

MILES GOODYEAR CABIN, THE FIRST HOUSE IN UTAH, BEING MOVED TO LOT ON 9TH STREET

Ogden's oldest relic, a little log cabin built by Miles Goodyear in 1845, two years before the pioneers came to the state, and originally located near the Weber river at the foot of what is now Twenty-eighth street, is to be moved from the rear of the residence of Mrs. Minerva Shaw, 1256 Washington avenue, where it was placed for safe keeping several years ago, to a lot on Ninth street at the rear of the fire station where it will be covered with corrugated iron for protection from storms, until a final place in the city can be arranged where it will be preserved as one of the most interesting relics of the state.

The cabin is the property of the Daughters of the Pioneers of Ogden and these ladies have persuaded the city to have the little old home taken especial care of until a "final resting place" is secured.

At present the organization has its many interesting relics in a special room in the Carnegie library building but no place has ever been found for the log cabin, which for years has weathered the storms and is still in fair condition.

Early History.

The cabin was discovered by Captain James Brown in charge of a company of the earliest pioneers and the property was bought by Captain Brown from Goodyear in the autumn of 1847 when Goodyear, who by a grant from the Spanish government, owned all property from the Weber river to Hot Springs and from the lake to the mountains, part of which is now Ogden city.

When Captain Brown discovered the cabin it was surrounded by a fence formed of logs and it was within this enclosure that the first Fourth of July celebration was held in Ogden.

In 1857 Amos P. Stone, father of A. I. Stone of 1642 Liberty avenue, bought the cabin from Captain Brown and used it as a blacksmith shop. The building was moved from the Weber river bottoms to just west of the tabernacle and upon the death of Mr. Stone, Mrs. Minerva Shaw, a daughter, purchased the cabin from her mother and had it moved to the rear of the Shaw home on Washington avenue. A single roof was added to protect the building.

This afternoon numerous relic seekers are on the ground to see the cabin moved and to take photographs. Hagbart Anderson is in charge of the moving, and he stated that groups of people had gathered at the Shaw residence and were looking over the "old times." All seemed to be especially interested in the peepholes in the cabin which were placed there by the first owner for the purpose of "spotting" the treacherous Indians with whom the early settlers of Ogden and the state had numerous clashes.

To Protect Cabin.

The history of the cabin would be one of interest to many tourists going through the city. The Daughters of Pioneers are hoping in the very near future to secure a satisfactory place for all the relics which they possess and a building in which the cabin may be guarded from the elements.

Recently Salt Lake City requested that the cabin be brought to the capital where it would be placed on display with other relics of early days, but the Ogden organization denied the Salt Lake request and the cabin is to be kept in this city.

So today the little old log cabin with a history is to take its third trip and the Daughters of the Pioneers are to see that no harm comes to it.

FARMERS REQUIRED TO ANSWER MANY QUESTIONS

Questions to determine data relative to land and water owners of Weber county, in the proposed irrigation district which will embrace the entire county, are being mailed to farmers from the county farm bureau offices in the federal building.

The questions are from Dr. Samuel Fortier, chief engineer of the irrigation division of the United States department of agriculture, and by G. F. McGonagle, state engineer for Utah.

Each property owner will be questioned, the authorities in the water project desiring first hand information regarding the attitude of the farmers.

Among the questions which will be filled in by the property owners are: The present supply of water; name of the irrigation system or canal used to water property; kind of soil, and kind of crop.

The need for additional water will also be noted on the paper by the farmers.

To expedite this work and collect this material as quickly as possible, so that the district may be formed as soon as possible, meetings in various parts of the county are being arranged.

The first will be held in Ogden valley, Tuesday, between 9 a. m. and 5 p. m. Government experts will be on hand at the Huntsville school house to explain such questions as the farmers might not clearly understand. Meetings in Eden, Liberty and other places of the county will be visited during the remainder of the week.

W. P. Thomas, county farm agent, urges farmers to be present to file their affidavits with the irrigation authorities. He further states that failure to furnish the data requested might prove inconvenient, not only to the district authorities, but to the farmers who neglect turning in the information.

"CHECKERS" at the Cozy again today. Coming tomorrow, Tom Mix, Jas. J. Corbett, Pete Morrison and Snub Pollard.

COAL FAMINE BEGINS TO HAVE INFLUENCE ON OGDEN AFFAIRS AND RESTRICTIONS ARE ISSUED

Alarmed by the serious situation impending by reason of the shortage of fuel due to the strike of coal miners, railroad officials and others interested in the handling of fuel in a big way are meeting today in Salt Lake to discuss measures to dole out the dwindling supply.

W. H. Chevers, general agent of the Union Pacific at Ogden, is in attendance.

Only vital industries will receive fuel until the crisis is past, it is believed, and it is deemed likely that thousands will be thrown out of work by the general shutdown.

One of the first plants in Utah to cease operations through lack of fuel was the Utah Iron & Steel company in Salt Lake.

Garfield's instructions. The following order from Dr. Garfield, fuel director, has been received by railroad officials here and explains what must be done to avoid disaster during the crisis.

"It is necessary that coal shall be used for only essential purposes. Public utilities consuming coal should continue to furnish power, heat and light to non-essential industries and should only consume sufficient coal to produce enough light, power and heat to meet the actual urgent needs of the people. Advertising signs and display signs of various kinds, necessitating the use of coal should be curtailed and no coal should be distributed for such purposes. Pursuant to this policy, I have requested the railroad administration in the distribution of coal now or hereafter in its possession, to limit distribution to these essential and urgent cases. As far as practicable, until the conditions warrant a change in the distribution of coal, will be limited to the first five classes of the priority list. Retail dealers who distribute coal for household requirements, heating hotels, buildings, hospitals, etc., should take every precaution to see that coal is only delivered where it is absolutely required and then only in such limited quantities that the supply may be distributed widely and prevent suffering. The state and other local authorities can materially aid in inspecting and supervising such distribution by retail dealers, and the U. S. government will be glad to leave the supervision and control of such distribution by retail dealers entirely to any state, county or municipality which may make provision for such control. The distribution to retail dealers must necessarily be administered by the railroad administration in pursuance to the orders already made by the United States fuel administration in carrying out the priorities which have been prescribed under the Lever act."

found it last night.

Mrs. Riley was alone in the house at the time. Joe Thompson, proprietor of the place, had left town for the day. About 9 o'clock a strange man entered Mrs. Riley's room, she told the police in a moment of lucidity last night. She ordered him out and he attacked her.

She was not found until 6 o'clock last night, when other roomers heard groans coming from Mrs. Riley's room. They entered and found her lying on the bed.

A physician was summoned, and after a brief examination ordered her removed to the hospital. A wound in her right side was said by the doctor to have been made by a bullet. The extent of the injury to her skull cannot be determined until X-rays are used this morning.

PROMISES TO POINT WHERE LIQUOR WAS BOUGHT

Upon his promise to go to the attorney general at the state capital and accompany any man that the attorney general may designate to the place where he purchased the liquor with which he became intoxicated, John McGraw, arrested by the sheriff's department a few days ago upon the charge of being drunk, was given a thirty-day suspended sentence in the city court this morning by Judge D. R. Roberts.

In passing sentence, the court referred to the fact that while drunkenness is a misdemeanor it was not as sale or trafficking in contraband liquor. He added that inasmuch as the defendant had promised to show the officers the person or persons from whom he had purchased the liquor, he would be lenient. This is the second time since Judge Roberts has been on the bench in the city court that an offender has been given a suspended sentence upon his promise to aid the officers in apprehending the violator of the law.

Woman Is Beaten

SALT LAKE, Dec. 4.—Severely beaten on the head and body with what examining physicians believe to be a fractured skull and with a bullet wound in her right side, Mrs. Blanche Riley, 30, is at Holy Cross hospital in a critical condition. She may die, was the physicians' verdict last night. Mrs. Riley was attacked in her quarters in a rooming house at 82 1/2 East Second South between 9 and 10 o'clock yesterday morning by an unknown assailant. After beating his victim into unconsciousness the attacker rolled up what evidence he could of the affair and threw it down the chimney of an adjoining building, where the police

Runaway Horses Strike Lamp Post

A bit of ice on the corner of Twenty-fourth street and Grant avenue averted a serious accident today, when a runaway horse skidded on the slippery surface and sent a runaway team into a light pole.

The accident happened shortly before 12 o'clock when a team of horses which were tied in front of a Japanese establishment between Grant and Lincoln avenues, succeeded in slipping their bridles. The animals dashed towards Washington avenue and, at the intersection at Grant avenue, were seemingly headed for an automobile driver who was crossing the street. The approaching team, throwing the emergency brake and stopped his car in the path of the horses. That the team would miss the automobile seemed impossible until the hoof of the horse on the right side struck the car. The horse stumbled and jerked its mate from the course, and before the team could again pursue its mad dash down the street, it had collided with a steel street lamp post. The horses were drawing a beet wagon which was loaded with 800 pounds of coal. When the team stopped, bystanders held the horses until the owner, a Japanese farmer, appeared.

Everybody's Happy Our Trade-In Saving So Much! Ourselves-In Serving so Well The H. W. Jones Co. 2461 WASH. AVE. OGDEN, UTAH.

WIFE IS REQUIRED TO WALK BEHIND HER HUSBAND

Comparison of things oriental and occidental were strongly brought out today when a Japanese husband and his wife walked along Twenty-fourth street towards Washington avenue. Both were dressed in the garb common to the United States, the husband wearing a black derby, and other clothing of a citizen of this country. The wife was likewise garbed in a fashion common to the weaker sex of America and, while there might have been some question as to her taste in headgear, she presented a good appearance. The contrast was not in manner of dress but in the age-old custom of Nippon, which decrees that a wife, when accompanying her husband, shall walk several paces to the rear. Notwithstanding their clothing, this Japanese couple continued to observe the tradition of Japan. "Pussyfoot" Johnson says he was only haied, not mobbed, by British students recently. Things would naturally look hazy through two black eyes.

Telephone Poles Between Ogden And Willard Are Down

That the recent east wind, whose chilly blasts nipped the ears and fingers of Ogdenites, upset telephone service in and around Ogden, is evidenced in reports from the telephone company office to the effect that the wires blown down by the storm between Ogden and Willard have not yet been replaced. It is expected that communication by wire between the two cities will be established within a week. The wind leveled more than a score of telephone poles and in some places, broke a number of wires, necessitating considerable work to rest poles and string wires.

Logan's Mayor-Elect On Visit to Ogden

Mayor-elect William Howell and Commissioner-elect E. N. Banhead of Logan were visitors at the office of the city commissioners at the city hall this morning. They also called upon Mayor-elect Frank Francis.

PETITIONS FOR ARC LIGHTS PRESENTED TO CITY BOARD

At the session of the board of city commissioners this morning the petition of residents for arc lights at the corner of Twenty-sixth street and Tyler avenue and at the intersection of Hudson avenue and Seventeenth street, was granted upon the recommendation of the commissioner of streets. The city engineer was directed to locate the spot for the placing of the lights and notify the power company. The sum of $3,000 was directed paid to the board of trustees of the Carnegie library for the maintenance of the library during the next year. The resignation of Wesley Mann as dog tax collector was presented and accepted. The sum of $10,544.42 was ordered transferred from the general fund to the outfall sewer fund to cover the years of 1916, 1917, 1918 and 1919. We can't help but wonder what Noah would do if he lived in the United States today.
