

BAKER'S CHARGES WILL BE PROBED

Official Promises Thorough Investigation of Coast Bribery Scandal

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Oct. 12.—A full and complete investigation of the charges of corruption, including gambling and game throwing in the Pacific Coast Baseball League last season, made by W. Baker, former first baseman of the Vernon team, was promised here by W. C. Doran, chief deputy district attorney.

Doran did not state whether the matter would be taken before the Los Angeles county grand jury, but announced the investigation in whatever form it was made, would be thorough.

The announcement followed a conference between Doran and John C. Powers, owner of the Los Angeles club, and the latter's attorney. Powers told Doran he represented the Pacific Coast league and in that capacity asked for a full official investigation of Borton's accusations that heard other members of the 1919 Vernon team contributed to a $2,000 pool which was used to bribe certain players of other clubs to "assist" Vernon to win the pennant.

Borton and his attorney also have made requests that the grand jury make an investigation. A libel suit in which Borton asked damages of $50,000 from William E. Eslick, Vernon manager, based on Eslick's alleged comments on Borton's accusations, is pending here.

No date was set for beginning the investigation, but it was said it would be started as soon as consistent with Doran's other duties.

Marquard's Share Held By Scalping Charges

CLEVELAND, Oct. 11.—Richard (Eddie) Marquard, Brooklyn pitcher, will not receive his share of the world series gate receipts until after the ticket scalping charges made against him here have been settled. John Heydler, president of the National League, announced after today's game Marquard was arraigned in court this morning and his case continued until October 13.

The National League will hold his share of the receipts until the case has been settled. Mr. Heydler said, "If he is found guilty the league itself will take action."

JOE JACKSON REFUSED USE OF "BUSHY" PARK

GREENVILLE, S. C., Oct. 12.—Officers of the Greenville baseball club today refused to lease their ball park for an exhibition ball game in which Joe Jackson and Claude Williams, former Chicago White Sox team members, would be allowed to play. Jackson and Williams have been visiting here at the home of the former ever since the exposure at Chicago relative to the "throwing" of the 1919 world series. Friends of the two men proposed to organize two teams from among Jackson's boyhood associates and let the professionals be seen in action.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Thirteen members of the New York National League baseball club will depart for Havana via Key West today to play a series of sixteen exhibition games with Cuban teams beginning next Saturday. Manager John J. McGraw will join them later.

WATCH DOBIE AT CORNELL

They are watching Gilmour Dobie down at Cornell this fall.

Gil has stepped quietly into his new traces and gone to work, which means that the Ithacans are going to play the "Dobie" brand of football.

He's a real boss, too. The Cornell squad is going to attend strictly to business, minus any nonsense, and before the curtain has been rung down on the schedule, they'll be playing winning football.

His problem is one of material. True many of last year's squad are back, but that does not mean much, since they were an inferior outfit in 1919.

GREAT CAREER. Dobie began his illustrious football career back in 1920 as a member of the Hastings high school (Minnesota) team. In 1921 he entered the University of Minnesota, playing left end on the line. Following 1924 years he was quarterback and field general of the eleven. From 1922 to 1925 he was assistant coach of the Minnesota eleven.

During 1926 and 1927 Dobie coached the Agricultural college team of North Dakota, where he turned out a pair of eleven's that were undefeated and won the championship in their section.

BRIGHT RECORD. He went to the University of Washington in 1928 as head football coach.

Monday World Series Contest Remarkable For Technique Display

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 11.—The Cleveland Indians came within reaching distance of the baseball championship of championships when they shut out the Brooklyn Nationals 1 to 0 this afternoon in the sixth game of the world series. Another victory tomorrow will complete the inter-league affair and permit the local club to fly two banners in the breeze next spring, an epoch making event in the history of the Cleveland team. With the score four to two in favor of Brooklyn's players it is conceded by even the most loyal of Brooklyn fans that nothing but a most remarkable reversal of form on the part of the Indians can prolong the series more than a game or two.

While the play today lacked much of the sensational features of Sunday's thrilling battle, it was well played from a technical baseball standpoint, resolving itself early into a pitching duel between Walter Mails and Sherry Konechey, two of the leading southpaws of the major leagues.

Mails had decidedly the better of the contest, the batters from the east being unable to get on base while the locals found Smith's range for seven safeties.

STARTING OR CIPHERS. The strategy of the game can be traced to this additional edge in batting on the part of the Indians for the difference in the hitting power of the two contenders today, essentially spelled out the difference between the solidary run of Cleveland and the string of ciphers which rewarded Brooklyn's wide sweeps and sharp breaking benders.

The Indians' team batting average in its sixth game was the same as that of Sunday, .347, but the result was one run instead of the eight accumulated yesterday. Brooklyn on the other hand slumped before the baffling delivery of Mails from 2-10 to 2-14.

The credit for the victory can not, however, be accorded entirely to Mails' superiority over Sherry Konechey, for the Cleveland pitcher was backed by better defense than the Nationals. Behind the National League hothead, seven Brooklyners were left stranded with potential runs in the making, while but four Indians remained on the sacks after the third out.

BASES FILLED. Although Cleveland had the bases filled at one time during the second inning it was not until the sixth session that the run which gave the home team the victory was pushed across. The making of the winning tally was by a factor of ten, the defense which stood out like a lighthouse on a stormy night. After Evans had filed out to Konechey's only hitless appearance at the plate during the contest, Mails was sent to the bench, Olson to Konechey, Speaker shot a single to right. With two down the stage did not appear to be set for run making with Smith starting them over with plenty of speed and curve. George Burns proved to be the batter who was to deliver the blow that wrecked the Robins' hopes of again being up the series. He caught one of Smith's sweeps on the very tip of his bat and lifted the ball clear to the center field bleachers, the ball hitting the low rail and evading both the hands of Wheat and those of several men and boys who tried to clutch it, being finally retrieved by Myers, far too late to prevent Speaker from scoring. Olson protested, claiming interference with the ball but the umpire refused to consider the claim. Burns is a native son of Ohio, having been born in Niles.

MUCH ENTHUSIASM. Wrought up to a fever pitch of enthusiasm by the sensational plays of Sunday, the city and surrounding sections turned out another tremendous gathering of fans today. After the last turnstile check had been made it was announced by the National commission that the paid admissions totaled $1,194 the largest in the series to date. The gate receipts amounted to $2,959, the total to be divided 50 per cent to the National commission.

His record there was even brighter. During his nine years' stay his team won the state championship.

The United States Navy academy called on his services in 1917, where, during a period of three years, Dobie's teams won eleven state championships, one to the University of West Virginia, 6-0, one to the team of the Great Lakes Training station, 7-6 and one to Georgetown University, 10-0.

Now he is at Cornell to give them a winner.

HIS THEORIES. "My coaching theories," says Dobie, "are to have every man understand exactly how to play his position and have the entire eleven cooperate perfectly all throughout the contest, to have as few plays as possible, to give a reasonable amount of variation in attack and have every play mastered by the team. This combination, with the proper fighting spirit in my opinion goes a long way towards making an efficient football team."

GREATEST PLAYER. "I think the greatest football player I ever saw was a fellow by the name of Maxwell E. Eakins, who played for the University of Washington team in 1905, 1906 and 1910.

Eakins was a fellow of about 5 feet 10 inches, weighing 182 pounds. He was one of the most beautifully built men I ever saw, active and fast with a good football mind and an energetic worker. He was methodical and skillful in all departments of the game.

He could punt 55 yards with unerring accuracy. He could place them at will, and make them go high or make them go low.

He was a wonderful drop kicker, and place kicker. Eakins could carry the ball from his place in the line or from the left back position. He could run the ends or carry it through the line. He was down on every kick, and on every punt he was quick as a cat on defensive work and never failed to do his share and more, in stopping the play.

His kicking ability—great name for himself on the Pacific coast. Had it been his lot to play football in the east I think he would have ranked as one of the best drop kickers and all-around football players the game has ever seen.

In my opinion the greatest play I ever saw was one that occurred in the game between the University of Minnesota and the University of Wisconsin in 1929.

The play was made well along in the second half, when the score was tied and the game was still in the balance. Wisconsin had the ball on Minnesota's 45-yard line and with 8 or 10 yards to the sideline. The team had been held for downs and Pat O'Dea, fullback and famous punter of the Wisconsin eleven, dropped back in the kick formation, presumably to punt.

As the ball hit his hands in the pass from the center he started to run towards the sideline with the ball. He was a fast runner and got away quickly.

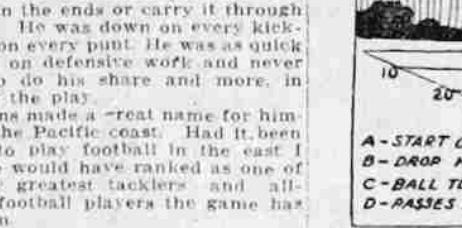

When he was within one yard of the sideline and the line of scrimmage and facing the grandstand, he suddenly dropped the ball WHILE ON THE DEAD RUN, and made a drop kick.

The ball started nearly straight down the sideline and traveled in that direction for two-thirds of the distance to the goal. At that point the ball began to turn towards the goal posts and kept rising and rising. It crossed squarely between the goal posts and traveled on beyond the fence and down into the Northern Pacific railroad tracks, which at that time bordered the Minnesota football field.

Some people have maintained that this was a freak kick, but such is not my opinion. Pat O'Dea was probably the greatest distance kicker in the history of American football and could place his kicks at will. He could punt equally as well on the run as he could from the ordinary punt position. He could drop-kick 60 yards with unerring accuracy, and place kick equally as far, provided his team could hold and give him a reasonable opportunity to direct the kick.

O'Dea was formerly an Australian rugby player and an expert at kicking the rugby football. I have been told since by men who have seen him perform in Australia, that running drop kicks such as I have described were frequently made by him in Australia.

FRENCH WAR HERO MEETS LEVINSKY IN DECISIVE BOUT

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Oct. 12.—George Carpentier, French war hero and European heavyweight champion, tonight will engage in a 12-round bout with Fighting Levinsky, American light-heavyweight title holder. Under the New Jersey boxing law no decision is permitted.

The contest, regarded as a try-out for the French boxer to determine whether he would make a suitable opponent for Jack Dempsey, world's champion, will be held in the open air in Jersey City baseball park. Fair, mild weather is forecast.

Both men are clever boxers but the Frenchman is credited with possessing the stronger punch. Equal in height, the two boxers are also expected to weigh about the same, probably slightly under 175 pounds. The American has a slight advantage in reach.

SLAYING OF BOOTLEGGER BY DRY AGENT RECALLED

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—A dramatic story of the alleged killing of Harry Carlton, a chauffeur, by Stewart McMullin, a prohibition enforcement agent, during a raid, was told in federal court by Malvina Carlton, 18, who declared she was an eye witness of the shooting for which McMullin is now on trial, charged with first degree murder.

In describing the shooting which occurred in her father's home, the girl declared that McMullin had fired upon Carlton while he was crossing a room with both hands above his head. She said that the prohibition agent was holding her by the left arm when he fired and that he held the pistol "about two inches from Carlton's head."

The girl said McMullin, at the point of his pistol, had forced her to give up $750 in marked money which Carlton had been paid for liquor by prohibition agents. Carlton, she said, had given her the money for safekeeping.
