LEGHORN AND VELVET MAKE STARTLING NEW, SUMMER HAT

This black velvet crown and facing on the leghorn straw brim makes one of the real stunning dress hats for the summer season. And the dress hat is holding its own against the onslaught of the tailleur modes. Even the sports hats have taken on a certain dressiness this season. It certainly is not trimming which makes this hat suitable for formal wear, for the large pompon on the side of the soft velvet crown is the only adornment used.

Dorothy Dix Talks THE CLINGING VINE vs. THE BEAN POLE.

By DOROTHY DIX, The World's Highest Paid Woman Writer

Delia O'Grady is as pretty and clever a little milliner as ever twisted a wisp of ribbon and tinsel into a hat, stuck a gold rose on the outside of it and a Paris label on the inside, and sold it for an imported French confection. Ordinarily Delia is as gay and smiling as a spring morning, but the other day I found her with her white young brow corrugated with thought wrinkles, and her blithe spirits registering deep dark gloom. So I asked her what was the matter. "Oh," she replied pessimistically, "I am wrestling with the new woman enough to really love, and before their romance gets all the gilt rubbed off of the gingerbread." "And secondly, how to prevent the economic waste of putting a girl in the kitchen who has trained herself to follow a profitable, gainful occupation when she marries which is as silly as it would be to put a hundred-horsepower engine to doing a two-horsepower job."

"And thirdly, how to open up a career of usefulness and profit for middle aged and elderly women who are now idle and dependent." "That's a pretty good handful of problems for anybody to tackle," went on Delia, "but I thought that I had worked them all out successfully in my own case, and now I find that my solution doesn't stand the acid test of actual experience, and I am up in the air like everybody else."

"You know before I married Tom I had this nice little business that is making me a good living. It's work that I like to do for I feel that I am an artist creating beautiful things in silks and laces instead of paints and marble, and, moreover, that I am a philanthropist who softens the homelessness of many a woman and makes her easier on the eyes that have to look at her by giving her a good hat."

"Worse still, he's getting to be a loafer. He's changed positions four times in the last year for no good reason except that he just got tired of his job, and he was idle longer and longer between each job, and was fainky, and hard to please about the sort of position he took. You see he didn't have to work or go hungry. He knew there was a comfortable home with three square meals that he could come back to, so why should he worry?"

"As for the home, I explained to him that we need not be deprived of that for we had an old mother who had to be supported anyway, who would be perfectly happy to feel herself useful once more, and independent on the salary we would pay her for running our little apartment, which she could do much more economically and efficiently than I could.

"Tom demurred a little, but all the logic was on my side, so we were married and everything went swimmingly, as per my scheme and see how it was working out. When I did I got a shock that made me sit up, for I have discovered that in trying to help my husband I am ruining him.

"Because I didn't throw the whole responsibility of the family support on his shoulders, he's begun to duck my share of the load. He's gotten so that he simply stands from under and lets me pay all the bills. He isn't even saving his money. He's spending it all on himself in useless extravagance.

"Worse still, he's getting to be a loafer. He's changed positions four times in the last year for no good reason except that he just got tired of his job, and he was idle longer and longer between each job, and was fainky, and hard to please about the sort of position he took. You see he didn't have to work or go hungry. He knew there was a comfortable home with three square meals that he could come back to, so why should he worry?"

"And he's getting cross and ugly to me. Men always are to the wives who support them. Did you ever see a poor boarding house keeper whose husband didn't abuse her, or a wife beater whose wife didn't take in washing? The loafing husband invariably revenges his shame for his own lack of manhood on his wife.

"I am told there are nearly a million able bodied, husky men in New York alone who are supported by their wives. I'm not going to qualify in that simp class for the clinging vine man doesn't make any bit with me, but what am I to do? How am I to round my husband up to being a man again and accepting the responsibility of manhood? Will he roll up his sleeves, and go to work again if he realizes that he has got to support his mother, the baby and me, or else we'll starve? Must I give up my own business to make him get busy?"

"Can't a woman ever help her husband without weakening him? Won't she ever help to go fifty-fifty with me in life, and take half instead of all when we offer to divide with him?" "Oh, yes," I replied, "but it will take time. You see men have looked upon wives so long as either slaves or playthings it is for them to get used to thinking of us as equals."

NURSE ACCIDENTALLY KILLED BY A GUN

TWIN FALLS, Idaho, May 8.—Miss Judith Morrisette, 29 years of age, a nurse in training at the Boyd hospital here for the past two years, is dead as the result of the accidental discharge of a rifle at the home of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Roy D. Whittaker, near Buhl, eighteen miles west of Twin Falls.

Miss Morrisette left the hospital last week to visit in Buhl and recuperate from an attack of grip. Yesterday she went to the field with her brother-in-law. She carried a .22-caliber Winchester rifle, as was sometimes her habit while visiting at the ranch. Telling Mr. Whittaker that she was going to the canal headgates, near by to see if the weeds were clogging the ditch, she walked in that direction, carrying the rifle. Neither seeing her nor hearing from her for several minutes, Mr. Whittaker hurried in the direction of the headgates and found her lying face down in a dry ditch, with a bullet wound through her chin and throat.

Thinking the girl dead, he rushed to his home for help. Two neighbors assisted him and they carried the young woman to the house. Finding signs of life, they sent for a physician, who took Miss Morrisette to the Buhl hospital, where she died within a few minutes.

The bullet had gone through her throat and lodged in the brain. Witnesses at the coroner's inquest gave as their opinion that the trigger of the gun had caught in the weeds or the girl's clothing and accidentally discharged the weapon. Miss Morrisette was the fiancée of Henry P. Howe of this city, who is now in the aviation corps, stationed at Omaha.

Mrs. Howe will accompany the body to the girl's former home in Lincoln, Mo., leaving her tomorrow. Her son, Henry, will join her at Omaha.

MAY DISINCORPORATE. BRIGHAM CITY, May 7.—The Willard Fruitgrowers' association is considering disincorporating the association and closing up the books of the company. For the purpose of considering the proposition, President A. L. Baddley of the association has called a special meeting of the stockholders to be held next Monday for the purpose of taking a vote on the matter. Just why the association is considering going out of business is not stated.

Jumbled flakes of snow thrashing in a blinding gale in to the little settlement town of Skagway, buried in the white-clad folds of the Klondike mountains, and sweeping over the desolate wilds of the Peel River Mountain country forming barriers of snow and ice and defying the struggles of humanity to wrest the treasure of gold hidden beneath the frozen earth, form only a few of the remarkable, colorful scenes in "Carmen of the Klondike," the Selaxart production starring Clara Williams, which will be shown at the Alhambra theater Sunday for three days.

SOLDIERS ARE GIVEN PRAISE FOR HEROIC LIFE SAVING

CAMP KEARNY, May 7.—Two Utah artillerymen, Private Jesse Watts and Private Ray A. Shea, both of D battery, were personally commended for bravery by Major General Frederick S. Strong today for saving the lives of bathers caught in the tide at Ocean Beach on Sunday. Although the artillerymen rescued six drowning persons, at the risk of their own lives, they returned to camp and kept their deeds of heroism a secret. Their work, however, was not overlooked by persons on the beach at the time of the ocean resort tragedy, who reported their bravery to the divisional commander and which resulted in their being called before him today. After commending them for their bravery in risking their own lives to save those of their fellow soldiers, General Strong said that their cases would be investigated and it was probable that both men would be given medals.

Corporal W. L. Cocking of headquarters company returned to the regiment this morning, after spending the entire day yesterday searching for the body of his cousin, Private Ralph R. Braby of F battery, but reported no success. Although scores of searchers combed the beaches, while others took up the hunt in boats, Corporal Cocking said that no bodies had been washed ashore or discovered afloat. The civil authority at San Diego, who are now conducting the search, believe that it will be several days before the bodies will rise to the surface and can be recovered. Eleven men are still known to be missing.

HAS NARROW ESCAPE.

It was learned definitely today that Private Orson L. Braby of headquarters company, a brother of Ralph, was in the water and but a few feet from his brother when the "rip" came and began dragging them out to sea. Orson narrowly escaped death and was unconscious when rescued by a sailor whose name is Andrews, but who has not yet been completely identified. In recounting his experience, Orson said that the waves and undertow seemed normal, when suddenly the sand beneath his feet began to shift and heave, while huge waves rolled in and a terrible undertow current suddenly clutched him. His brother, he said, was but a few feet from him at the time, and he heard him shout a few words which he did not understand. This was the last Orson saw or heard of his brother. A huge wave began to carry Orson out to sea, and exhausted with his frightened struggles, he began to lose consciousness. It was then that he saw the sailor in uniform, who was standing on the beach, peel off his uniform and dive into the water. The artilleryman said he remembered no more until he regained consciousness on the beach. He is being taken care of in San Diego and is completely out of danger. It is expected that he will be able to report for duty tomorrow.

Bathing Is Interdicted.

Authorities at San Diego have prohibited all bathing at Ocean Beach until some arrangements can be made whereby the safety of bathers can be assured. Police and military patrols are posted along the entire shore, day and night, to watch for the appearance of any bodies that the sea might give up. Private Watts and Shea made their trips far out in the breakers with lifelines with other volunteer life savers. At one time, while in dangerous water, a guard collapsed, and Watts is credited with having rescued him unaided. Watts's home is in Rexburg, Idaho, where he owned a barber shop until

DRINK HOT WATER BEFORE BREAKFAST

Says you really feel clean, sweet and fresh inside, and are seldom ill.

If you are accustomed to wake up with a coated tongue, foul breath or a dull, dizzy headache, or, if your meals sour and turn into gas and acids, you have a real surprise awaiting you. To-morrow morning immediately upon arising, drink a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is intended to first neutralize and then wash out of your stomach, liver, kidneys and thirty feet of intestines all the indigestible waste, poisons, sour bile and toxins, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal. Those subject to sick headaches, backache, bilious attacks, constipation or any form of stomach trouble, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store and begin enjoying this morning in side-bath. It is said that men and women who try this become enthusiastic and keep it up daily. Just as hot water and soap cleanse, purify and freshen the skin, so hot water and a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Limestone phosphate is an inexpensive white powder and almost tasteless.

FORMING A CHILD'S WELFARE COMMITTEE

Dr. E. M. Conroy, chairman of the Weber County Council of Defense, recently held a conference with Frank W. LeClere, secretary of the child welfare committee of the state council of defense, and as a result of the conference has decided to organize a child's welfare committee for this county. Secretary LeClere said last evening in speaking on the subject of child welfare, that the efforts of the committee would be directed to the betterment of babies in every way, bringing them to the highest mental and physical standards and also in reducing the mortality in every possible way. The first steps taken along this line will be to ascertain the condition of children through scientific measurements, weighing and tests. These measures will begin in a short time. Children's year began in April over the entire country and the local campaign will be in line with the national move.

Both Ends

(Producer and Consumer)

Against The Middle

(The Packer)

The consumer wants to pay a low price for meat.
The farmer wants to get a high price for cattle.
The packer stands between these conflicting demands, and finds it impossible to completely satisfy both.

The packer has no control over the prices of live stock or meat, and the most that can be expected of him is that he keep the difference between the two as low as possible. He does this successfully by converting animals into meat and distributing the meat at a minimum of expense, and at a profit too small to be noticeable in the farmer's returns for live stock or in the meat bill of the consumer.

Swift & Company's 1917 transactions in Cattle were as follows:

	Average Per Head
Sold meat to Retailer for . . . . .	$68.97
Sold By-products for . . . . .	24.09
Total Receipts . . . . .	$93.06
Paid to Cattle Raiser . . . . .	84.45
Balance (not paid to Cattle Raiser) $	8.61
Paid for labor and expenses at Packing House, Freight on Meat, and Cost of operating Branch distributing houses . . . . .	7.32
Remaining in Packers' hands as returns on investment . . . . .	$ 1.29

The net profit was $1.29 per head, or about one-fourth of a cent per pound of beef.

By what other method can the difference between cattle prices and beef prices be made smaller, and how can the conflicting demands of producer and consumer be better satisfied?
