An Electric Toaster

should be in every home. It makes rich, crisp, brown toast and better toast than can be made in any other way because the electricity does not give off fumes or smoke or dry out the toast. The current for six slices costs less than one cent.

ON THE LUNETA.

By Alfred Damon Runyon.

Oh, the boat lights jig on the silver bay,
And bow to the tropic moon;
The carriage wheels have stopped their squeals
As the band strikes up a tune;
Oh, the couples linked on the big parade
Stand still; and light as foam
The soft notes blend to the eager end,
As the band plays "Home, Sweet Home!"

The war boats riding the harbor's breast
Hang still on the highest swell;
And the Chink junks, too, have stopped their slew
As the soft notes weave their spell;
The laughter stops in the barrack halls
And the sentries pause to hear,
As the old, old air comes sweet as prayer
With its bid for the silent tear.

And the bright lights fade in a purple mist,
And the thoughts have gone askew,
While the bandmen play in a solemn way
(For the band is thinking, too.)
Ay, the bright lights fade on the grand parade,
And the clattering words seem dead;
While faces grave turn to the wave

With a longing—left unsaid.

The outposts hear on their lonely watch,
For the evening air is still,
And the strains ride far as the nearest star
That shines on yonder hill;
They carry away to the firing lines
By the city of green and chrome—
And a vague unrest stirs every breast
When the band plays "Home, Sweet Home!"
People's Magazine.

"I had always heard that New Englanders were 'smart,'" a young physician who had "graduated" from a village practice remarked the other day, "but I hardly thought it developed at such an early age."

He smiled remissently, then continued:

"Just after I settled in Dobbs Corners a twelve-year-old boy called on me one evening.

"'Say, Doc, I guess I got measles,' he remarked, 'but nobody knows it 'cept the folks at home, an' they ain't the kind that talks, if there's any good reason to keep quiet.'

"I was puzzled, and I suppose I looked it.

"'Aw, get wise, Doc,' my small visitor suggested. 'What will you give me to go to school an' spread it among all the kids in the village?'"
