EXAMINE WORKS OF GERMAN SUBS

Some Details of Construction On Captured Ships Are Found Excellent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Detailed examination of surrendered German U-boats built during the war has produced nothing to forecast important changes in American submarines, officers at the navy department assert. After a careful study of the German craft and a thorough test in the long cruises across the Atlantic, American experts found only a few unimportant details worthy of incorporating in new American undersea craft.

In periscopes and optical fittings the German boats were superior to pre-war American submarines, it was admitted. Periscopes on new navy submarines, however, are superior to the best similar fittings found on the captured vessels. It was said that the design of the German boats was praised by American officers, but it was declared that the mechanical plants of the enemy craft were in no respect superior to those already in use in the United States navy.

In many points, particularly that of mechanical simplicity, roominess and comfort for the crew, the American boats are regarded as superior to the German craft.

EXAMINE BIG SHIPS.

Examination of the larger vessels surrendered by Germany and brought to the United States recently is now in progress. Other German vessels of all classes had been previously carefully inspected by American officers abroad and officials at the department declared that they did not expect the inspection of the cruiser Deutschland and the destroyers allocated to this country to develop any important new construction methods in the American navy.

In one German ship the use of solid bulkheads between subdivisions of the hull, between decks. No doors for communication below were found in the German ships, the members of the crew being forced to go "up and over" to move from one compartment to another.

It was this construction that kept German vessels in the light at the battle of Jutland, after they had been severely punished by British fire, officers said. The idea has been advocated by a school of American naval officers for years and has been adopted in the new vessels to the extent of placing solid bulkheads between the rooms.

VARIED ADVANTAGES.

Opponents of the solid bulkhead theory declared that the facility of communication below decks to be more valuable than elaborate precautions to prevent the passage of water from one compartment to another in the event of hits below the waterline.

A feature of the German ships that somewhat surprised American officers was the lack of provisions for the comfort of the crew. Officers' quarters were found to be about on a par with those in the American navy, but little attention has been paid to the enlisted men. The larger ships had cooking accommodations for but a small part of the battle crew, it was said, and it was believed that the ships were constructed on the theory that any engagement they participated in would be within a short distance of the home port, probably in the North sea, and the bunk capacities were very limited.

During periods of inaction the men were housed ashore in barracks and when they were on duty at sea of any duration they were poorly equipped with food. Contrasted with the elaborate galleys and bakeries on American ships, with provisions for long cruises at sea and the sanitary bases, the German craft were primitive, it was said.

The final disposition to be made of the German vessels has not been decided. They will either be broken up at navy yards or used as targets for the fleets.

MADGE IS 'CORNERED'

MADGE KENNEDY. NEW YORK—"Cornered" at last is Madge Kennedy, the movie star. For three years "legitimate" producers have been trying to get Miss Kennedy's name affixed to a contract. Colonel Savage has succeeded and Miss Kennedy will be seen soon in a new play by Dodson Mitchell, called "Cornered."

TANGLE IN RULE OF ARGENTINA

New Bill Provides for Succession in Case of President's Absence

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 24.—(Correspondence)—In case of the death, incapacity or absence from the federal capital of the president of Argentina, and subsequently of the vice president the executive functions would be performed by a member of the cabinet in fixed order of precedence, according to a bill just passed by the chamber of deputies, called the "vacancy law."

This amends the previous law whereby the succession fell to the president of the senate. The minister of interior takes first precedence. The law would thus assure that whoever succeeds as president would be a member of the administration, whereas, under the existing procedure, it is possible for the succession to fall to a member of the opposition party. Such a possibility at present, is held to be responsible for the introduction of the law into the chamber of deputies by the radical party, which is President Irigoyen's. The death last year of Vice President Luna, left the president of the senate vacant and a conservative majority in the senate elected Dr. Benito Villanueva to preside over that body. Thus, if President Irigoyen should die, Dr. Villanueva would automatically become president.

Under the Argentina law, the president cannot leave the capital without the permission of congress, in which case his functions devolve upon the vice president until his return. At present if permission were granted, they would be performed by Dr. Villanueva. Critics of the president say that this is the reason he has never asked for a vacation since the death of the vice president.

Most of the newspapers doubt that the new law will be sanctioned by the senate, pointing out that the conservative majority will hardly be willing to surrender the potential advantage which the situation gives them.

U. S. LOSES OUT ON 'RED' ORDERS

Contracts for Locomotives Given to Big Firms of Germany

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 21.—(By the Associated Press).—Professor Lomonosoff, who is in charge of Russian soviet government railway contracts, has told the Associated Press correspondent "that he is disappointed because the United States government has barred him from going to America to arrange business contracts."

The professor showed the correspondent a contract signed by the German locomotive trust comprising all leading German locomotive builders, including the Krupp firm, for the delivery of 2000 German locomotives within 18 months, the amount involved being about 5,000,000 marks.

"I very much regret having been unable to place this order in America," the soviet emissary said. "I have lived there for years; I was always a firm believer in the mutual interests of the two countries and had hoped to initiate business relations between them. The United States government has forbidden the export to Russia of American locomotives on the plea that they are war material. I have orders for 2000 more locomotives which I want to place in America, if only America will take the business."

Answering a question whether the delivery of the German locomotives would mean an invasion of Russia by a small army of German technicians, Lomonosoff said: "No. Russia is fully capable of supplying her own needs in that respect. We have all kinds of technical experts. Since the Polish invasion, the whole of Russia's intelligence has been wholeheartedly joined to the soviet government forces."

Professor Lomonosoff said he was going to Stockholm to inspect a number of Swedish locomotives which are ready for delivery.

Boy, 13, Youngest Museum Curator

HUNTINGTON, W. Va.—Probably the youngest museum curator in the country is Irwin Utterback, 13, of this city.

Young Irwin is founder of the museum and donor of practically all it contains. He recently appeared before the city commissioners and, in an eloquent speech stressing the need of such an institution, asked a room be set aside in the city building for a museum. His request was granted and he immediately filled the room with an interesting collection of fossils, fossils and freak rock formations.

Irwin is unusually familiar, for one of his years, with biology, geology, history and science.

"I hope to add to the small start until we have a real museum," said the young curator as he announced plans to ask the war department for a collection of war relics.

IRWIN UTTERBACK

no Scandinavian firm has done any business with Russia. Several firms have even cancelled their contracts on some plea or other. The Scandinavian attitude is strengthened by the recent decision of a large American banking firm which, first apparently eager to enter the Russian field, has now finally decided to have no transactions whatever with soviet Russia.

Restrictions which had been imposed upon trade between the United States and Russia, after the Bolsheviks obtained control of the latter country, were removed by the American state department on July 7 last. Exception was made, however, in the case of shipment of materials susceptible of immediate use for war purposes. The state department announced that individual licenses would have to be obtained before locomotives, railroad material, rolling stock and motor cars could be exported from the United States to Russia.

MAKE RICH HAUL.
(By International News Service)

BOSTON.—It was pay day on the fishing schooner Ethel Meriam at the fish pier, South Boston. Each of the seven members of the Edgartown fishing crew received $665 for two weeks' work. The schooner arrived at the pier with $9 swordfish, which sold in the market for $5,770.

The share which each man received was the largest ever made by a swordfisher's crew, considering the time spent on the fishing grounds.

Try This if You Have Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

CRYSTAL CANYON STREAM LEADS TO MOONSHINER

BUTTE, Mont., Sept. 25.—A member of the federal "dry" squad recently was searching the mountains in this region for evidence of occupation by illicit liquor manufacturers. He knelt to refresh himself from the cool waters gurgling out of a lonely canyon. The waters were fresh, tasted delightfully cool and apparently bore strong indications of having been polluted by the feebly moonshiner.

Following up the creek for more than a mile, the sleuth discovered one of the largest illicit stills ever found in Montana, if not in the west. The plant was in full operation and an itemized list of apparatus and stock on hand indicated the operator was abundantly prepared to cater to the wants of Butte and have considerable stock to spare.

The property seized consisted of 65 gallons of "moonshine" whiskey, 25 barrels of mash, apparently held in reserve.

W. C. Fisher was arrested, the officer stating that he was conducting the still. He was arraigned before the United States commissioner and held to the grand jury.

FIXES ANCIENT SKELETON.
CALGARY, Alta., Sept. 25.—Work on a skeleton of the Ceratopsian or Horned Quadruped Dinosaur, provisionally named cooperorum, is being proceeded with by W. E. Cutler at Suesville, Alta. One side of the skeleton is almost intact and part of the other side, but Mr. Cutler states that laboratories of large establishments would have little difficulty in restoring such parts by plaster casts, tinted to show restoration. The dinosaur is a finely preserved specimen, and Mr. Cutler was obliged to remove rock amounting to 100 cubic yards during the winter, the covering being more than 12 feet thick. The skeleton is one of the Red Deer river fossils.

Even When Homely Pickford Is Beautiful

The general consensus of opinion is that screen artists always insist upon being seen at their best on the screen and incidents where they are not displayed to their best advantage are ruthlessly eliminated. It is a story, but it is no other than the world famous beauty, Mary Pickford who has set this maxim at naught in her forthcoming production for United Artists Corporation of "Sue" which will be the attraction at the Alhambra today.

In this clever comedy drama, our Mary is most frequently seen with her hair slicked back and pinned in a careless knot at the back of her head—dirty, greasy, face, pug nose—tattered clothes and huge ungainly shoes. Only occasionally is she seen as her own lovely self.

Instead of sitting in the projection room and saying—"I am not pretty enough in that scene, it will have to be eliminated," Miss Pickford sits back in her seat and says to her director, Jack Dillon, "I am afraid we will have to retake that scene, I am not homely enough in it."

But according to reports, one must see this clever story to fully appreciate Mary Pickford's desire for homeliness.

FAMOUS MARE GRIEVES FOR HER DEAD MASTER

LONDON, Sept. 2.—(Correspondence).—"The Elf," favorite trotting mare of Walter Winans, the American sportsman, who died while driving a horse in a race here recently, said by Winans' stablemen to have grieved so much since her master's death that she became almost unmanageable.

Mr. Winans always used to visit her first and feed her with sugar and talk to her and she was always the first to be harnessed for a run around the track," said W. Mills, who has been the dead man's groom for 29 years.

"Mr. Winans bred the mare himself," Mills continued. "On the day of the death, I think the mare must have seen her master carried in after the accident. That afternoon the men could do nothing with her.

"She refused food, and kept on kicking at the door of her box. The next day when I took her out for her exercise, she neighed the whole time. "Finally we had to shut her up for a day or two in the dark, and now she has become a little quieter."

ATTRACTS FARM HANDS.

HELENA, Mont., Sept. 25.—The scarcity of farm hands in this state, it is said, is partially accounted for by the high wages that are being offered just across the line in Canada, where as high as eight dollars a day is being paid.
