Military Operations.

[Washington Correspondence of the Philadelphia Inquirer.]

We learn that the whole army again took up the line of march on Saturday and Sunday for Fredericksburg. Warrenton was evacuated to-day. General Burnside's headquarters were at Catlett's Station to-day and ere this reaches you the whole army will be nearing Fredericksburg. A large quantity of supplies have been sent there and a force of contrabands and mechanics, under General Haupt, are building wharves and the railroads at Aquia Creek.

This base was considered the best one for operating upon the heart of Virginia, and was adopted at the Cabinet council we sent you word of last Wednesday. The Confederates in Richmond are aware of the new programme, hence there can be no impropriety in publishing it in the North.

The steam gunboat Satellite and Yankee ran up to Aquia Creek on Friday, and found it deserted by the Confederates.

General Bayard occupied Falmouth yesterday, the Confederates falling back before him. No battle has taken place to-day, and no skirmish. All is quiet at Fairfax Court House and Bull Run.

From Gen. Sigel's Corps.

[Correspondence of the Philadelphia Inquirer.]

GAINESVILLE, VA., Nov. 16, 3 P. M.—For several days past the corps in the advance of us have been moving. The headquarters of General Sigel are still here, but there is considerable speculation on all hands to know what will transpire within the next forty-eight hours. Evidently there will be a move, but which way, none except those high in authority, know.

The late orders of General Burnside, dividing the Army of the Potomac into three grand divisions, also make Sigel's command (the Eleventh Corps) the reserve force.

From the tenor of the order, it is more than likely that this is done to give the General time to fill his command from the new regiments sent forward.

At present the greater portion of his command is at the Gaps, guarding them, as they are important avenues of advance and retreat.

It is not likely that the General will be long kept inactive.

Gen Sigel visited General Burnside, yesterday, at his headquarters, at Warrenton. The result of their interview has not been made.

Yesterday, General Stahl's cavalry reconnoitered through Snickersville, Upperville and Leesburg. No enemy was found in force at any point near those places. Through the mountains small detachments of Stuart's cavalry were to be designated.

Matthew O'Brien, esq., whose arrest we noticed a day or two ago, and who was confined in the Old Capitol prison, Washington, was yesterday released on parole, and has returned to his home.

The Washington Republican advocates "the taxing of everything imported into or exported from the Southern States."

NOTICE TO TAX-PAYERS.—The books of the Commissioner of the Revenue can be seen at the store of James A. Stoutenberg, corner of King and Columbus streets, until the 1st day of December next. Persons desiring to examine said books can do so at any hour until the date above mentioned.

There was quite a row on Sunday at the Union Race Course, Long Island, where the 41st Massachusetts and the 15th New Hampshire regiments are encamped, owing to the men of the former regiment having precedence over the latter in obtaining their rations. The officers from words came to blows, and a general scrimmage ensued between the privates, but fortunately no one was seriously injured.

Gen. Butler, in New Orleans, has issued an order that all persons of the age of sixteen years and upward, coming within the lines, will be held as spies, unless they take the oath of allegiance to the U. S. or show that they are neutral aliens.

The Louisville Journal is apprehensive that the removal of Gen. McClellan indicates that the President "will not modify or withdraw his emancipation proclamation."

There are now thirty-five hospitals in Washington. Georgetown and Alexandria, whose capacities vary from 56 to 1,522 beds.

In the Washington Circuit Court, yesterday, the motion to dissolve the injunction obtained by L. Grover & Co. against Fannie Clifford was overruled. The case of Harriet V. Ladde vs. Pairo & Nourse, in chancery, was then taken up.

Fifteen hundred sick were brought in last night and to-day from the front, and sent to the hospitals in Washington.

It is announced that General McClellan contemplates visiting Hartford, Connecticut, and will pass through New York on his way thither.

The Rutland (Vermont) Courier has the name of George B. McClellan at the head of its column, for President in 1864.

The New York papers have received files from Bermuda to the 4th of November. The papers contain late news from some of the other West India Islands. There are reports of extensive and formidable labor revolts, among negroes, which had taken place at St. Vincent, which lasted ten days, and resulted in the plunder and destruction of numerous planters' estates, the maiming of planters, and the killing of many negroes. The trouble was only allayed by a large military force co-operating with armed British vessels. Excitement prevailed, also, in Barbadoes. Martial law has been proclaimed in Saint Vincent, and one hundred prisoners were arrested by the troops. They will be brought to trial. Yellow fever had carried off many victims in Barbadoes.

At Algiers, opposite New Orleans, there are quartered at the expense of the Federal Government, over seven thousand contrabands.—They are maintained and supported in large factory buildings on the levee.

The officers of Gen. McClellan's staff, Col. Colburn and Capt. Duane, are charged with absence without leave, the use of language disrespectful to their commanding officer, and conduct prejudicial to maintenance of order and discipline in the army.
