LUXURY
WITHOUT EXTRAVAGANCE

Electrical cooking appliances, though they are inexpensive to buy and cost almost nothing to operate, carry an unmistakable atmosphere of daintiness and luxury into the home.

There are electrical appliances which add ease of preparation and to the enjoyment of breakfast, luncheon, afternoon tea, dinner and the after-theatre supper.

We carry them all, in a big variety of styles.

comings of those in power, and the jingle of a discontented people now grates on his nerves where once it was music to his ears. Also, he is more careful with his criticism. What a fix he would find himself in if he should suddenly reverse his politics. Or suppose Mr. Hughes had been elected, and the inevitable had happened; would the greatest Democrat of the tribe then have insisted that the people hold their tongues?

THE POWER OF THE WEEKLY.

BIG metropolitan dailies with circulations running into the thousands have a peculiar power of their own, but with all their readers there is not the personal touch characteristic of the weekly newspaper. The local editor speaks to his readers as one friend speaks to another. They know either the hard fight he is making for their interests or they know how hide-bound he is to partisan interests. A word from their local editor means more to the country folks than many columns read from some anonymous and unknown "editor in the big city." A man writing fearlessly in some senator's or congressman's home state can do more to keep that public official straight than all the metropolitan newspapers put together.—Idaho Exchange.

CHOOSING HANGMEN.

FORMER Governor Ralston is anxious to hang all traitors and hang them at once. That's a classy little program all right and one to which we will all cheerfully subscribe. But we would most of us prefer that some one other than a partisan politician be selected to pick 'em out. There are too many blatherskites abroad today insisting that the true test of loyalty is worship at their particular party shrine and that treason is involved in a criticism of the blunders and misdeeds of their party leaders.—Fort Wayne News.

Red tape is said to be the cause of a lack of wood for airships. But that's nothing. Under the direction of a Denman we shall soon plant trees for a whole forest.
