

Education of Union Labor Men Aim of N. Y. Teachers' Union

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—Education of union labor men, both leaders and rank and file, is one of the principal aims of the Associated Teachers' union local 71 of the American Federation of Teachers, which is just organizing in the faculties of the colleges and schools of New York.

Professor Herman Deffrem, of Columbia university, who is president of the Associated Teachers' Union, says the union professors and school teachers are not going into the labor movement merely for what they can get out of it for themselves.

Special Night Courses. They hope, by opening special night courses for labor leaders in economics, management and production problems and kindred subjects, to develop a new type of leader who will cooperate in managing industries instead of spending his time, as Professor Deffrem says, "bickering with employers."

Under auspices of the Teachers' Union, two other sets of classes will be instituted, evening classes, in English history, economics and any other subjects which wage earners in general may desire to pursue; and day courses for men on strike, so that their time may not be wasted.

The union teachers are in conference with the United Labor Education committee on details. British universities some time ago embarked upon a program of education designed particularly for wage earners but the idea has not made much progress in this country.

Higher wages for themselves, said Professor Deffrem, is only a secondary aim of the educators. "We need more money but our first two aims are the democratization of colleges and universities and the extension of the tenure of our office." Democratization, according to Professor Deffrem, means surrender of the administration of educational institutions to the faculties, only financial problems being left to the decision of boards of trustees. The union aim will be the election of teachers, heads of departments, deans and other officials by the teachers themselves on a democratic ballot system, and settlement of educational problems by the same method.

Tenure of office of the college instructor, assistant and assistant professor would no longer be from year to year, dependent upon the action of administrative officials but would also be based upon the ballot, the term of the teacher continuing as long as his colleagues considered him efficient.

College Students Return to Work With Great Zeal

MANCHESTER, Eng., Dec. 19.—There has been an increase in zeal among the college students of this country since the war, according to Viscount Bryce. Speaking at the university of Manchester he said that in all the universities, notably in Oxford and Cambridge, the numbers of students had grown until it had become difficult to find accommodation for them.

At Oxford, he continued, they had told him that men had come back from the war hungry and thirsting for learning. They were training themselves with an energy which was seldom seen, even under the pressure of the competition that existed before 1914. Moreover, the intellectual vitality of the students was high, probably that so long as the British people maintained their patriotism, strength, force and intellectual life the country would pull through.

Referring to the duties and functions which universities would discharge in the future, Viscount Bryce said that he did not think that in the whole range of human thought there was any subject at this moment which was more important in the interests of the country and of the world than the study of economic problems. It was not merely for practical purposes, or the merely utilitarian part of life that we should study languages and history, he said. Half the business of life was concerned with knowing how to use men and women, how to understand them, how to get on with them, how to turn their faculties to the best account.

"It is good for us," said Lord Bryce "that we should get to know not only men but nations. These are times in which no nation can any longer live a life of desolation. We have stood apart from the European continent, secure in our immunity from invasion, and our people have given too little thought to what was passing in other nations and studied too little the relations which we have maintained with them. But the war has shown us that our fortunes are bound up with the fortunes of the rest of the world; it has shown us that not even a continent cut off from us by a great ocean, that no great people, can any longer stand outside the circle."

Little Yellow Boy Sings His Way To Better Days

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 20.—Sitting huddled in a chair in juvenile court here, a diminutive yellow negro, 11 years old, recently sang himself from a charge of bicycle theft. There was nothing of apparent greatness about the lad unless it was his feet. Encased in a pair of worn-out men's shoes, it was difficult to tell how much shoe leather was superfluous.

"Judge, you ought to hear that boy sing," suggested a court officer when the case was called.

Judge R. B. Seay of criminal district court No. 1, presiding temporarily in juvenile court, said he "didn't mind."

Without a trace of embarrassment, the negro boy closed his eyes, threw back his head and broke into the melodious croon of "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot." Court officials and spectators literally held their breath as the singer's voice rang through the court room.

"That boy has a ten-thousand dollar voice," Judge Seay declared. "He shall be educated and trained as a singer. I am personally going to see that he is placed where he can have the proper advantages. With that voice he will be a power among his race."

The boy, who says he does not know his own name, was placed under the care of the Dallas Negro Y. M. C. A. pending other arrangements.

Democratic Committee of Salt Lake Meets

SALT LAKE, Dec. 20.—Steps to perfect county organization for the campaigns of the coming year were taken last night at a meeting of the Democratic committee of Salt Lake county, held in the Newhouse hotel. A committee was appointed to determine what auxiliary clubs and societies should be organized and to proceed with the work, according to County Chairman C. C. Richards.

Franklyn Christianson of the First municipal ward was named chairman of the committee. Other members are A. J. Cope of the Second ward; John Hopley of the Third ward; James Maxwell of the Fourth ward; Mrs. R. E. L. Collier of the Fifth ward, and Frank C. Moyle and D. W. Coskley, committeemen at large.

The committee appointed to audit the books, vouchers and accounts of the campaign of last year reported that all disbursements were legal and that all expenditures had been accounted for. Mr. Richards said there is a balance on hand of $262.96, according to the report of the committee.

Judge Agee Rules in Case of Alleged Arson

Judge A. W. Agee in the case of Ruth Shores against Arthur Shores, ruled for the defendant yesterday.

Shores is alleged to have set fire to his wife's residence last spring. His wife brought suit to collect damages. He claims she has received money for the damage from an insurance company.

Regarding the receiving of money from two sources, Judge Agee delivered the following oral opinion: "From sound reason and upon the weight of authority, I think the following rules may be laid down: "First. Where a party insured against loss by fire sustains a loss from fire caused by the wrongful or negligent conduct of a third person, he may recover from the insurer or the wrongdoer, but not from both. Second. If the insured receives compensation from the wrongdoer, the insurer is thereby released. Third. If the insured recover full compensation from the insurer, he cannot also recover from the wrongdoer, whose right of action passes to the insured, who may under codes like ours sue in his own name and recover from the wrongdoer. Fourth. If the insured is only partially compensated, then the insured and insurer may join in an action against the wrongdoer and recover the full amount of damages sustained by the negligent act of the wrongdoer. The amount to be recovered to be divided between the parties according to their equities."

from the very beginning of the Democratic administration" and concluded by a declaration that the Republicans will win in the election next year.

Mr. Mabey took excerpts from the Democratic national platforms of 1912 and 1916 and pointed out what he termed the inconsistencies between the promises of those platforms and the failure of the Democratic party to carry them out.

"I believe," he said, "that it is the destiny of the Republican party to step into office and lead the nation through the difficulties of the present."

In reference to the league of nations, Mr. Mabey said: "If any party is responsible for the killing of the league
