That a county has the right to collect a tax under the dependent mothers' act of the legislature of 1912 is declared in a decision handed down by the supreme court last Friday in the case of the Denver and Rio Grande, respondent, against Grand county, appellant. In the year 1914 the county collected $913.64 tax under this act from the railroad. The railroad sued for recovery and won its case. The supreme court reverses the judgment and remands the case to the district court to make conclusions of law in accordance with the opinion and enter judgment dismissing the complaint.

To Our Friends and Patrons

We thank our patrons throughout this section of the state very much for their patronage during the past year. And we trust that the coming months will find our business relations even more pleasant than ever before. We wish you the season's best greetings.

MONUMENT TO RICHARDS

Relatives Invade Miles of Nevada Desert to Erect It.

In a lonely spot on a barren stretch of a Nevada desert stands a stone monument that has just been erected by loving hands in memory of J. Heber Richards, a well known Salt Lake City mining engineer, who perished at that spot on the desert from sunstroke last June. The monument was erected by George T. Odell, state director of war savings, and members of his family, Richards having been the party, which traveled by rail, automobile and on foot for more than twelve hundred miles to pay tribute to the memory of the departed, was composed of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Odell, Mrs. Richards, widow of the mining man, and her two children. The party went to Las Vegas by rail and from there went into the desert by automobile and on foot the last few miles of the journey. Mrs. Odell and her grandchildren, then, went on to Los Angeles, Calif., where they will spend the winter, and Mr. Odell returned to Salt Lake City. The man to whom this monument is erected was for years active in the development of Eastern Utah industries. At the time of his death he was working a big acreage of asphaltum lands above Sunnyside, and was well and favorably known to numerous Price and Carbon county folks.

The Campfire girls met at the home of Miss Elizabeth Crockett Saturday and enjoyed the hours in games and refreshments.

Quarterly conference did not have the usual big crowd at Price last Saturday and Sunday, because of the holiday season no doubt. Hyrum M. Smith and Albert J. Davis were in attendance.

The junior league will offer a Christmas entertainment at the Methodist church, Sunday evening next at 7 o'clock. A play entitled "Christmas Spirit" will be given by the Juniors. Also a reading by Miss Cornelia Stevenson. Other features will be songs and recitations. Everybody is cordially invited.

Marriage licenses were issued during the past week at Price to Sylvester H. Kistler from Deweyville and Florence May Gruppig of Wellington; Clell Patey of Ferron and Lizzie Roberts of Kanosh; George C. Roach and Ollie J. Leonard, both of Price; James H. Smith and Gladys Watson, both of Provo; and to Roscoe Dewett of Chicago and May Cady of Denver, Colo.

People who possess intoxicating liquor in Utah are violating the prohibition law according to a decision of the United States supreme court. The decision was given in an Idaho case, but the principle laid down applies to all prohibition states. A copy of the decision was placed in the hands of Attorney General Dan B. Rhoads this week. The arrest of a person for having liquor in his possession is not an abridgment of his constitutional rights, holds the decision.

Before Judge J. D. Call, sitting for Judge Christensen at Price recently, Peter Jeannette, prominent shopman of this city, was given a judgment against Manuwan Hujakic and Artemis Stavarian in a trespassing case of a dollar an acre for the ground alleged to have been damaged by reason thereof. L. A. McGee was the attorney for the plaintiff. Eastern Utah ration books is becoming more valuable all the time and those owning it generally are preparing themselves to protect their holdings. During recent terms of district court at Price there have been several of these trespassing cases.

John F. Cady, recently acquitted in district court at Price of the charge of stealing a quantity of whisky from a liquor near Castle Gate on the Denver and Rio Grande, plead not guilty to the same charge in the federal court at Salt Lake City last Saturday. The federal court complaint is identical with the one alleged near Castle Gate. The man's arrest followed his filing suit against Thomas Burgs, special agent of the Denver and Rio Grande, and that company also for false imprisonment. He had been working with the local road and was working in Wyoming when this latest charge against him and his arrest followed. The whisky was in interstate traffic.

The Community program held at the high school auditorium, Christmas eve was in every way successful. A large crowd of parents and children turned out and filled the spacious room. The program was under the direction of the Latter-day Saints Sunday school, but important parts were taken by members of other denominations. Miss Cornelia Stevenson and Mrs. Thomas Fitzgerald deserve much praise for their efficient work. The story of the Christ was the main feature. As Miss Stevenson read the story fourteen characters beautifully costumed acted it out in pantomime fashion. Prof. H. H. Walters had charge of the electrical effects, which was performed with much credit to him.

Starting Right

The fight is half won when you get the right start. To the young business man, nothing is so much importance as a bank account.

It may be small at first—doesn't always need to be large, but it should carry all his cash transactions. Every payment should be made through it.

It's helpful—it's stabilizing—it's encouraging. This bank wants your checking account—large or small. It pays 4 per cent on savings accounts, compounded semi-annually.

One of the first acts of the Utah legislature in January, 1918, will be the ratification of the constitutional amendment for national prohibition. This seems to be the unanimous opinion of public men questioned on the subject. Should there be a special session of the legislature action will be taken on the amendment then, it is declared. All holder state senators are "dry," it is explained, and with Utah in the ranks of the prohibition states now, it is unlikely that any person unfriendly to national drouth can be elected. Carbon county's member of the legislature, Frank T. Bennett of Storts, is on record as favoring prohibition and no doubt would vote this way in any legislation affecting the liquor question that may come up.

Want to enjoy life? Do it then. No one is preventing you.

He Was Onto Our Good Service

The story is told of a citizen of a nearby town who went into a business man's office, but because of the presence of others ahead of him, he could not gain an immediate audience.

Leaving the establishment, he went to the nearest telephone and called up the man he wanted to see. Thus he made the others in the office wait until he was through talking over the phone.

The telephone "gets there" and refuses to wait once the bell rings.
