against him was not sufficient to convict.

The trial of Arte Flint, on the same charge, was then proceeded with. Assistant District Attorney Howat prosecuted, and Judge Powers presided.

Mrs. Flint, a good looking young woman, was in court and occupied a seat by her husband. It transpired that Flint was a blacksmith, and had worked at his trade in St. Louis, Denver, Chicago and finally at Salt Lake. He roomed with his wife at the old Continental hotel, and it appeared that the stolen goods had been taken to Flint's room by Carter, who was found guilty of burglary the previous day.

Judge Powers made an emotional speech to the jury in which reference was largely made to the celebrated Pickwick case as narrated by Dickens.

He developed the case against the jury, for after a short time spent in deliberation they returned a verdict of not guilty.

THE ARNUP CASE. Difficulty to Get a Jury to Try the Slayer of the Chinaman.

Charles Arnup, the 17-year-old boy indicted for murder in the second degree by the grand jury, was put on trial yesterday afternoon.

The specific charge against Arnup was that he struck a Chinaman named Wong Quong Kem with a stone on July 3 and that the latter died of his wounds.

The Chinaman was a fruit pedler, aged about 60, and was following his vocation in the neighborhood of Ninth and Third streets when he was struck. It is alleged that Arnup pulled him with stones, one of the missiles striking Kem between the ear, rendering him unconscious for a time. When he came to he was taken to the hospital, where he died, after which he proceeded home and nothing more was heard of him until three days after, when he died.

The coroner held an inquest at which it was developed that the death was caused by the blow, which had partly severed the jugular vein. Arnup had his preliminary examination before Justice Gee and was bound over to the grand jury.

A good deal of difficulty was experienced in impaneling a jury to try this case. Some jurors confessed to an unfriendly feeling towards the Chinese, and one of them was excused for that reason. Mr. Nichols was excused for the balance of the term and so were J. B. Rawlins, Adam Park and J. C. Brown.

The prosecution made seven peremptory challenges and the defense five, and when the court rose there were only eleven jurymen in the box. The defense can yet make ten more peremptory challenges and the prosecution his three, so if both sides exercise their full rights, it may be noon today before the jury is completed.

A special venire was called by the court, and in addition to the regular venire there were twelve jurors for today and twelve for Monday morning.

It is understood the defense will claim for Arnup that he acted in self-defense, and that the projectile which proved fatal was thrown as the Chinaman was rushing at Arnup with a knife, when his progress was suddenly arrested by the blow.

Several of the patriots of the dead man are witnesses in the case. From present appearances the case will be hotly contested on both sides.

Mrs. MILLIE COOK KEYSER GRANTED A DIVORCE.

Stolen Property Restored. In the case of the People vs. C. W. Ladd, who one day this week was sentenced to three years' imprisonment for stealing a quantity of bullion from his employers, the Daily Mining company, of Park City, an application was made to the court, and granted, for an order to return the property over to the lawful owners.

Juror and Witnesses Fined. W. G. Ewer, a petit juror, was fined $5 and costs by Judge Zane for being absent without sufficient excuse. Otto Johnson and Fred Brown, two absent witnesses, were brought in under attachment and fined $5 each and costs.

BEFORE JUDGE BARTON. The Registration Cases Will Be Heard Today.

There was a good attendance in Judge Barton's branch of the Third district court yesterday morning as it was understood his honor would pass on the cases of Thornton and Richter against Registrar Walden. The appearance of Attorneys Judd, Dickson and Le Grande Young for the defense was entered. His honor granted a subpoena restraining filing a bond in the case, and in both cases order was issued to show cause by consent of counsel, and the hearing set for 10 o'clock this morning.

Another of the Same. On the heels of this came another case of mandamus proceedings against Registrar Walden, brought by John Otto Leffler. It is similar in all respects to the one brought yesterday by Richter, and the hearing was set for today as in other cases.

MRS. KEYSER GETS A DIVORCE. Non-Support the Grounds on Which It is Granted.

The divorce case of Millie Cook-Keyser vs. Jas. B. Keyser, came on before Judge Barton. Mrs. Keyser, a young lady of very modest and prepossessing appearance, was examined by her attorney, Mr. Mylon. She stated that her husband was a dentist in this city and enjoyed a lucrative practice, but had utterly failed at any time to contribute anything to her support although amply able to do so.

Mrs. Keyser, who is a native of the state, corroborated the statements of Mrs. Keyser, and the defendant failing to put in an appearance, his honor granted the divorce and $1000 attorney's fees. No alimony was asked for.

Justice at South Jordan. A School Teacher Wanted in That Precinct.

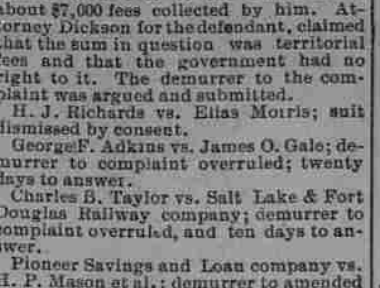

Justice Hall gave judgment yesterday in favor of the plaintiff in the case of William Boyle vs. Edward Ray, holding that a fraudulent transfer of certain property to wit: a wagon, harness, etc., valued at $35 had been made, and ordered that the same be returned to the plaintiff.

THE COLOR LINE. Miss J. F. Drake and Miss Ruth Shelly, two colored ladies, have commenced suit in Justice Kesler's court to recover $298.99 for damages from the Salt Lake Sanitarium association because the association refused to allow the plaintiffs to bathe in their bath house. The only reason why they were denied being on account of their color. Attorneys Somers and Kroeger are for the plaintiffs.

FRANDELL'S TRANSFER. Attorney G. A. Burgen has commenced suit on behalf of A. Dalton in United States Commissioner Pratt's court against Justice of the Peace Oliver and Deputy Constable Beckstead of South Jordan to recover a quantity of grain valued at $110 alleged to have been unlawfully converted and sold for $92.50.

The facts, if they are established, show the strange way in which legal affairs are conducted in South Jordan precinct. It appears that George W. Bills, a member, commenced an action before Justice Oliver to collect $26.40 alleged to be due for meat supplied. Whilst the suit was pending Bills made an affidavit and for the fourth time was about to dispose of his property in such a manner as to evade the payment of the account due Bills and the justice issued an attachment order upon which the deputy constant seized and took away about $10 worth of grain belonging to Dalton and horse. The latter was, however, returned.

It afterwards appeared, it is alleged, that the original summons was illegal and was not properly served. The attachment was also illegal. In fact everything about the proceedings was illegal. The parties, however, held on to and are still holding the grain. The documents are drawn up in a very elaborate manner and demonstrate the fact that nothing more than the legal luminaries in South Jordan are badly in want of a schoolmaster.

TOLD ON THE QUIET. Some Stories Now Being Circulated by Those Who Should Know.

That was a neat piece of sarcasm on the part of Mr. Mackintosh, when, at the conclusion of the reading of Mr. Conklin's declination, he remarked, "J. C. Conklin, per O. W. Powers." That the letter was dictated by Powers, there is not the slightest doubt in the minds of anybody who reads it, and if the typewriter of the ex-lord were to be placed on oath, the fact could probably be proven. I am very sorry for Mr. Conklin. He is a man for whom I have always had a great deal of respect; he has, on a large scale, large interests in the city and territory, and the acceptance of the nomination for recorder at the hands of the leading men in the community, certainly, had not been looked upon as an honor that he would have refused. It is very rarely bestowed. It was offered, not because Mr. Conklin believed that the gentleman was interested in the property and good name of the community in which he has long resided, and because of the fact, further, that it was thought he would do credit to the city.

That he should have been so ungrateful to do so is ungentlemanly—as to complain that a letter is a surprise to all who have known him, and there are those who say that even now he regrets that he listened to the advice of a certain man who has lately removed to the city. If he does not regret it now he certainly will when the hypnotic effects of the son of Michigan have worn off.

Conklin should have remembered that there is a time in the affairs of men, that, taken at the flood leads on to fortune; alack, that there comes a day whereof excessive loans on property and that the securities of the association are not worth more than half their face value, and that the value of their shares will decrease as fast as securities are realized upon, and that the association is insolvent; that in many cases the excessive loans were made to members of the board of directors. Other irregularities are alleged, wherefore the plaintiff prays that a receiver be appointed by the court to wind up the affairs of the company and hold the assets for distribution to the stockholders after the liabilities are paid to creditors other than stockholders, and also that the agents, officers and employees of the association be restrained from continuing in the management of the said association's business.

For Building Material. Samuel W. Stevens began suit against James E. Woodmansee last yesterday in the Third district court to collect $389.84 on an assigned account for building material furnished and asking that said amount be adjudged a lien on the premises of the defendant Woodmansee.

Probate Court. Orders were made in the probate court yesterday by Judge Blair as follows: Guardianship of H. C. Shurtliff, minor; Oct. 13 set to hear guardian's account. Estate of Frank Crocker; continued until Oct. 6. Guardianship of Hans Jacob Jensen, minor; continued until Oct. 4. Estate of Matthew Cronan; final discharge of special administrator made; Mrs. Catherine Gillis appointed administratrix on a bond in the sum of $250; order of publication of notice to creditors made.

COMMISSIONERS AND JUSTICES. Freda Pullman sues Sheriff McQueen for Damages.

The demit done were well represented in Justice Kesler's office when the case of Freda Pullman vs. Sheriff McQueen came up for trial yesterday, in which Miss Pullman sought for the return of certain wearing apparel, a silver toilet set, an album, and other articles, valued at a total of $125 and alleged to have been wrongfully seized by Deputy Sheriff O'Brien and for damages in the sum of $150. The articles in question were levied upon on a judgment granted by Justice Hall in favor of Helen Smith, alias Helen Halls against Freda Pullman. The defenses claimed that the articles in question were exempt from execution. The articles were produced in court and Justice Kesler made a critical examination of them. His honor took the case under advisement and will render his decision at 2 o'clock today.

FRANDELL'S TRANSFER. Attorney G. A. Burgen has commenced suit on behalf of A. Dalton in United States Commissioner Pratt's court against Justice of the Peace Oliver and Deputy Constable Beckstead of South Jordan to recover a quantity of grain valued at $110 alleged to have been unlawfully converted and sold for $92.50.

THE COAL FUND BENEFIT.

A Letter from Mayor Baskin to the Stock Company. The following letter from Mayor Baskin regarding the recent engagement of the Salt Lake Stock company will be read with interest:

MAYOR'S OFFICE. SALT LAKE CITY, SEPT. 25, 1893. Messrs. Charles H. Collins, Manager Salt Lake Stock company, and Charles H. Burton, Manager Salt Lake Theatre.

GENTLEMEN—I am today in receipt of $12.75, being the pro rata per centage as agreed upon between us for the coal fund benefit tendered by yourselves and associates during the presentation of the "Two Orphans."

The proceeds are much larger than I anticipated they would be. Your idea that the coal be not distributed until the extreme cold winter sets in is a good one, and I will follow your wishes in the matter.

The worthy poor to whom I will be able to furnish the sixty or seventy loads of coal will I am sure appreciate your charity. I am yours truly, H. N. BASKIN, Mayor.

STRUCK A LIVE WIRE. A Horse Belonging to Rich Bros. Killed Instantly. During the wind storm which prevailed yesterday, a telephone wire was blown down and fell across a street railway wire near the corner of Fifth West and South Temple streets. Shortly afterwards two men in the employ of Rich Bros., the butchers, drove down the street in a delivery cart, and the horse struck the wire, which was not insulated, and the shock killed the animal almost instantly. The men had a close call, but were not injured.
