WHEN THE NEXT BLOW IS STRUCK.

When the Germans strike again to the west of Arras, in the two salients they have established reaching out in the direction of Hazebrouck and Amiens, a better idea of the relative strength of the two forces battling for supremacy will be presented.

The first stage of the German drive was passed when fighting almost ceased on last Friday. But no one should deceive himself with the thought that the lull in the offensive is the end of the attempt of Hindenburg to break through.

Will the allies be able to hold? If they fail, what then? Why the Germans will go on to Calais on the English channel, and then the war will assume its most serious aspect for the ional; but that in character it would put us nearly upon the level of the very people we are fighting and affecting to despise. It would be altogether inconsistent with the spirit and practice of America, and, in view of the recent legislation, the espionage bill, the sabotage bill and the woman spy bill, I think it is unnecessary and uncalled for."

If President Wilson has a weakness it is to be found in his desire to live up to the ideal. But in dealing with an unscrupulous foe, our president will discover that his high principles will be accepted as evidence of softness, and, therefore, become a source of encouragement to the men and women who recognize nothing short of force as indicative of strength and will-power.

The German military mind has been taught to look with contempt on those who are swayed by humanitarian sentiments and nothing short of their own frightfulness commands their respect. In dealing with them, there should be no nice discrimination allowed to stand in the way of inflicting condign punishment.

Our civil courts are notoriously inefficient and slow, and constantly subjected to influences from without, while our military courts are quick acting, devoid of delays and merciless in exacting justice.

After six months of court martial, as applied to spies, there would be such a clean up that if the law were then declared unconstitutional, the country could rest assured in the good work that had been accomplished.

UNDER A NEW ORDER OF THINGS.

This country of ours will never completely return to the old conditions existing prior to the war. In nearly every branch of business great transformations are taking place and many of the changes will continue after the war.

What may be expected in certain lines is thus set forth by one of the leading industrial-writers of the United States:

Concentration, combination and co-operation are the order of the day in Great Britain and in Germany. They must likewise be the watchwords of the United States, though doubtless each country will apply these ideas in different ways and in varying degrees. In all three countries a period of reconstruction will immediately follow the war. In this country a mass of existing legislation will undoubtedly be swept aside. Many of our laws are even now a dead letter. The Sherman anti-trust law and the LaFollette shipping bill are both in the scrap heap. So is much of our railroad legislation, which has been a nightmare for years. Of what consequence now is the once dreaded interstate commerce commission? Where is the tariff, and what are we going to do with it? What about our foreign treaties and foreign policies after the war? What about the activities of our department of commerce and department of agriculture and the war board? How far will they be maintained or expanded? These and many other like problems must shortly be met; for we are already on the verge of the reconstruction period which means so much for the industrial future of the United States.

KNOCKERS ARE NOT A LOCAL PRODUCT.

Over in Canada, they must be going through much the same trying experience as in the United States. Here we have had criticism, pessimism and denunciation and, judging by the following suggested "substitutes" to be employed in winning the war, which are published in the Canadian Food Bulletin, Canada has not escaped the "anvil chorus":

- Substitute— Service for sneers. Economy for waste. Fish for beef or bacon. Co-operation for criticism. Production for pessimism. Performance for argument. Marketing for telephoning. Other meals for white flour. Conservation for conversation. Vegetable oils for animal fats. Perishable for preservable foods. The garden hoe for the golf stick. Common sense for common gossip. Patriotic push for peevish puerilities. Greater production for a German peace. Knowledge of prices for gossip about profits. Beef you do not eat for the rifle you cannot carry.

GERMANIA

(By Clinton Scollard of the Vigilantes) Medusa of the nations, see her stand Implacable, detestable, treacherous, base. Without a scruple, and without a trace Of honor, a sword within her murderous hand! Secret and subtle, now with smiling bland Wreathing the sleek insidiousness of her face, Assassin and despoiler of the race That, saith the Word, the Eternal Master planned!

Shall she debauch the world with her foul creed Of Might transcendent, frightfulness supreme. Her god a god as brutal as was Baal? O might we rouse from out this hideous dream To see some Power omnipotent, at our need Smiling this monster till she cringe and quail!

LET'S HOLD THE LINE. (By Norreys Jephson O'Conor of The Vigilantes.) We hold the line which stretches far, From western towns to fields of France, Where now our brave battalions are, Fighting to stop the Hun's advance,

We must not fall them in their need. We who, in factory or field, Are soldier, too; we may not bleed; Should we, then, find excuse to yield Because we pass in dreariness Our days, or in the summer sun Are hot, and worn with weariness? If our line breaks, the foe has won.

If we heed enemy alarms, Vain is the general's vast design, And vain the soldier's deed of arms. In Freedom's name, let's hold the line!

'FALL OF ROMANOFFS' LAST TIME TONIGHT

Tonight will be the last showing of one of the best pictures ever seen in Ogden on the European diplomatic situation with Russia "The Fall of the Romanoffs." This masterpiece was made by Herbert Brennon at a great cost and is truthfully reproduced from life of the famous black monk Rasputin. Every American who is really interested in the cause of Russia falling in her pledge to the allies should see this picture. Two words only can describe it. "It's a Wonder." The admission is only 15 cents. There are two performances; one at 7 and at 9 p. m.—Advertisement.

PREPARING TO ERECT LARGE PLANT IN OGDEN

Work will probably be started soon on the huge proposed plant of the Globe Milling & Grain company, which is to be erected in Ogden. Iron for reinforcing work on the plant is being removed to Ogden from Helper, Utah, where Charles Isenberg of Ogden is engaged in dismantling some mine property for the metal. The elevator, mill and warehouse of the Globe Milling & Grain company, which was to have been constructed last year at a cost of approximately $500,000, had to be abandoned for the time because of a fault in the geological condition of the ground in West Ogden, where the plant was to stand. Another site has been selected.

NEW JUDGE IS ON THE LOCAL BENCH

Judge P. C. Evans of Salt Lake is holding court today in Department No. 1 of the local district court, taking the place of Judge A. W. Agee, who supplants Judge Evans on the Salt Lake bench. In Judge Pratt's court today has been assigned to probate law and motion matters. Judge Pratt returned yesterday from Farmington, where he held court the latter part of last week and the first of this week.
