CZAR WAITS WHILE JAPS A-GUNNING GO

Mighty Army of Little Brown Men Being Sent to the Front, and Attempt Will Be Made to Flank the Russian Forces at Port Arthur.

GENERAL VIEW OF DALNY

DALNY is a Russian port at the southern extremity of Manchuria and a place of considerable commercial importance. The Russians have established a military post of considerable magnitude. Dispatches a few days ago were to the effect that it was reported that the Japanese were bombarding the town. The report has not been verified. A few days ago the United States decided to establish a consulate at Dalny and Edwin V. Morgan is now on his way to the far East to look after American interests there.

BOYARIN MAY HAVE BEEN TORPEDOED

TOKIO, Feb. 15.—It is the belief of the Navy department that the Russian second-class cruiser Boyarin was torpedoed and sunk by the destroyer Hayatory in the torpedo attack on the Russian fleet at Port Arthur last Sunday morning. Lieut. Commander Tokenuchi did not know the name of the vessel struck by a torpedo discharged by the Hayatory, but the Navy department has since learned from other sources that it was the Boyarin.

A dispatch from St. Petersburg yesterday stated that the Boyarin was blown up, with a loss of 155 officers and men February 13th by a mine which it accidentally struck.

NATION SOBS AT BIER OF ITS BELOVED DEAD

Impressive and Beautiful Ceremonies Attend the Funeral Services Over the Remains of the Late Marcus A. Hanna in the Senate Chamber at Washington.

Magnificent Floral Tributes Banked the Casket Containing the Distinguished Dead—Chaplain Hale's Eloquent Eulogy of the Life and Character of Fallen Statesman.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—In the presence of the grief-stricken family, of many friends whose sorrow was scarcely less pronounced, of the Senate and House of Representatives, of dignitaries from all the other branches of the Government and of the chief official representatives of most of the foreign powers, the funeral of the late Senator Marcus A. Hanna occurred today in the Senate chamber, the scene of his most recent activities and of his entire official life.

The spectacle was imposing and quite in harmony with the public estimate of the great man's services to his country and the world. The ceremony was dignified and simple in consonance with his character.

The Senate chamber lent itself naturally to the occasion. It is especially barren of decorations and the dark furniture, heavy walls and subdued light were quite in keeping with the sorrowful proceedings which were the occasion of the gathering.

Seldom has a more distinguished body of people been collected in Washington to do honor to either the living or dead, and rarely has there been witnessed a more impressive proceeding.

STATE FUNERAL AT CLEVELAND FRIDAY

Arrangements for Hanna Obsequies in Senator's Home City Completed.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 17.—Mayor Johnson today issued a proclamation that on the day of Senator Hanna's funeral, Friday, from 2 p. m. to 2:05 p. m., there be a cessation of all business and that during the five minutes there be observed throughout the city, so far as possible, complete repose.

Mayor Johnson also suggested that between 12 and 2 o'clock, the hours set for the funeral procession and funeral services, the people of Cleveland in the downtown business section and along the route to be taken by the funeral cortege, desist from their ordinary business occupations.

The Mayor further directs that all the departments of the city government close on the day of the funeral.

CZAR BIDS WARRIORS A FOND FAREWELL

Crack Regiments of Russian Army Leave St. Petersburg for the Front.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 17.—In the courtyard of the winter palace the czar today reviewed the Third battalion of the First Siberian rifles, which is proceeding to the far East.

The review took place in the presence of the czarina, the Dowager Empress, Grand Duke Michael, War Minister Kuropatkin, Gen. Sakharoff, chief of staff, and a number of court officials.

After the inspection the rendering of the national anthem by the band and cheers from the spectators, his Majesty made a speech to the departing soldiers, in which he said:

"My brothers, I am happy to be able to see you all before you leave, and I wish you a good journey. I am firmly convinced that you will all uphold the honor of your ancient regiment and readily risk your lives for your dear fatherland.

"Remember, your foe is brave, confident and crafty. From my heart I wish you success over your opponents. I beseech you, my brothers, and with you the famous First Siberian regiment; may Seraphim pray for you and accompany you in all your ways.

"I thank the officers for volunteering their services, and once more I thank you all, my brothers, with all my heart, God bless you."

The battalion, accompanied by its baggage wagons, then marched past, the czar calling out to the men as they went by: "Good-bye, my brothers."

TO FLANK PORT ARTHUR

PORT ARTHUR, Feb. 17.—An official dispatch here from Tokio, announces the movement of the most important Japanese troops yet made in the region.

Of the main branches of the army, three divisions and including the division of guards, is now going to the front.

Previous landings of Japanese troops at Kores and elsewhere are said to have been small compared with the simultaneous sailing of three divisions aggregating approximately an additional 50,000 men.

Authorities here are added, however, every precaution to prevent information from going out concerning the destination and the destination of the force is a matter of the utmost importance.

The official dispatch says a Japanese fleet has been sighted off the mouth of the Yalu river, and is not connected with the divisions referred to in these dispatches, but is considered to be a separate force.

PRAYER TO GOD OF WARS BROKEN BY BOMB

ARMENIAN CHURCH, Monday, Feb. 15.—During a patriotic service in the Armenian church here today, just as the clergy had begun chanting a Te Deum and praying for the success of the Russian army, a bomb was thrown at the officiating priest.

Two persons were killed and several were injured.

After the excitement had been allayed the congregation marched in to the residence of the Governor, carrying the czar's portrait and presented the Governor with a patriotic address and $500 for the families of the victims of the outrage.

TORPEDO ATTACK IN TEETH OF GALE

TOKIO, Wednesday, Feb. 17.—A heavy storm spared the Russians from a desperate torpedo attack at Port Arthur on the morning of Sunday, the 14th instant. During the preceding night the Japanese flotilla of torpedo craft were parted by the force of the wind and waves in a blinding snowstorm, so that only two of the larger destroyers succeeded in forcing their way through the fierce gale to Port Arthur. When they arrived there they attacked separately, and one of them is confident it succeeded in torpedoing a Russian warship; one report says two.

The destroyer Asagiri, in charge of Lieut. Commander Ishikawa, arrived off Port Arthur about 3 o'clock the same morning and was met with a sharp fire from the fortress and ships acting as escorts. The Asagiri discharged several torpedoes at a big warship, but the result is unknown, and

WANTED NON-COMBATANT TO SINK SHIP

Capt. Behr.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—The Seoul correspondent of the Daily Mail, in the course of a descriptive narrative of the Chemulpo battle, says that before the fight Capt. Behr of the Russian cruiser Variag held a conference with the British, French and Italian Captains, aboard the British cruiser Talbot, in which he asked for the protection of a foreign warship in leaving the harbor. The request was refused. The British launch delivered a protest to the Japanese Admiral immediately before the action.

The Americans present refrained from attending the naval conference or partaking in the demonstration, although some of the Russian wounded were received on board the United States gunboat Vicksburg.

While the Variag was being sunk her Captain, fearing the Japanese would reach the vessel before she settled down, requested the Captain of the Talbot to fire at her water line. The request also was refused.

SEATING OF PARTICIPANTS

The floor of the chamber was filled with the representatives of the official life of the national capital, the galleries with people from all the higher walks of society, including the families of officials and many persons of distinction in the professional and business world. The hall is not of great dimensions and admission to the galleries was so regulated that the galleries were crowded.

The demand for tickets was such that if it could have been met the space would have been filled many times over.

In the front rank of the eminent assemblage gathered immediately about the casket of the departed statesman, sat the President. He was flanked by the members of his Cabinet, all of whom had been closely affiliated with Senator Hanna by ties of friendship and political association.

Nearly every member of the Supreme court of the United States, garbed in their black robes of office, which fitted well into the scene of sorrow.

There were scarcely any absentees from among the members of the Senate. Each and all of them were visibly affected and it was not difficult to detect their sorrowful countenances the sense of personal loss that all felt in Mr. Hanna's death.

FUNERAL CORTEGE ARRIVES

The ceremony began shortly after 12 o'clock, but the gallery doors were thrown open long before that hour, and half the gallery seats were occupied, mostly by ladies.

No order of any kind was maintained at the Capitol in the arrival of participants in the services. The President reached the east portico of the Senate wing at 11:45 a. m., accompanied by Mr. Loeb, his secretary. They proceeded at once to the President's room, where they were joined by the Cabinet members.

The President's family came soon after and were assigned to seats in the members' gallery, where they were joined by Mr. Loeb after the President and Cabinet had entered the Senate chamber. Members of the diplomatic corps came individually and assembled in the Senate reception room.

It was just noon when the members of Senator Hanna's family arrived. Mrs. Hanna came on the arm of her son, Dan R. Hanna, and Mrs. Daniel Hanna on the arm of H. M. Hanna. They were followed by Mr. and Mrs. McCormick and Mr. and Mrs. Parsons, Miss Phelps and personal friends of the family.

The casket was borne into the chamber by a squad of Capitol police, headed by Sergeant-at-Arms Randall of the Senate, and was immediately followed by the official committee, with Senator Foraker and Gen. Grosvenor at its head. Slowly the little procession moved down the main aisle of the chamber and the casket was tenderly placed upon the catafalque which was to hold it.

The hall was banked with flowers, which had been sent in great profusion by friends. There was a large wreath of orchids surrounding a cross of violets from the President.

The Senate contributed an immense wreath of orchids, carnations, roses and violets, the Republican Association of Ohio another almost as large, and the Gridiron club of this city another, which was of striking beauty.

Senator Frye, as President pro tem, stood in front of his chair as the body was borne to its resting place. All the people in the galleries rose as if with one impulse as the casket was borne to its place.

The pull-bearers had scarcely retired when the Senate was called to order.

CHAPLAIN HALE'S ADDRESS

Immediately afterward Dr. Hale delivered his funeral address. He did not use his notes in speaking, but never faltered for a word and, although a man of over 90 years of age, his voice penetrated every corner of the hall.

Mr. Hale began his sermon as follows:

"Those who knew him best, loved him most. And those who knew him little loved him much."

"You speak of no one else as you go and come in these days; and this is the impression which is made, say on a man like me—almost a stranger to him personally. I know him very little, and I have felt his power and charm. There are a hundred men who are hearing me better fitted than I am to describe him or to account for his power. But I think they would all have to recognize the promptness, the intensity of thought and action which comes with a man's heart is engaged—the energy and success of a man who does what he loves to do, what he wants to do, what he ought to do, because he loves it, because he believes in it, because he lives not for himself, but for those whom he so gladly serves."

"I was talking once with a distinguished missionary who had spent his life in one of those philosophical countryparts whose religion came more or less into fashion among us half a century ago, and he said to me that the people among whom he had lived loved the Lord, their God, with all their heart and with all their mind, but they did not love him with all their strength. Our friend loved with all his might. He

CLEVELAND, Feb. 17.—Mayor Johnson today issued a proclamation that on the day of Senator Hanna's funeral, Friday, from 2 p. m. to 2:05 p. m., there be a cessation of all business and that during the five minutes there be observed throughout the city, so far as possible, complete repose.

The Mayor further directs that all the departments of the city government close on the day of the funeral.

ATTENDANCE AT FUNERAL

The attendance of notable men at the funeral promises to be large. Besides Senator Foraker, three Secretaries of the President's Cabinet, Messrs. Taft, Wilson and Cortelyou, and the delegations from the Senate and House of Representatives, there will also be in attendance the entire Ohio State Legislature of about 100 men, who will come from Columbus on a special train.

Gov. Herrick and staff and ex-Gov. Nash and ten friends will also attend. So far as known, Gov. Durbin of Indiana is the only State Executive outside of Ohio coming to the funeral. Gov. Durbin will be accompanied by his staff.

All public and parochial schools will close Friday and no theatrical performances will be given at the Euclid Avenue opera-house Thursday night. Senator Hanna owned that theater, and the manager pays this tribute of respect to his memory.

Hanna pictures are in every store window in the city, surrounded either by simple draperies, an American flag or some handsome and appropriate floral design.

Ralph M. Easley, secretary of the Civic Federation, and twelve members of that body will attend the funeral, having left New York today for this city.

It was decided tonight by the local committee of arrangements for the lying-in-state ceremonies to open the auditorium of the chamber of commerce at 8 o'clock Friday morning instead of 8 o'clock, for the convenience of hundreds of working men.
