

BIRDSEYE VIEW OF THE COAL CAMP OF KENILWORTH

WORKING ALMOST STEADILY.

Above is a birdseye view of the coal camp of Kenilworth, seven miles to the north of Price, reached by the Kenilworth and Helper railroad out of Helper by train or by automobile from Price. It is one of the model camps of the West, where each employe from superintendent to the humblest worker takes a pride in cleanliness and civic beauty of his town. In fact, the camp of Kenilworth might well enter the "clean town" contests of Utah each year with every prospect of winning first or second place.

The mines at Kenilworth are operated by the Independent Coal and Coke company, one of the most liberal corporations in the treatment of its employes and dealings with the general public of the many mining concerns operating in Utah. C. N. Strevell of Salt Lake City is the president of the company, and W. J. Elwood, superintendent at the mines. General offices are maintained in Salt Lake City. George A. Murphy is the chief engineer and much of the latter's time is spent at the town of Kenilworth.

At the present time something like a hundred and fifty miners and others are on the payroll at Kenilworth. Under a system recently adopted by General Superintendent Elwood the men are getting in practically full time. All are contented with conditions at this camp and are appreciative of the efforts of the company to keep them employed. There is a close bond of sympathy at Kenilworth between employer and employe with each individual's whole soul in the work.

For the year 1914 the mines of Kenilworth produced and marketed over three hundred thousand tons, employing three hundred and eighty-four men on an average of one hundred and eighty-seven days a year each. Great care and extra precaution is taken against accidents with the result that during the year there were but two fatal accidents and seven non-fatal, according to the report of State Mine Inspector Pettit. Over eighty thousand pounds of powder was used during the year.

At this time the production of Kenilworth is running around three hundred and fifty railroad cars of maximum tonnage a month. Considerable of the output is going to the sugar factories and also to the railroads for engine use. As the coal trade increases the Independent Coal and Coke company gets its share of the business. With the coming of the fall and winter trade business will increase. This is expected to later put more miners at work.

Those at the head of the Independent Coal and Coke company show an interest in everything pertaining to the welfare of Carbon county and have contributed liberally in the past to local enterprises—notably the county fair and the bridge over the Price river at Woodside. The best of feeling exists between the people of the county seat and those at the coal camp.

WOULD PURCHASE THE PRICE PLANT

Utah Power and Light Company Ready to Open Negotiations With City With This Object In View.

Utah Power and Light company, which recently obtained a franchise from the board of county commissioners to operate in Carbon county and whose activities in this section of the state have been frequently mentioned of late by The Sun, is desirous of purchasing the electric light and power plant at Price, and it is likely a representative of the corporation will be here next Tuesday evening when the city council again meets to feel that body and the mayor out on the proposition. The company would also acquire the Helper plant, it is believed, if it may be obtained at the right price.

That the Utah Power and Light has coveted these plants along with others in Eastern Utah for a considerable time has been well known, and that the company is willing to pay all that they are reasonably worth and take them over there is not the least doubt. To arrive at the value of the Price plant the original cost would be easily figured out. Then there would be a discount no doubt for depreciation and the like. An offer from Utah Power and Light could be entertained by the mayor and council, but to sell a vote of the taxpayers of the city would have to be had.

Recently a gentleman connected with Utah Power and Light said to a representative of The Sun: "I am in hopes that at some early date the citizens and the council of your city will come to the conclusion that the entire operation of furnishing and selling of electrical energy direct to the consumers can best be carried on by a corporation of our size, engaged solely in this line of business, and that we will be able to buy or lease the entire property from the municipality on such a basis as will warrant our taking it over. I believe this arrangement would work to the benefit of all concerned."

For a week or more The Sun has heard the proposition discussed more or less by numerous residents, taxpayers and property owners of Price. Some are of the opinion that it would be a good thing for the city to sell its power and lighting plant if what it is reasonably worth is obtainable for it. It is argued that with this money the present bonded debt of the city for water, sewer system and so forth could be wiped out, which would open the way for the people to bond for a water system in a sum around a hundred thousand dollars. The present bonded debt of Price for all purposes is about forty-seven thousand dollars.

The proposition of the city's selling its lighting system is a live one and will undoubtedly soon come before the taxpayers and citizens after it has been threshed out by the city council. It is a subject upon which a great many persons will honestly differ, and at the same time is a matter that calls for the most thorough consideration and thought from someone who has the welfare of the people at heart. Again it may be that the value placed upon the property by the purchasing company will not come up to the expectations of the council and that nothing will come of the deal. However, this is not likely.

Utah Power and Light has recently acquired by purchase the plants at Scofield, Huntington, Castle Dale and Orangeville and is getting ready to operate not only in every city and town anywhere near Price, but in all of the coal camps of Carbon and Emery county as well. It is in position to make a good bargain with Price and it is anticipated this will be forthcoming. After the central plant is built below Helper the main line, as previously announced in The Sun, is to be constructed through from Price to Grand Junction, Colo. The investment of the corporation in Eastern Utah will in the very near future exceed five hundred thousand dollars, to say nothing of plants that may be acquired.

The municipal plant of Price has cost to date around thirty-five thousand dollars. It has never been a money-maker for the city, the policy of all administrations being to furnish light especially at as near cost as is possible.

ANNUAL FIRST AID MEET TOMORROW
SIX UTAH FUEL COMPANY CAMPS TO COMPETE.

Trip to the San Francisco Exposition in September to Be Awarded the Team Making the Best Score in the Combined Aid and Mine Rescue Work—Medals and Caps For Others.

The annual first aid and mine rescue contest of the Utah Fuel company employes will be held at Castle Gate tomorrow, Saturday, August 21st. Elimination contests were held in each camp July 24th to select one team to enter in the contest next Saturday.

Six Utah Fuel company teams will compete—one each from Somerset mine (Colorado), Sunnyside, Castle Gate, Clear Creek, Winter Quarters and Utah mine in Utah. The team making the highest score in first aid work retains a beautiful loving cup one year and each member receives a neat gold medal from the company.

The team making the second highest score will receive silver medals. A grand prize, consisting of a trip to the Panama-Pacific exposition in San Francisco, C. in September, will be awarded the team making the best score in the combined first aid and mine rescue work, affording them the opportunity of competing in the national first aid and mine rescue contests, September 23rd and 24th, under the auspices of the United States bureau of mines, American Red Cross society, and the American Mine Safety association.

Special trains will carry the teams and friends from the various mining camps to Castle Gate on the date of contest, and during the day, in addition to the contests, a baseball game, musical program, band concert and dance is arranged for the entertainment of the visitors.

The judges selected for the contests are Mr. J. C. Roberts, mining engineer, bureau of mines, Denver, Colo., J. E. Pettit, state mine inspector, Salt Lake City, and H. H. Sanderson, representing the Dragger Oxygen Helmet company, of Salt Lake City.

AFTER THE WILLIAMSES

Money From the Father's Estate Said to Be Unaccounted For.

Attorneys at Salt Lake City are checking up the accounts of W. F. Williams, for several years and until the last term of district court at Castle Dale administrator of the estate of David Williams, deceased. The Williams estate has property at Price and also in the town of Huntington. W. F. Williams was recently removed as administrator and Henry Farnsey, one of the heirs and a resident of Black Hawk, was named in his stead by Judge Christensen.

It is alleged by the attorneys for the recently appointed administrator that W. F. Williams is short in his accounts several thousand dollars, and an accounting is to be asked for. W. F. Williams is alleged to have left the state of Utah, and if sufficient evidence can be produced and there is no doubt of this, he will be returned here.

D. J. Williams is also mixed up with his brother, W. F. Williams, in money matters connected with the David Williams estate and may be cited into court to explain numerous transactions, one of which was the collection of five hundred dollars fire insurance money following the fire which burned the old Clarke Hotel, the building being a portion of the David Williams estate.

Just before district court met at Castle Dale the last time, W. F. Williams filed for Canada. It is said. An accounting for money of the estate had at that time been asked for by the heirs represented by Farnsey.

ARE GETTING TOGETHER

Senator Sutherland Talks of California Political Conditions.

United States Senator George Sutherland is back in Utah from his trip to the California expositions and will remain in Salt Lake City for more than a month yet before going East. He spent practically four weeks on the Pacific Coast. While in California he gave some attention to politics and business. In Southern California, where the hottest of progressivism has been, he states that he found many of the rank and file of the progressives coming back to the republican party. "The progressives and republicans in California are going to get together," says Senator Sutherland.

"Whether this will come about through the rank and file of the progressives coming over to the republicans or whether it will be brought about by the progressives getting into the republican primaries and wresting control from the present republican leaders remains to be seen, but all indications point to the joining of the forces by one means or the other. California is going republican at the next election, as the progressives realize that nothing can be gained unless all persons opposed to democratic theories are united.

"It is the same throughout the nation, as far as I can find. The progressives are breaking away, and the only efforts being made are by the leaders who desire to hold their organizations in order to see what can be done when the time comes to amalgamate."

LEO ANDERSON IS BESTED AT PRICE

THROWN FROM BUCKING ANIMAL DURING PERFORMANCE.

Necessary to Call Physician to Care For the Carbon County Young Man—However, His Injuries Were Not of a Serious Nature—Great Crowds Attend Splendid Wild West Show.

Irwin Bros. Wild West show with headquarters at Cheyenne, Wyo., exhibited at Price last Monday afternoon and evening. The show came here from a week's engagement at Grand Junction, Colo., where it played to the largest crowds in the history of that city. The afternoon performance at Price was attended by more than a thousand people with a large attendance from the coal camps to the south and from Helper and elsewhere west. At night the crowd was somewhat smaller. Indiana cowboys and cowgirls, right off the reservations and the ranch in Wyoming, contribute to the entertainment.

Accompanying the show is an excellent band, which gave a concert Sunday evening on Main street. A lady soloist does some good singing stunts with the musical organization. At Monday afternoon's performance Leo Anderson of Price, who recently joined the show as a broncho buster, was thrown from the horse he attempted to ride, but was not seriously injured. However, it was necessary to call a physician to attend him. One of the lady riders came near being hurt by her horse running under the ropes with her.

Anderson claims that the reason of his being thrown from the animal is the fact that he has not ridden much for the past two years. After Monday's experience he proffered to wager anyone that he could conquer the horse that threw him. He displayed his good faith by betting a hundred dollars, but the offer was not accepted. Anderson quit the show here. His friends were anxious to place the hundred for him or more for that matter. A bad horse from Wellington and belonging to one of the Tidewells was ridden to a frazzle and went home gentler than when he came.

The people of Irwin Bros. show are in striking contrast to most aggregations of this character that come along in that they are clean, gentlemanly and ladylike. There is nothing of the rough element. The business end of the show does things in a business like way and on the square. Those who attended the two performances at Price got their money's worth. The show left here for Idaho on Tuesday.
