ELKS EULOGIZE DEAD BROTHERS

Bishop Moulton Delivers Oration at Annual Memorial Exercises

Outlining the great need of organizations and orders such as the Elks to aid in the Americanization of newcomers to the United States and making them realize the opportunities and freedom offered by this country in order to prevent the growth of sovietism, the Rt. Rev. Arthur W. Moulton, Episcopal bishop of Utah, spoke at the annual memorial exercises of Ogden lodge, No. 719, Benevolent Protective Order of Elks, at the lodge hall yesterday afternoon.

PAYS TRIBUTE.

The speaker paid tribute to the departed brothers of the order and then related a number of his observations during the last twenty years of the work accomplished by the lodge. He said he was thankful for these experiences and asserted that the Elks and other orders interested in brotherly love grew out of the crusades and therefore are based upon the principles of Christianity.

Bishop Moulton called attention to the remark often heard in recent months that human society is on the rocks and all must mend their ways or all will be dashed to pieces.

"I have no fear," he continued, "for human society, nor can I think of the United States going to pieces and the laws smashed or banks failing from sovietism spreading, when we have such orders as the Elks and other great organizations of men bound together by great purposes. Human society is bound to be saved and our beloved America cannot go to pieces as long as we have a great band or organization of men like the Elks. No body of men bound together by justice, brotherly love, charity and fidelity will let human society go on the rocks.

"It may be that we will have to make an experiment and try out sovietism to find out its faults. Some of the most optimistic are not satisfied with human society today and look for some radical change, but when I consider the great bodies of men in different orders bound together by great things, then I can breathe freely. I know that these organizations are interested in keeping this country safe.

DANGER OF PERIL.

"However, we are in danger of a peril today, for there are established in our country great colonies of the foreign-born and there are coming to our shores thousands and thousands of men and women who expect to find gold upon the streets. This creates a problem. It is, however, a promise just as much as a problem and peril. It is a promise if we can show them the true Americanism and what America stands for.

"We must be less exclusive and let the great principles shine out and show them that Americanism is a real thing and that they see it in your eyes. This is what our departed brothers understand and if they could tell they would make the newcomers see America in all her beauty and splendor. As you and I know what America stands for, that is the message our departed brothers would give us today."

JUDGE PRATT TALKS.

The memorial address was delivered by District Judge Arthur E. Pratt. He told of the custom of paying sincere and loving tribute to the departed brothers of the order. He said that since the organization of the Ogden lodge in 1901, ninety-six members had passed away.

"None of the brothers," the speaker said, "would have departed had it been within our power to detain them. The memorial service is not an occasion of sorrow, but for rejoicing in the fact that our departed brothers have lived with us and aided us in the good deeds. They are examples of well spent lives. Long after the body has crumbled into dust the memory of the departed lives with us."

He referred to three of the departed brothers who had paid the supreme sacrifice in the world war. He declared the faults of the brothers are written upon the sands, but their virtues are engraved on the enduring tablets of love and memory.

The music consisted of the following: Solo, "The Better Land," Joseph Fernelius; duet, "Somewhere," Mrs. Fred N. Hess and Joseph Fernelius; quartet, "Calvary," Mrs. Hess, Mrs. C. H. Stevens, Joseph Fernelius and Leslie Saville; solo, "Now the Day Is Over," Mrs. Hess. At the close of the program the audience sang "Nearer, My God, to Thee." Sam F. Whitaker rendered the organ prelude and the postlude.

The lodge ritual was conducted by Exalted Ruler Harold Packer and the lodge officers. The invocation was offered by Chaplain T. J. Maginnis. The Rev. J. W. Hyslop pronounced the benediction. The services were under the direction of the committee of which James H. Knauss was chairman.

SALT LAKE EVENT.

SALT LAKE, Dec. 6.—Memorial services, held at the Salt Lake theatre last night by members and friends of Salt Lake lodge No. 85, B. P. O. E., marked the annual tribute of the lodge members to departed brothers.

The ceremonies were in common with those held yesterday in every Elks lodge in America, the first Sunday in December having been designated for the holding of memorial services of this organization.

"THE U. P. TRAIL"

Remember sitting on your dad's knee and he relating to you the stories of the days of the wild and woolly west?" How they touched your imagination at the adventure, daring and romance of the golden land that was a barren prairie?

Remember how you listened open-mouthed at these leather-stocking tales of early life on the frontier? How you urged him to tell more?

"The U. P. Trail" is the heart of hearts of that pioneer west. It is a drama throbbing with the thrills of those roaring days. It is a canvas of colorful action painted by the genius hand of Zane Grey, who, himself, was present at Witchita when this drama was being enacted.

"The U. P. Trail" visualizes the call of the open; depicts the adventure that lurked in the wake of the prairie schooner. It is a real romance. It touches the deepest feelings. It rises to the heights of dramatic climax. We highly recommend "The U. P. Trail" to all true lovers of the early west.

IDAHO FARMERS FACE BIG LOSS

Efforts Made to Obtain Freight Rate Adjustment for Crop Movement

POCATELLO, Idaho, Dec. 6.—Seeking adjustments in freight rates, the traffic bureau of the chamber of commerce and grain dealers of Pocatello have sent letters, stating their position, to Governor D. W. Davis, the public utilities commission of Idaho and the interstate commerce commission at Washington.

The purpose of the letter is to clearly illustrate that unless new arrangements in freight rates are made, Idaho, together with other agricultural states of the west, will face a loss of millions of dollars worth of crops which, under present conditions, cannot be marketed at a profit excepting at local markets, where the supply is greatly in excess of the demand.

The letter claims that increases in freight rates from Idaho to points east of the Mississippi have mounted from approximately 62 cents, the prewar rate, to 95½ cents, the present rate including war tax.

Potato and wheat growers in Idaho are facing a loss of over five millions of dollars, it is reported, because of the present freight rates.

WORK ON DOUBLE TRACK TOWARD GLENN'S FERRY

POCATELLO, Idaho, Dec. 6.—Saturday marked the completion of a new passing track, capable of taking 100 cars, at the top of the King Hill grade, east of here. The work has been done by Morrison and Knudson, railroad contractors. This is a part of the proposed double-track system from Minidoka to Glenn's Ferry, and another force of men are working near Rupert widening the track and making other changes.

A double track will be provided by building a track from Glenn's Ferry to Bliss and using the North Side railroad around by Rupert for all westbound freight trains. Eastbound trains will use the main line and the extra time and expense in pulling King Hill will be eliminated.

The locating engineer is already busy surveying for a better route up Medbury hill as another section of the double track between Glenn's Ferry and Mountain Home.

STOCKMEN OF WEST CONFER

Assembly at Hotel Utah Represents Twelve Western States

SALT LAKE, Dec. 6.—Representatives from twelve western states were in attendance at the conference of officers and directors of about two-score cattlemen's association which opened at the Hotel Utah this morning. David J. Stollery, secretary of the California Cattlemen's association, called the conference.

Efforts were made during the last two months to induce Herbert Hoover, former food administrator, to preside over the Salt Lake deliberations, but his undertaking to raise the sum of $50,000,000 for support of European children during the winter has interfered with any other work and he will be unable to be present. Mr. Hoover has a very comprehensive grasp of the situation confronting the cattlemen and is working out a plan in his mind which he may be able to submit to the conference by letter.

FURNISH THIRD MEAT.

The twelve western states represented, according to Mr. Strollery, contain but one-tenth of the population of the United States, and furnish one-third of the beef supply of the nation.

"With the statistics before it which the state associations have been requested to furnish, the Salt Lake conference," said Mr. Stollery, "can concentrate strongly upon the subjects to be covered, and can discuss comprehensively a plan, or plans, to present to the American National Livestock association convention at El Paso January 12, 13 and 14.

"Holding as they do the surplus cattle of the country, the twelve western states have nlimited power and the following vital factor is all important: That the west dominate the beef supply of the nation and should be in a position of great influence by reason of this fact."

MUST GET TOGETHER.

"The stockmen must get together and consider many things that concern us. I favor the imposition of a protective tariff of 25 per cent on beef. I think that would be about right to prevent the unwarranted dumping of surplus stocks from other countries on our markets.

"The claim might be made that the interest of the consumer is better served under free trade and this could be conceded in a country which was producing insufficient for its needs. It is to the home producer, and to him alone, that the consumer can look for consistent supplies of the things we need. The system of exchange now has a great deal to do with other countries sending beef to the United States.

"More cattlemen have gone out of business during the last two years than during my experience of sixteen years and this can be accounted for as a result of the impetus given to production during the war period and the stagnation following. The exportation of beef products from the United States has fallen off 80 per cent during the past two years. A protective tariff would correct this situation by protecting our market from the activities of producers of other countries. Perhaps, when the rates of exchange in other countries have been adjusted, the tariff may be reduced. However, the living conditions in the United States are unexcelled throughout the world and this fact in itself has a direct bearing on the need of protection of our industry."

WOMEN TO TAKE PART IN FARM BUREAU PLANS

SALT LAKE, Dec. 6.—Women living on farms will take an active part in activities of the Utah state farm bureau, under a plan for the creation of a "home section" of the bureau.

The new section is being created upon suggestion of a committee appointed to investigate the best efforts of correlating efforts for farm and farm home development.

The committee, in a report to the bureau's executive committee, said that "the responsibility of development of wholesome living conditions, highest ideals in the home and in the community cannot develop rapidly, consistently and efficiently without the cooperation of all interested and concerned."

The committee also states that the members "feel that the pressure of interest in home problems demands a fuller consideration on the part of the state farm bureau in the encouragement and stimulation of investigations and in organized effort, in opening avenues and opportunities for the development of home and community problems."

The "home section" will have a state-wide organization, headed by officers who will have joint offices with the farm bureau in the McCornick bank building. Outlines of the plans to be carried through by this section are to be given at sessions of the bureau during the state convention, January 6, 7 and 8.

NEW COMMANDER FOR GUARD AT POCATELLO

POCATELLO, Ida., Dec. 6.—J. C. Anderson, sergeant-instructor for the First Idaho cavalry, stationed at Boise, arrived in Pocatello last night to assist Captain Louis Gallet in transfer of the equipment of B troop to the new commanding officer, Captain R. A. Sweet. Captain Gallet resigned last week on account of heavy pressure of work connected with his duties as assistant cashier of the Bannock National bank. First Lieutenant Leo Hood resigned at the same time.

By an official order issued out of Adjutant General Patch's office by Major J. B. Burns to Major Sam Anderson of the First battalion located here, Sergeant R. A. Sweet was promoted to captain, Private U. R. Waters was made first lieutenant and Sergeant F. T. Olson second lieutenant.

Private F. R. Chestnut was promoted to staff sergeant and attached to the staff of Major Sam Anderson of battalion headquarters at Pocatello.

The new captain served before coming to Pocatello in the Iowa national guard, and has several medals won in rifle marksmanship contests. He is conducting a studio of photography here. Lieutenant Waters is connected with the sales force of the Trist Auto company of which Major Anderson is office manager. Lieutenant Olson has seen active service in the United States cavalry and is the manager of a large farm north of Pocatello. Captain Sweet actually takes command Monday night.

MONTANA MAN FOUND DEAD IN FREIGHT CAR

PROVO, Dec. 6.—The body of a man, believed to be Frank Golden of Butte Creek, Mont., from letters found in his pocket, was discovered yesterday morning by the train crew in a box car at Lehi. The car had been picked up by the crew at Draper.

Letters found in the man's pockets from Joseph J. Koelbi and William Krohm gave the officers a clew to his identity. There was also a pawn ticket showing that he had pawned a watch in Salt Lake December 3 for $2.25. Nineteen cents in money, a pocket knife and an old purse also were found on the body.

Sheriff J. T. Williams had the body brought to this city and it is now at the Berg morgue, where it will be held until further information can be received. The man's death was probably due to exposure.

POYNTER'S REPRIEVE CRITICISED BY JUDGE

POCATELLO, Ida., Dec. 6.—Judge Fred Bale, in an address here yesterday afternoon, deplored the reprieve of Henry Poynter, sentenced to the penitentiary for violation of the state and national prohibition laws.

Judge Bale was speaking on the needs of Pocatello at a meeting of the community council, held in the Young Men's Christian association building.

The community council, it was declared, will inquire as to why Poynter was reprieved, and will oppose a pardon being granted to him by the state board of pardons of Idaho. The community council of Pocatello represents all the organizations of that city.
