HARDING SPEAKS TO TEXAS CROWD

Favors Protection of Citizens Wherever They May Go, Even in Mexico

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Nov. 12.—(By The Associated Press)—Facing a border crowd in which were many citizens of Mexico and several officials of the Mexican government, President-elect Harding proposed here Thursday a foreign policy directed toward peace and friendship but demanding always full protection of American nationality and American citizens wherever they may go.

The address, his first prepared utterance since his election to the presidency, was delivered from a stand on the Fort Brown parade grounds within a few hundred yards of the international boundary. The cavalry sabres of the Fort Brown garrison rattled about him, but a blast of honor on his right was also a part of the Mexican garrison of Matamoros, paying a visit of compliment and courtesy to the new American president.

WOULD DEFEND RIGHTS
In his address devoted jointly to the significance of the Armistice day anniversary and to the country's foreign relations, he did not mention Mexico by name nor did he refer directly to the league of nations.

BOAST FOR WATERWAY
Mr. Harding also suggested that the nation learn a lesson of preparedness from the experience of the world war and spoke a word for waterway development. He praised the efforts of Texas citizens toward the development of adequate port facilities at the mouth of the Rio Grande, declaring his vacation visit to Point Isabel had brought a new realization of the economic possibilities of the state.

MEXICANS TAKE PART
In the parade which included an elaborate program representing historical epochs and demonstrating productive possibilities of the valley, Mexican Consul Vasquez of Brownsville and Consul Wilson of Matamoros, each with a flag of his nation, each with a Mexican flag were in the procession and the military band of the Matamoros garrison had a place just behind the Fourth Cavalry squadron which acted as the president-elect's escort.

THE LOSERS.
On the vessel of Salt River sluggish they veered, and their dismal dirges quiver on the air, in sobbing notes; we can hear their weary chorus.

On the vessel of Salt River sluggish they veered, and their dismal dirges quiver on the air, in sobbing notes; we can hear their weary chorus. 'Gloomy skies are bending o'er us, and there is no hope before us, for we've lost our William Goss.' Ah, there is no joyous ditty, from the passenger or crew, and my eyes are wet with pity; as a lawn is wet with dew; it is sad to see them sailing, it is tough to hear them wailing, as they lean against the railing for a last and longing view. Up Salt River's weeping waters they must sail for years, perhaps, just because some tinhorn rotters voted for the other chaps; they must sail while autumn mellow; they must sail while winter bellows, knowing that the other fellows gather in the public snags. Oh, it is a ship of sorrow that proceeds upon its way, and the heaving done tomorrow will be louder than today; for each landmark will remind them of the snags they leave behind them and the scalding tears will blind them till they hit the starboard hay. But the ship will be returning with its passengers and crew, and their bosoms will be burning with ambitions fine and new; and for office they'll be running, and for voters they will be punning, on a platform simply stunning, and a nice fresh rag to chew.

OPPOSE REORGANIZING OF DEMOCRATIC PARTY

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 12.—Governor Cox of Ohio, was tendered an informal reception on his arrival Thursday with Mrs. Cox en route to Tuskege, for a week's hunting trip. He also was accompanied by former Senator Taggart of Indiana and was met here by Senator Harrison of Mississippi.

BLowing UP OF STOCK EXCHANGE.
Rival hatreds in the circle of labor unions in New York City is said to have been the cause of the disastrous explosion in Wall Street last September which killed forty persons and injured 150 more.

That is the substance of a sensation printed by the Evening World of New York. The story presents an improbable side. Why men with only a labor grudge against their fellow workers should enter into a conspiracy to blow hundreds of men to untimely deaths is not clear to the average mind which recoils from the thought of deliberate murder.

But in any organization, high or low, embracing men of different temperaments, offenses against society may be expected. In these days of abnormal conditions, men are doing the unexpected, the unlooked for. There is hysteria. Minds have been unbalanced and agitators are seeing "red."

Take for instance the last election. There were labor leaders so carried away with their own theories they thought it possible to organize an independent party and sweep the nation, and yet they did not gain a single candidate of any description any place in the United States, and the Republican party is estimated to have won the nation by seven million votes. Men are not thinking along sane lines. The old guide posts have been removed and people are going astray. The most improbable things are being accepted and acted on.

It may require two or three years, or even more, to bring the people back to the rational. There has been too much mental strain, due to the fact that the war created a new world of thought and supplied unending excitement.

The harbor of Zanzibar, considered the finest natural harbor on the east coast of Africa, is to be improved and fully equipped with up to date appliances.

HOPS AND MALT.

Distressing news was conveyed from Washington when the dispatches announced that home-brewing was to be brought directly under prohibition.

For some time the country has been feeling the effects of a widespread home-manufacture of alcoholic beverages. At last the federal authorities have acted, and from now on hops and malt are not to be sold to other than bakers and confectioners.

There has been an increase in home-brewing until the soft drink manufacturers have noted a big falling off in their sales, and to put a check to the illicit making of strong drinks the government has decided to restrict the sale of the principal articles entering into the home brew, and has limited the sale of hops and malt.

Suppressing the liquor traffic is a difficult task, but the government is making good progress.

THE MAD KINGS.

No one should have envied the kings of Bavaria. The rulers of Bavaria were known as the mad kings and even King Ludwig III, who is reported to have died an exile in Switzerland, is supposed to have been unbalanced in his last days.

There is a trace of insanity in nearly all the royal families of Europe.

The Kaiser was looked upon as an insane egotist. He acted the part of a religious fanatic while on the throne, but the crushing defeat which came upon him should have extracted much of the egotism and left him a melancholy old man.

Being king or Kaiser does not assure a man a life worth while. Many an obscure individual has gotten more out of existence, has done more for humanity, has enjoyed more hours of usefulness than monarchs.

A Kaiser with a disordered mind may receive the acclaim of millions, but his life has none of the contentment which comes to the head of a little home where sunshine radiates and song and laughter are heard.

STRONG FOREIGN POLICY.

Evidently our president-elect is developing an intensified Americanism. In his address at Brownsville, Texas, on Armistice day, he said:

'We crave fraternity, we wish amicable relations everywhere, we offer peace and choose to promote it, but we demand our freedom and our own America. I believe an America eminent on the seas, respected in every avenue of trade, will be safer at home and greater in influence throughout the world. I like to think of an America whose citizens are ever seeking the greater development and enlarged resources and widened influence of the republic, and I like to think of a government which protects its citizens wherever they go on a lawful mission, anywhere under the shining sun.'

There was a time when American citizens in other parts of the world had to appeal to British or other foreign consuls to obtain adequate protection. In those days America was not respected because there was no outward evidence of the strength of the country and no sign of determination to command a wholesome regard for the Stars and Stripes. This is to be reversed, according to Senator Harding. Wherever an American may be he will be assured the protection which is his by right, and there will be no soft policy of turning the other cheek.

A strong American policy will be acceptable to all Americans, particularly those who are called on to travel in foreign lands.

This declaration by the president-elect made in the presence of Mexican officials may be interpreted as direct notice to Mexico that from now on the abuse of Americans south of the Rio Grande will not be tolerated.

WILL JAPAN AND AMERICA FIGHT?

Japanese are very much like Americans. They differ according to the point of view and personal temperament. When the results of the voting in California was announced, certain Japanese in America cabled to Tokio urging calmness on the part of the people. The militarists of Japan immediately made a severe attack on the peace makers and one paper charged them with being brazen-faced frogs, croaking to exclude their brothers. The Germans when they expressed contempt called their enemies pigs, but the mikado's subjects seem to think of frogs as something low and despicable. Describing a frog's face as brazen is somewhat out of the ordinary.

Another Tokio paper asks if the Japanese in the United States have become degraded enough to be satisfied with the security of their own interests, irrespective of the future interests of the homeland? But there are Japanese papers which express confidence in the United
