

The Kaiser-i-hind

(A GERMAN HOTEL "SOMEWHERE IN INDIA.")

A. W. Hadley.

I've slept with a plank for a mattress,
I've pillowed my head on an arm;
I've swung in a hammock b'tween decks,
I've spent a whole night on a farm;
I've bivouaced deep in the jungle,
Be-deviled and wet to the skin;
Yet each was a model of comfort,
Compared with that Kaiserized inn.

I've sweated in a Mexican tavern,
I've sweltered with Sheiks on the Nile;
I've dozed in the shade of a cactus,
I've camped with the Arabs a while;
I've stopped at the Waldorf in August,
I've slept where the deserts begin,
Yet each was a model of coolness,
Compared with that Berlinese inn.

I've slept among horn-toads and rattlers,
I've stalked a Los Angeles flea;
I've cursed every 'skeeter in Jersey,
I've drunk Malay ants in my tea;
I've beaten the brains out of lizards,
I've slept where each bug was a twin;
Yet lizards and "bugs" have my friendship,
Compared with that Hamburger inn.

I've slept on Pike's Peak in a blanket,
I've camped with Canucks in the snows;
I've snoozed in a tomb of the Caliphs,
I've climbed where the Edelweiss grows;
I've weathered Manchurian blizzards,
I've slept in a shack made of tin;
Yet each was quite warm-like and comfy,
Compared with that Kaiserine inn.

I've eaten palafi in Athens,
I've tasted an Igolette stew;
I've gorged on an "Irishman's goulash",
I've eaten of bird-nests and glue;
I know I've had horse meat in Paris,
Ye gods! it was tougher than sin;
Yet I'd swear that it seemed like a banquet,
Compared with that Teutonized inn.

I've fished in the Thames at low water,
I've dashed through a market in Spain;
I've sampled the odors of Stamboul,
I've strolled through its muck in the rain;
I've seen them burn dead on the Ganges,
The odor would penetrate tin,
Yet those smells were as attar of roses,
Compared with that pretzelized inn.

I've strolled through Japan's "Yoshiwara",
I've been "Down the Line" in Bombay;
I've done the "Fish Market" in Cairo,
I've dined in a Greek cabaret;
I've seen "Moulin Rouge" after midnight,
I've drunk in that "palace of sin",
And I'd call them all models of virtue,
Compared with that Wilhelmized inn.

I've tarried with Hindoos at Puri,
I've stood at their filthy old shrine;
I've seen women worship vile idols,
I've seen them sink lower than swine;
I've watched the nude fakirs of Delhi,
I've seen them drive nails through the skin;
Yet it all was quite God-like and Christian,
Compared with that Germanized inn.

I've lived in a Pompeian villa,
I've lain in a Bedouin's tent;
I've stopped at the Cecil in London,
I've paid an Apache his rent;
But of all the disciples of Mammon,
There's none that occurs to my mind,
I would rather see strangled and quartered,
Than the boss of the Kaiser-i-hind.

Kind Devil—I make you a promise,
I pledge you my humblest aid
For a million of years, as a starter,
(As soon as I'm truly a shade),
If you'll give me but ten minutes daily
Away from the regular grind,
To chase that cuss 'round with a pitch-fork—
The one from the Kaiser-i-hind.

TROOPS OF CAVALRY BEING ORGANIZED

SALT LAKE, Feb. 16.—Indication that the war department has begun the organization of the fifteen troops of cavalry provided in the government's army organization plan, is contained in an order received at war prison headquarters at Fort Douglas yesterday directing Lieutenant John S. Norman, cavalry, to report for duty at once with the 308th cavalry troop at Douglas, Ariz.

Lieutenant Norman has been on duty with the Third war prison company several months, but the orders received yesterday relieve him of this duty at once. He will leave today or tomorrow for Douglas to join his troop.

No details as to the organization of the cavalry troops have been received here, but it is understood that the units will be organized and trained along the Mexican border prior to being sent to France.

DEATH ROLL OF TUSCANIA 174

Ten More Names Added to List of the Identified Dead.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—No new estimate of the total number dead among American soldiers abroad the Tuscania had been made by the war department today, but ten names appearing in a list of eighty-one identified dead given out by the department last night, apparently brought the death roll up to 174.

An Associated Press dispatch last Tuesday announced that 164 soldier victims had been buried along the Scottish coast but last night's message was the first official partial list of dead to reach the war department. In this list were ten names which did not appear in the Associated Press' list of those buried in Scotland.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—Five hundred thousand more New Testaments have just been ordered for the soldiers in this country by the supply department of the national war council of the Young Men's Christian association, it was announced today. This makes a total of 1,700,000 New Testaments bought by the association for army men during the last few months.

P. F. Jerome, director of the bureau of material, equipment and supplies division, said that it was impossible to keep enough New Testaments on hand for the soldiers.

"New Testaments are greatly in demand all over the country for our army men," he said. "They aren't for souvenirs. They are waterproof covered for daily use in all kinds of weather. They are for serious reading
