IS MORE BLESSED THAN ANY COUNTRY ON EARTH.

We have a greater variety of foods in this country than is to be found in any other on earth. Not only do we have more foodstuffs—food in greater quantities—but the average American consumes a wider range of foods than does the inhabitant of other countries. As a matter of fact the variety of foods in most lands is very limited. The Hindu knows no other food than rice. The Chinaman and the Japanese have a commodity of two besides rice. In some regions fruit is used exclusively, and in many lands bread and potatoes constitute the chief item of diet. But here, in this good land of ours, we have practically every food that is to be had in any other. Take the table of the average man of Carbon county—day in and day out—and note the many commodities which are consumed. Or, better still, go to the grocery and look over the shelves. Food from every nook and corner of the earth, besides the many different kinds produced in this glorious country. A dozen kinds of meat, fifty kinds of vegetables, fruits of every known variety on earth—was ever there a nation of people that had the privilege of selecting the daily diet from such a list? Was ever there a people that should appreciate so much the privilege of living in a land where if the appetite craves any one thing it is possible to obtain it right here at home?

If the peace conference doesn't seem to get through with its work we'll have to call that patch of radishes and onions an armistice, instead of a peace garden, as Uncle Sam suggests.

Sometimes we wonder what has become of the old-fashioned citizen who used to give a patent medicine firm a testimonial just to get his picture in the papers.

At the same time that booze goes out the two-cent stamp comes back. But what's the use? Most of the fellows will be too dry to lick a postage stamp.

It is announced that food prices will soon come down. And we know a lot of people who'd be willing to stand under and be bruised by the fall.

When labor gets all it wants and all its dreams come true, nobody will be working but the boss and he'll not be getting anything out of it.

MAIL ORDER CONCERNS TO BE FOUGHT HERE IN UTAH

In an effort to stem the tide of mail orders going out of this state to Eastern centers, the Utah Manufacturers' association is directing a part of its buy at home campaign to this particular phase. A report was received at the office of the association a few days ago that recently a full carload—twenty-eight tons of mail order merchandise—was received at a Utah distributing point, consigned to one small district. Investigation revealed the fact that this was a frequent occurrence, and that in fact, mail order houses at the East are being given the cream of the business that should be going to Utah merchants.

"Just what effect this drain on the resources of the state means to the people who must look to Utah industries as a means of gaining a livelihood is hard to determine," says a member of the association, "but it goes without saying that every dollar thus sent assists in the upbuilding of some Eastern industrial center when it could just as well be made to help the development of manufacturing in this state.

"The manufacturers' association is endeavoring to create a sentiment against this sort of buying by urging that Utah made goods will equal in value, on the basis of both quantity and quality, the mail-order goods from the East, and asking the people of the state to make comparisons and give Utah goods the preference when they compare favorably in quality and in price with goods made elsewhere."

At the recent meeting of the manufacturers with the Utah State Press association this phase of the campaign was emphasized and both manufacturers and publishers pledged themselves to vigorously prosecute the campaign against the mail order business.

Prizes which provide for the tabulation of information regarding pupils in the vocational education plan outlined for Utah have been forwarded to the various school boards in the state by State Director Francis W. Wickham. With the form is a letter calling attention to the appropriation by the state of fifty thousand dollars for this work.

CATTLE PRICES RANGE SOME HIGHER OF LATE

FAT STEERS SHOW ADVANCE OF TEN TO FIFTEEN CENTS

Sheep and Goats About Steady With Trading Fairly Active In Both Classes—Some Inquiry For Thin Mules For Feeding Purposes—Live Stock Notes and Quotations.

The Sun Special Service.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 9.—All cattle prices today were strong to ten cents higher than last week's close and fifty to sixty-five cents above a week ago. Prices have advanced steadily since last Tuesday, and the demand today showed more urgency than for some time past. Hogs were strong in ten cents higher than Friday and sheep steady in twenty-five cents lower. Cattle receipts today were eleven thousand or four thousand head fewer than a week ago, and two thousand less than a year ago. Only about seventy carloads of long-horn cattle were included in today's supply. Hog receipts seven thousand, two thousand head larger than a week ago and six thousand larger than a year ago. Sheep receipts showed a moderate increase compared with a week ago, and a twenty-five hundred head increase compared with a year ago. Prices for fat steers were ten to fifteen cents higher than last week's close and fifty to sixty-five cents above a week ago with considerable activity in the late trade. Offerings sold more closely than for some time past. A carload of fourteen hundred Kansas steers sold at $16.00, the highest price for some time past. California steers $12.50 to $13.00. Arizona up to $14.25, and Colorado $14.50. Cows and heifers were quoted strong at $7.50 to $13.00, and heifers ten cents higher at $8.50 to $14.00. Veal calves were steady. Trade in stockers and feeders was rather quiet because of small receipts. Prices firm. Feeders are quoted at $10.00 to $14.00 and stockers $8.50 to $13.00. Hog prices here remain materially higher than elsewhere. The top price today $20.20, paid by a packer, and bulk of hogs brought $19.00 to $20.15. Compared with last Friday the market is ten to fifteen cents higher. Pigs are selling at $15.50 to $19.00. Sheep prices today were about steady with trade fairly active after a late start. Spring lambs sold at $17.50 to $18.50, and clipped sheep $9.50 to $10.50. Goats up to $9.00. Most of the offerings were from Arizona, Texas and California. Normal receipts of horses and mules in the past week met a fairly active demand at steady prices. There is some inquiry for thin mules for feeding, but the demand for southern horses is dull and prices weak.

Dr. S. W. McClure, secretary of the National Woolgrowers' association, has announced that the association will offer a hundred dollars in prizes for sheep at the next state fair. Prizes of ten dollars each will be offered for the best rams and ewes.

James A. Haaper, general agent at Salt Lake City for the National Wool Warehouse and storage company at Chicago, received a telegram last Wednesday from there stating that at the auction wool sales in Boston the day before there was keen bidding. A few choice wools were offered, and the balance sold above the government minimum price.

In the neighborhood of seventeen hundred steers, which netted their owners nearly $100,000, were shipped last week from Thompsons. The largest shippers were the Shay Mountain Cattle company, which sold something like thirteen hundred head. The prices they received were fifty-five dollars for yearlings, sixty-five dollars for two and seventy-five dollars for three.

Laboratory Tests and Road Tests

Laboratory tests of motor oils are all well and good. We make them constantly. But the best way for you to test your motor oil, is first, find out who manufactures it, and, second, to use the oil in your car day in and day out.

As to the first test, Vice Motor Oil is manufactured by the Utah Oil Refining Co., the largest oil refining company in the Intermountain West. As to the second test, thousands of motorists have used Vice and the proof of its efficiency is in the fact that they continue to use it.

UTAH STATE FAIR MATTERS GOING ALONG QUITE NICELY

Manager Parratt has contracted with Bernard's Greater Exposition shows for the carnival attractions for this year's fair.

Peterson & Leonard received a hundred and fifty head of hogs at Price last Tuesday. They came from Emery county and the Uintah Basin and most of them are going to Denver, Colo., and to East.

During the past week Utah Manufacturers association presented to the Utah State fair board a large construction, the value of which is approximately seven hundred dollars. It bears the legend: "I Am For Utah."

Arrangements have been made on all highways for special freight and passenger rates. These are half the usual full fare. The half reduction is made on the presentation of a certificate from the Utah State Fair association.

This year for the first time the railroad will assume part of the risk in shipping cattle. Exhibitors will have thirty days in which to ship back stock from the fair, the return trip being free. This is equivalent to half of the usual freight rates.

S. T. Whitaker of Ogden has been appointed director to succeed William Bertram, who was obliged to tender his resignation because he is out of the state so much of the year. Whitaker will be supervisor of the fine arts department and the merchants department.

The Utah Pigeon club through its secretary, C. J. Dietz, announces that it will offer a magnificent trophy for the best bred pigeon at the Utah State fair. Dietz gives assurance of possibly the most extensive display of pigeons ever assembled in Utah.

Fairs in California have increased a great deal following the failure of the Utah State fair. It will therefore be possible for exhibitors shipping in Utah to qualify at the Los Angeles fair on the same terms. This is only one of the numerous advantages enjoyed by the Utah State fair this year.

Dr. H. B. Bradford of the state school of music at the University of Utah has been chosen assistant supervisor of the musical department. James Haley of Syracuse, Wash., who gave such splendid satisfaction as starter for the races of last year, has been chosen for the coming fair.

The agriculturists of the state will be interested in a collection of crops, such as injurious insects and fungus growths, which are being assembled by C. E. Hagen for exhibition. This display promises to be one of the most educational that will be provided at the big annual association. Methods of combating these pests will also be illustrated.

With a view to providing a supply of satisfactory horses for the use of the army, a movement has been started by the war department looking to enlisting congressional interest in the matter. Just what form the desired legislation is to take is at this time not clear, but the question will be worked down to a basis by the military authorities and then a definite plan will be submitted to congress.
